TUESDAY was a bad day for this pooch. After trudging through heavy rain and slush he finally made it to the Montreal SPCA clinic—and found himself locked out. As the sign says, Mondays and Thursdays. King Leading Revolt Against Greek Junta

Nation Verging On Civil War

(Times News Services)

King Constantine led a military revolt today against the ruling junta that seized power in Greece eight months ago and appealed to all Greeks to help him "restore democracy and freedom."

The junta mobilized the army and said it was determined to crush the rebellion.

Greece balanced on the brink of civil war.

Unconfirmed reports said troops under the 27-year-old king's command were moving on Athens from north central Greece. Air force planes believed manned by pilots loyal to the king flew low over the capital, which is filled with junta troops and tanks.

In Belgrade, the Yugoslav news agency Tanjug reported that Greece closed its borders with Yugoslavia this afternoon. It said radio broadcasts from northern Greece said the junta had taken control of the area and called on all soldiers and army units to report to their garrisons and remain loyal to the military regime.

Constantine, in a broadcast this morning from Larissa in central Greece about 160 miles northwest of Athens said he was trying to bring democracy back to the nation where it was born.

Larissa is the site of the biggest air force base in Greece and the headquarters of the 1st Greek Army under the command of Lt.-Gen. Constantine Kolias.

His troops were reported moving south towards Athens with the king, but this report could not be confirmed.

STRONGMAN of ruling Greek junta which took over power in April is Col. George Papadopoulos, whose Athens office was under close guard today as King Constantine attempted to lead a counter-revolution.

'Misled by Criminal Opportunists'

The junta, in a broadcast early this afternoon, said Constantine was "misled by criminal opportunists" and charged he was trying to overthrow the regime which ousted the civilian government on April 21 in what was described as a coup to save Greece from communism.

The ruling military leaders poured troops, tanks and armored cars into Athens from army camps around the city and surrounded the royal palace, government offices, the radio station and posted machine gunners on the roof of the foreign ministry.

Athens Radio announced that King Constantine "was misled by criminal opportunists and turned against the nation-saving revolution."

Interspersing the announcement with martial music, the Athens broadcast said:

"The Greek armed forces are determined to defend the unity of the nation or to crush through armed might those who divide the country. The national government calls on the Greek people to maintain their sangfroid and their confidence in the government.

"Greek people, the revolution of April 21 is at your side. The April revolution will protect the nation from any division. Do not worry. Everything is under control."

Monitors in Istanbul, Turkey reported Athens radio interrupted a music program later to report that the king is escaping from village to village. The junta is in complete control of the country, the station said.

Communications Cut in Afternoon

An assessment of late developments after the broadcasts by the junta and Constantine was complicated when telephone and telex communications from Greece were cut in mid-afternoon.

Rome reports said Athens was rejecting incoming calls because of "a breakdown in an amplifier." Calls from other European capitals to Athens could not be completed.

London reports said international airline flights to and from Athens were cancelled or delayed.

King Constantine and his Queen, Anne-Marie, 22, were reported to have travelled from Athens to Larissa earlier this week in connection with military manoeuvres. The queen is a member of Denmark's royal family.

In Copenhagen, Danish government sources said King Frederick and Queen Ingrid, the parents of Queen Anne-Marie, were unable to get in touch with her today. The Danish sources said Constantine and Anne-Marie apparently were still in Larissa.

Unconfirmed reports reaching Athens said Constantine had set up a new government at Naousa, a city 200 miles north of Athens just south of the border between Greece and Yugoslavia.

These unsubstantiated reports said the new government was headed by Petros Garoufolias, the man who served as defence

'Storm' Spotter In Space

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Beaming back strong signals to earth, a robot "interplanetary weatherman" named Pioneer VIII rocketed into orbit around the sun today to help weave a network that could warn astronauts of deadly solar radiation storms in space.

En route to the sun-circling path between that of earth and Mars, Pioneer VIII's fiery Delta booster rocket successfully kicked a radio-relay communications satellite into orbit around earth to be used for testing America's man-to-moon tracking network.

"We now have the Pioneer VIII spacecraft in a solar orbit," a National Aeronautics and Space Administration spokesman said 35 minutes after the double payload blasted off at 9:08 a.m. EST. The tricky two-in-one shot closed out the 1967 launch scheduled at Cape Kennedy.

SENSORS PROBE

Scientists refer to the Pioneer family of spacecraft as "interplanetary weathermen" and said sensors aboard Pioneer VIII could provide the best information yet on how great a danger radiation storms emitted from the sun pose to astronauts.

Working with other craft previously launched, drum-shaped Pioneer VIII, could possibly lead to a foolproof means of predicting when dangerous flares will erupt on the sun—just as earth-orbiting weather satellites help forecasters predict climate on this planet—so manned space flights can be scheduled around them, officials said.

France Ignored For Urgent Market Talks

BRUSSELS (UPI) — France's common market partners called an urgent meeting for Thursday — without France — to discuss Britain's bid for membership, informed sources said today.

Although foreign minister Maurice Couve de Murville of France is in Brussels he will not attend the foreign ministers' meeting called originally by Belgium to try to stave off a serious crisis.

The meeting is to be held at Val Duchesse Chateau 10 miles outside Brussels. Val Duchesse is the Belgian government's guest house for important visitors.

The decision to hold the meeting came after Couve De Murville was warned in a series of talks with partner ministers, that France's continued refusal to debate Britain's entry could plunge the community into a serious crisis.

The meetings were held on the fringe of a North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) ministerial session which all market foreign ministers are attending.

The five partners, and particularly Holland, Belgium and Luxembourg, are determined France must decide on Britain one way or the other in the coming week. The other members are West Germany and Italy.

Gamble for Peace, Martin Tells Rusk

By HAROLD MORRISON

BRUSSELS (CP) — Canada today called on the United States to "gamble" for peace in Vietnam.

External Affairs Minister Paul Martin told the 15-country NATO council: "The time has come to risk as much as a gamble for peace—and I recognize that it would be a gamble—as has already been risked in ever-widening attempts at a military solution."

While Martin did not spell out what he meant, Canada has been pleading with the U.S. to halt the bombing in North Vietnam in the hope that this might lead to negotiations and a settlement.

U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk was reported to have told the council the bombing would stop only if the U.S. could be sure this would lead to useful discussions and if assurance could be given that the Viet Cong would not take advantage of the situation. Informants said Rusk also stated that in his view the Vietnamese war is going in the right direction for the side of freedom and democracy.

Martin also proposed that NATO continue to study ways of promoting a mutual East-West reduction of arms even though the West cannot expect explicit agreements from the Russians at this time. Even prospects for tacit agreements "do not seem very bright," he said.

BEST PROSPECTS

He supported basic conclusions of the so-called Harmel Exercise to increase NATO's political cohesiveness in negotiating a detente with the East, but suggested bilateral contacts offer the best prospects for making progress at this stage.

The study under the direction of Belgian Foreign Minister Pierre Harmel has turned into a controversial issue with France

He's Our Postmaster Say Angry Residents

"I am now carrying out the duties of a postmaster but under the pay of the people," said Mr. Gilson. "And it looks like I'm going to be busier than I ever was before."

Tuesday night Mr. Gilson formally signed over the post office duties to a new appointee after an appeal to Ottawa to keep him as postmaster failed.

Officially, the post office has been transferred from Mr. Gilson's general store to a store across the street in this community 35 miles northeast of Winnipeg.

But as "postmaster under authorization of the people," he set out on his first 15-mile trip to East Selkirk with mail brought into his store by those who refuse to use the new postal establishment.

The postal subscribers are paying Mr. Gilson $200 a month to carry the mail—the same amount he was getting as a government postmaster, he said.

He said he has been given no choice in accepting the new appointment. "It's been forced on me. They threatened to stop shopping in my store and in the one across the street if I didn't accept."

Libau's postal rebellion began Monday when Mr. Gilson was prevented from signing transfer papers by a mob of 50 townspeople who carted him off to a farm in a vigilante action aimed at keeping him out of reach of postal authorities. (See earlier story Page 57.)

'Resurrection' Trick Fails

ACCRA, Ghana (UPI) — A Ghanaian magician turned himself in to police in the audience Tuesday because his stage trick went wrong and he failed to "resurrect" a man from the dead.

The 30-year-old man was "shot" by an assistant with what were believed to be blank cartridges as part of the act of the magician named Professor Hindu at Takoradi.

He was put in the trench near the stage and covered with boards and earth. The magician promised the man would come to life again after half an hour.

After a period, the magician went near the trench, then suddenly returned to the stage, gathered up his magical regalia and set it on fire.

He announced the man was dead and he was unable to "ressurect" him. He surrendered to the police, who took him and the assistant, Koho Ansah, into custody.

A police spokesman said later the cause of death was unknown because the body bore no wounds or bloodstains, but suffocation was suspected.

NATION'S IDEALS BETRAYED IN VIETNAM

U.S. Colleges 'Corrupted' by War Machine

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. J. William Fulbright, D—Ark., said today that the Vietnam war is supporting a military-industrial complex which is a "major political force" and a corrupting influence on U.S. colleges and universities.

The chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee, in the second of two scathing speeches on Vietnam, said that defence industries and their employees "form a giant concentration of socialism in our otherwise free enterprise economy."

Fulbright charged last week the Vietnam conflict was an "immoral and unnecessary war" turning the Southeast Asian country into a "charnel house."

In a speech prepared for senate delivery today, he said the hope of America's poor had been "sacrificed to the supervening requirements of the war on Asian communism, or more exactly, to the executive preoccupation and congressional parsimony induced by that war."

Fulbright said the United States had begun to lose its understanding of "the power of the American example" and the loss was manifest in Vietnam.

"There at last we have embraced the ideas that are so alien to our experience, the idea that our wisdom is as great as our power, and the idea that our lasting impact on the world can be determined by the way we fight a war rather than by the way we run our country.

"These are the principal and most ominous effects of the war—the betrayal of ideas which have served America well, and the great moral crisis which that betrayed has set loose among our people and their leaders."

Fulbright called for a re-evaluation of U.S. "national priorities." He said that "defining our priorities is more a matter of moral accounting than of cost accounting."

The senator, a former president of the University of Arkansas, said that many leading universities have joined the "monolith" of the military-industrial complex.

A university that makes itself a government appendage, Fulbright said, is not only failing to meet its responsibilities to its students, "it is betraying a public trust."

Fulbright said the basic cause of the "angry rebellions" on many campuses probably is the students' discovery of corruption in colleges, the one place—besides perhaps the church—which might have been supposed to be immune from the "corruptions of age."

GM Offers Wage Parity

TORONTO (CP) — General Motors of Canada today offered its auto workers wage parity with its employees in the United States provided the United Auto Workers Union agrees to work practices in force in the company's U.S. plants.

The offer proposes achievement of wage parity in five steps over a 2½-year period, ending in June, 1970. It would apply to those employees involved in producing auto products covered by the Canada-U.S. auto trade agreement.

The company's proposals also include wage increases over a three-year period and an improved benefit plan.

Three Wonders From Barley

By KATHRINE THOMAS

Barley is a wonderful currency in Korea.

Canadian money used to purchase barley can accomplish three wonders.

The Unitarian Service Committee first gives 10 pounds per person to the people who are in dire need. They may be children, elderly persons too old to work or too handicapped or just a family facing a sudden emergency.

This barley literally keeps them alive—without the USC distribution, they would face starvation.

But the USC is also using barley as payment in kind to men and women who are only too anxious to work in reconstruction and reclamation programs.

For the assurance of enough food to keep their families alive, they will work long hours taking down mountains by hand and dumping them into the sea to reclaim marsh land.

The Koreans are a strong, energetic people, eager for the advancement of their country and the resurrection of an economy laid waste 14 years ago.

Some day this reclaimed land will be covered with factories, creating employment and exports.

But barley distribution can also be used in a third way—as an incentive for family planning.

The women who come to the USC family clinic receive 10 pounds of barley.

The program has been so successful the USC received a special commendation from the Korean government.

But the USC is concerned first with basic needs—the need of barley to conquer malnutriton.

It is difficult for Canadians who throw food and clothing away to realize how much even the smallest contribution can mean the difference between life and death in Asia.

SEVEN PROVINCES AGAINST HOUSING STUDY PLAN

Red-Faced Pearson Watches as CHUD Dies

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Death in the afternoon — of a government idea.

Under the bright glare of the camera lights and in full public view, the proposed Council on Housing and Urban Development was slaughtered.

His face red as a matador's cape, Prime Minister Pearson watched and listened as the Ottawa idea was gored to death.

And a federal-provincial conference, for the first time in history was not screened behind closed doors.

There was not much violent cut-and-thrust at the two-day talks, but the Council on Housing and Urban Development bled all over the place.

It was proposed in the opening statement by the Prime Minister.

He said before any real progress could be made towards improvement in urban environment, planning must be improved.

"To help meet this need, I would like to propose the establishment, jointly by the federal and provincial governments, of a council on housing and urban development whose functions, generally, would be to gather and publish comprehensive, objective, and regular assessments of housing and urban development needs across the country, to suggest priorities of need and plans to meet them."

But from the outset it was not well received.

New Brunswick's Premier Louis Robichaud had visions of it being a "group of co-ordinators to co-ordinate co-ordinators."

British Columbia's representative, Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell, also viewed it along lines that it was unnecessary and would only duplicate work already being done.

The background paper called for a full-time chairman, "two or three full-time directors," and committees.

"Full-time permanent staff should be authorized with appointments, salaries and conditions of employment to be determined by the council," added the paper.

He even offered to have Ottawa pay the shot.

Then the provinces took their runs. Campbell said such advisory councils already were a "dime a dozen."

He said B.C.'s reservation was that such a group would "preclude decisive action." Campbell also said many groups had already done similar studies.

Ontario's Premier John Robarts added: "I think we might endorse those remarks." He pointed to the studies his province has done and said co-operation could be built up among existing staffs.

He said CHUD seemed "a pretty elaborate organization."

But Alberta's Premier Ernest Manning suggested such work might be done by designation of various people from existing organizations to work on co-ordination of information along the lines suggested.

It was all over but the burial before N.B., P.E.I., and Manitoba had their runs.

And then Quebec had the floor. "For once," joked Premier Daniel Johnson, "I don't feel alone."

He said such groups "have a perfect mania for not consulting those who have the responsibility for taking the judgments and the decisions."

Johnson felt they were another way for governments getting out of shouldering responsibility.

He said one of the good things to come from the conference was the desirability for co-operation—but without CHUD.

Pearson quipped wryly—"Thank you for helping me once again, Mr. Johnson."

That was the epitaph under the bright lights for CHUD.

Garoufolias is considered a staunch anti-communist.

Papandreou was placed under house arrest by the junta last April when it overthrew the governement of Premier Panyotis Canellopoulos.

Papandreou's demand in 1965 that Garoufolias quit as defence minister touched off a showdown between Constantine and Papandreou that formed the basis of the crisis which led to the April military takeover.

Garoufolias had charged that leftist army officers led by Papandreou's son Andreas, a member of parliament, were trying to take control of the army.

Junta Leaders Caught by Surprise

Brig. Gen. Stylianos Pattakos, the interior minister, was reported to have been caught outside Athens on a tour of the Peloponnesus south of the mainland when the news broke.

Troops in Salonika were to be joined today by Greek forces returning from Cyprus under the demilitarization plan of the Mediterranean island hammered out in crisis talks earlier this month between Greece and Turkey.

The units from Cyprus included the 620th infantry battalion and one unit of "raiding force" paratroopers, generally considered loyal to the junta. Paratroop units guarded the Greek defence ministry in Athens today after Constantine's broadcast.

The atmosphere in Athens was excited, and authorities cancelled afternoon classes in all capital schools.

Troop movements in Athens started late this morning. Trucks and armored vehicles filled with soldiers converged on the city under mobilization orders.

King Constantine, who became the world's youngest ruling monarch when his father, King Paul, died in 1964, never made any secret of his dislike of the junta.

Junta leaders cracked down on almost all prominent figures after the April 21 coup, but left Constantine untouched because he was needed as the symbol of constitutional legality.

The junta moved against a broad spectrum of Greek life in its anti-Communist campaign. New edicts struck arts, customs, the press and the church and even mini-skirts were banned as being the product of "contaminating" Communist influences.

B.C. Absent On New Ferry Guest List

B.C. Ferry authority will not be represented at the inaugural ceremony Saturday for Alaska State Ferries' new service between Seattle and Ketchikan.

The ceremony will be held in Seattle Saturday afternoon, a press release issued by the State of Alaska said.

"I've heard nothing about it," said BCFA manager Monty Aldous this morning when asked if the authority would be represented.

(Former governor William Eagan represented Alaska two years ago when BCFA inaugurated its northern service to Prince Rupert connecting with Alsaka State Ferries.

(The new service is being inaugurated as a result of Premier Bennett's refusal to resume the Kelsey Bay-Prince Rupert run until March 28 although the damaged Queen of Prince Rupert has been repaired.)

Saturday's ceremonies will include a public tour of the 352-foot car ferry Mv Matanuska, operated by ASF, before she leaves for the first of the weekly round trips as far north as Skagway.

She will leave Seattle each Saturday at 3 p.m., returning the following Saturday at 11 a.m.

Alaska Gov. Walter J. Hickel, who ordered the new service, will be featured at the ceremony along with various Washington State officials.

Invigorating Weather Will Continue

Invigorating morning wasn't it?

We can expect several more according to Gonzales Hill weather officials.

The said the mercury dropped to 25 today just at sunrise at Patricia Bay airport and perhaps to 23 in some interior sections of the Saanich Peninsula.

Gonzales Hill recorded 34, Nanaimo 23, Vancouver 26 — which was cosy compared to the —8 degree freezer Prince George is experiencing.

Victoria's coldest-ever Dec. 13 came in 1926 when a snappy 19.3 was recorded, so today's weather doesn't fall into the outstanding category.

Weatherman Al McQuarrie says if we were able to climb to 30,000 feet we'd find frigid northerlies roaring over Victoria at 150 miles per hour, which would be something to talk about.

Ottawa Asks New Design Of Causeway

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson said today "there is no thought of scrapping the Prince Edward Island crossing project."

He confirmed the project would be carried through after a meeting with Alexander Campbell, the P.E.I. premier.

"Revenue Minister Benson told the House of Commons on Dec. 7 that the federal government would keep its commitment to the people of Prince Edward Island," the prime minister said in a statement following the meeting.

"I now confirm what he said. "We intend to proceed with the project. In fact, we are busy on it now."

Premier Campbell told reporters after the meeting that a new design of the crossing will take a few months. After that at least 10 months would be required for completion of a final design and calling of tenders.

Mr. Pearson said that Col. Edward Churchill, a top engineer with Expo 67, now is actively directing a full review of the plans submitted by Northumberland Consultants Ltd. of Montreal for the causeway that would extend across the Northumberland Strait between P.E.I. and New Brunswick.

"We believe that the people of P.E.I. want us to honor our commitment in the most efficient and practical way," the prime minister said.

"I have asked Col. Churchill that there be no delay in completing a thorough review of the plans and this review is proceeding at full pace."

U.K. Seeks Arms Sale

Korean Court Orders Death For Teachers

SEOUL (Reuters) — Two South Korean intellectuals were sentenced to death and a noted composer was sentenced to life imprisonment here today on charges of spying for North Korea.

They were key figures in a case that sparked a major dispute between West Germany and South Korea after Korean security agents brought back a number of accused men from Western Europe.

The Seoul criminal court ordered the death penalty for Chung Kyu-myujg, 39, a physicist at Frankfurt University, and Cho Yung-su, 34, a former Seoul college professor.

Composer Sang-yun I, 50, was sentenced to life in prison.

The men were among 34 defendants who went on trial Nov. 9. Sixteen were brought back from Western countries.

indicating it would not sign a document which would reduce French powers to approach the Soviet Union independently and without prior consultations within the NATO body.

Martin seemed to straddle both sides of the controversy by saying that while bilateral approaches seem best at the moment, "political activities of the alliance will be all the more effective if there is full and timely consultation on multilateral proposals and on national policies and approaches as they develop."

The Canadian government is seeking to promote closer relations with France despite President de Gaulle's open support for separatism in Quebec, a position which Prime Minister Pearson has described as unacceptable and intolerable.

Owner Insisted Trespassing Charge Be Laid

H. K. Lees, of 4003 Bow Road, was fishing on a lake near Ganges on Saltspring Island. They stopped to dig worms in the bank of a creek which turned out to be private property.

Prosecutor Cory Stolte told the court "they left immediately when told to do so, but the owner insisted on laying this charge."

Recount Asked By Defeated Councillor

Oak Bay councillor W. J. Wade, defeated in a bid for re-election Saturday by 19 votes, has asked for a recount.

He made application to returning officer E. H. Hart this morning. His decision, he said, was reached at the urging of friends.

Coun. Wade, who had been seeking a fourth term, was edged out by a political newcomer, Dr. J. Scott Wallace who polled 3,064 compared to Mr. Wade's 3,045.

Mr. Hart said the recount, not a judicial recount but conducted under jurisdiction of the returning officer, will start at 8:30 a.m. Thursday.

Dam Burst Kills 18

WARSAW (UPI) — Tons of mud and water swept through five villages in southwest Poland today when the dam of a copper mine sedimentation basin burst near Iwiny in the Wroclaw area, the Polish news agency Pap reported. Pap said at least 18 persons were killed and 15 seriously injured by the rush of mud and water, which wrecked 14 cars of a train, sweeping them 100 yards from the track.

GOING TO OTTAWA

Bennett Wants Taxing Powers

Premier Bennett will attend Prime Minister Pearson's conference on the Canadian constitution to demand abolition of the tax-rental agreements.

He told reporters Monday that he will press his proposals of the past couple of years that 100 per cent of the income tax be returned to the provinces.

Mr. Bennett did not say whether his decision to attend was influenced by severe criticism of his refusal to attend the Confederation of Tomorrow conference last month or this week's federal-provincial housing conference in Ottawa.

But he will go even though the constitutional conference apparently will take place in the first week of February which whill force him to leave the Legislature while it is in session.

BACK FOR BUDGET

He would not reveal the as-yet-unannounced dates of the conference but said he would be back in time to deliver his budget speech Feb. 9.

He said Attorney-General Robert Bonner will be government leader during his absence from the session.

Mr. Bennett said he will take only his deputy finance minister Gerald Bryson to the constitutional conference "and we will see (federal finance minister) Mitchell Sharp while we're in Ottawa."

The premier said both his talks with Mr. Sharp and the outcome of the constitutional conference could result in last-minute changes to his own budget speech.

He said he would press for return of income taxing powers — in effect turning the constitutional clock back to the 1930s — while commenting on this week's housing conference in Ottawa.

AGREES WITH PM

"I couldn't agree more," said the premier when asked to comment on Prime Minister Pearson's statement Monday that long-range urban development should properly come from provincial and municipal tax revenues rather than federal coffers.

"All that the federal government must do now is get out of the province's field of direct taxation," Mr. Bennett said.

"And I thank the prime minister for that belated admission."

Mr. Bennett said B.C. briefs to federal-provincial fiscal conferences have consistently taken the position that revenue from direct taxation, mainly income and corporation taxes, should belong to the provinces.

The provinces only gave up these sources of tax revenue to the federal government during a wartime emergency and have never received more than a share of them in the postwar years, he said.

DUCKS QUESTIONS

Earlier, Mr. Bennett refused to answer questions from newsmen who sought to find out what action would be taken by the B.C. Housing Management Commission created by the cabinet on Friday.

When pressed on what would be done in the field of public housing, and when, the premier said he would not answer "such negative questions."

Mr. Bennett indicated British Columbians will have to wait until the next session of the legislature, opening Jan. 25, to learn in detail what the commission will try to do to alleviate the province's housing shortage.

Mr. Bennett was the only provincial premier not in attendance at this week's federal-provincial housing conference in Ottawa.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Clear skies and cold air covered most of the province Tuesday night as temperatures dropped to well below zero in the central and northern interior. Germansens Landing reported 20 below overnight while Prince George recorded a minimum of eight below.

The centre of high pressure and cold air is now over the Prince George area and will continue moving slowly southeastward. This will keep clear skies and cold air over southern B.C. through Thursday. A Pacific disturbance moving into the Gulf of Alaska will spread cloud into the north coast region tonight and into the central interior Thursday.

475,000 IN VIETNAM

Security Wraps Off Huge Troop Transfer

SAIGON (AP) — The biggest airlift of the Vietnam war pushed U.S. troop strength in South Vietnam to about 475,000 today—more than the peak of 472,800 Americans in the Korean War at its height 14 years ago.

The U.S. command took the security wraps off the transfer from the United States of two more brigades of the U.S. 101st Airborne Division. About 7,000 of the paratroops have been flown across the Pacific since Nov. 17 and another 3,000 are due by Dec. 29.

The 101st commander, Maj.-Gen. Olinto M. Barsanti, snapped a salute on his arrival today at Bien Hao Air Base and reported to Gen. William C. Westmoreland: "The 101st Airborne Division is present for combat in Vietnam."

Westmoreland, now commander of all U.S. troops in Vietnam, was 101st Airborne's commander from 1958 to 1960. The division's 1st Brigade has been in Vietnam since July, 1965.

BIGGEST AIRLIFT

When completed, the airlift will have involved 373 trans-Pacific flights, which after discharging men and supplies generally took off within 15 minutes on the 9,783-mile flight back to 101st Division Headquarters at Fort Campbell, Ky.

U.S. spokesmen said the airlift is the longest and largest ever staged direct from the United States to Southeast Asia "and gave us an excellent opportunity to test our airlift capabilities."

The airlift of the two brigades gave Westmoreland the additional manpower about six weeks ahead of schedule. President Johnson has promised 525,000 men by early next year.

The U.S. command also removed the wraps today from a new American infantry operation 28 miles northeast of Saigon and said 52 Communist troops had been killed in six days. Total U.S. losses for the period were put at two dead and 25 wounded.

The multi-battalion search-and-destroy operation by units of the 25th Infantry Division is aimed at supporting revolutionary development-pacification-programs in the area and denying the rice harvest to the Communists.

U.S. LIKES US BETTER SINCE EXPO

PRINCETON, N.J. (UPI) — A Gallup Poll released today indicates Canada and Israel are held in higher regard among Americans than they were a year ago.

Canada's Expo '67 was cited as responsible for the high rating.

Israel's performance in the Middle East war earned that nation a "highly favorable" rating from 23 per cent of those polled. Last year only 13 per cent gave Israel such a rating.

Civilian Death Toll Tops Military

SAIGON (AP)—Government hospital statistics indicate that the war's toll of civilians in South Vietnam this year may reach 76,000 wounded and 24,000 killed or dying of wounds.

These estimated deaths from war-related causes will exceed the expected total of more than 19,000 American and South Vietnamese military combat deaths during 1967. American combat losses for the first 11 months were 8,001 killed while Vietnamese military fatalities totalled 9,566.

The South Vietnamese government does not maintain accurate statistics on civilian war casualties. The estimates above are based on monthly reports that the ministry of health has been compiling since Jan. 1 from hospitals throughout the country.

The system of tabulating civilian casualties collapsed with the overthrow of the Ngo Dinh Diem regime in 1963. The hospital reports compiled this year give public health officials the first up-to-date measure of the war's cost to South Vietnam's 14,500,000 civilians.

Col. William H. Moncrief Jr., assistant U.S. director for public health, said civilians admitted to hospitals for war wounds probably represent half those wounded. Of the 50 per cent not reaching hospitals, 30 per cent generally would suffer minor wounds and 20 per cent would be killed, he estimated. Hospital medical staffs are unable to save the lives of 10 to 12 per cent of those admitted.

STUDY GIVEN UP

Saigon's ministry of health tried last February to determine, by the type of wound, whether civilians were the victims of allied or Viet Cong actions. The study was given up because of inadequate resources, Moncrief said.

A survey of doctors in the field gave this estimate: 40 per cent attributed to Viet Cong terror raids, booby traps or mines; 30 per cent to non-Communist artillery and air; 30 per cent to small-arms fire, mortar rounds and other weapons used in direct engagements.

The government keeps statistics on the number of civilians—including national policemen—killed and wounded by Viet Cong terrorists. As of Dec. 2, the terrorists had killed 3,487 civilians, wounded 6,861 and kidnapped 4,487. These figures do not include some 200 Montagnards killed last week when guerrillas attacked the hamlet of Dakson.

Deferred Deterrent

THE NORTH ATLANTIC Treaty Organization has come up with a new defensive policy—a direct departure from the Dulles principle of instant massive retaliation which has governed NATO strategy for the past ten years. The fact is, however, that massive retaliation has not been discarded, it has merely been pushed into the wings of the strategical theatre of war.

So long as there are nuclear armaments, the background threat of their utilization must constitute potential massive retaliation. What has happened in NATO is that instead of being immediate and automatic, the rain of nuclear missiles on an offending state will be deferred until orthodox means of defence have been employed. The deferment could be very brief.

Under the new policy, Soviet aggression against western Europe would be countered at first with a graduated response. The all-out blow would be withheld, and the conventional attack would be met with conventional defence. This would at least give time to assess the real intentions of the aggressor and perhaps initiate peace overtures. It could lead to a debilitating war of attrition, largely by Second World War weapons, such as is seen today in Vietnam. The latter development would be much less likely, however, in the case of an invasion of Europe. The escalation would probably be much more rapid and the showdown much quicker in arriving.

As a measure to avoid or at least delay nuclear war, the new policy has merit. But to the European allies of NATO it will seem to be confirmation of their fears that in the event of European invasion the United States would hesitate to use its exclusively held nuclear armament since employment of such missiles would instantly invite trans-Atlantic nuclear rockets from Russia. Possibility of such a delay has long been firmly denied by the United States, but the question constantly recurs, particularly since NATO's nuclear armament lies almost wholly within United States control.

The plan to use short-range nuclear missiles as a first resort if conventional defences failed, with this to be followed if necessary by long-range weapons, offers little on either side of the balance. In European eyes, it might weaken the deterrence against invasion; as regards the United States it would be an open invitation for Russia to escalate to the next stage.

In total, the new NATO policy appears to be less a plan to meet a danger than a reflection of the belief that the danger — invasion by the Soviet Union—is a greatly diminished possibility. If it represents also an indication to Moscow that all-out nuclear warfare is one step removed from possibility, it may have a calming influence on the general international situation. But the intercontinental rockets of both nations still stand in their silos ready for instant launching. Printed escalation schedules for their use do not get around that fact.

Still Under Pressure

A LITTLE MORE THAN THREE weeks after Britain devalued the pound it is again under attack—the dollar indirectly, as well, since the demand for gold has boomed up again. International financial experts point to a number of reasons for the renewed assault: uncertainty over the meaning of the emergency meeting of the Bank of International Settlement at Basle, more French manoeuvring to raise the price of gold, lack of confidence in Britain's ability to improve its situation despite the devaluation.

In all likelihood it is a combination of these factors which has set off the new wave of speculation, but loss of confidence in both sterling and the dollar is probably the most critical. In West Germany in particular the conviction is growing that the British devaluation was an attempt to escape from, rather than face up to, their problems; and that the United States must deal with its balance of payments problem before confidence in the dollar can be restored.

The influential newspaper Die Zeit, for example, commenting on Prime Minister Wilson's ostensible reason for devaluation—speculation against the pound after failure to obtain sufficient loan guarantees—says this is nonsense. It claims the problem was that with its foreign reserves run down to a dangerous level again, Britain escalated its demands for loans, from $1 billion to $2 billion and finally to $5 billion, and this was finally too much for the creditor nations.

So far as the dollar is concerned, Dr. Otmar Emminger, director of West Germany's central bank, the Bundesbank, said publicly last week that as long as the American deficit continues, "American statements about maintaining the gold parity of the dollar and the full convertibility of the dollar are not going to be credible." The problem with the dollar, as with the pound, is not speculators but a possibility of weakness which forces the speculators—who are, after all, trying to protect their own position—to exchange their dollars and pounds for gold.

The Europeans, with the exception of France, have rallied round the dollar and the pound twice now within three weeks. But if the feeling persists in European circles that the British cannot move quickly to get back on their feet, and if there is no indication that the United States is willing to take drastic steps to curb inflationary demands and to hold down the outflow of capital, attempts to bolster the dollar and the pound may run into still heavier opposition.

Where's the Hitch?

SOUTHERN VANCOUVER ISland Indians have compiled an emphatic brief supporting their claims for a better deal for their people. The document, implying an analogy between the Watts and Detroit riots and what could happen in Canada if the Indians are denied equality with non-Indians, is probably overly dramatic. And, in the light of economies now being effected in Ottawa, the suggestion that the Hawthorn report recommendations be implemented is something less than realistic.

At the same time, when the brief states that "only 26 Indian students are attending university in this province" and notes that this represents a figure of one at university for every 1,600 Indians, one of the main inequalities among our residents becomes glaringly apparent.

This is a situation reportedly existing in spite of pronouncements by the federal department of Indian affairs to the effect that Ottawa is ready to assist Indian students to progress as far as they can in education. The explanation may lie in a lack of sufficient encouragement to Indians to continue through secondary school and so prepare themselves for university entrance. Or it may lie in the adverse economics of the home — the potential student may be required to help out with domestic finances. But if Indians want higher education and the government wants them to acquire it, there should be a full-scale attack on whatever it is that is preventing results.

Spending: Eliminated or Postponed?

THERE is great risk for a politician in proving too much. Consider the case of Mr. Benson, president of the treasury board, keeper of the piggy banks and fairy godfather of the civil service who, on Thursday evening, delivered his long-awaited speech on the so-called estimates for 1968-69. Either Mr. Benson was serious or else he was entertaining the country with another of his dazzling exhibitions of sleight-of-hand. One must hope that the latter is the proper interpretation. For only the most malicious, suspicious and nasty-minded observers will willingly believe that the government earlier this year was as reckless and irresponsible as Mr. Benson's case now requires us to believe.

Western

If there has been the saving of a billion or more reported by the president of the treasury board, then we must necessarily believe that the original figures were not merely gleams in the eyes of deputy ministers but the actual spending intentions of a government which last year increased expenditures by an incredible 13.7 per cent and has been expanding the public service at the rate of 1,000 a month.

Further Plans

What were the further serious plans? According to Mr. Benson, the government — until it was halted by financial crisis — proposed to boost expenditures by an additional $2,800 million in one year. This would have been an increase of 18.5 per cent. At the same time staff would have been increased by a minimum of 16,000 (actually more because, as Mr. Benson has explained, the permissible increase to 5,000 does not include additions to the staff of crown corporations).

In matters of statistics, the president of the treasury board has long since demonstrated that he is the wonderful wizard of Ottawa. It is interesting to observe that, in measuring the economy achievement, he compares his forward estimate for 1968-69 with Mr. Sharp's original budget estimate for this year. But when he wishes to minimize the anticipated growth in expenditures, he does a quick switch and compares the projected spending with Mr. Sharp's revised estimate — put forward when the government had blown an additional $200 million. By this ingenious method, a bit more than 6 per cent becomes "barely 4 per cent" and the trick is achieved without even pushing a button on a computer.

There are limits to man's inhumanity to man and these should restrain us from taking Mr. Benson's overall case too seriously. But without doubt some of the minister's 50-odd economies are real, a number sacrificial, a few long overdue reforms, and many unwelcome restraints on colleagues who have been temporarily forbidden to do what comes naturally in these expansionist days.

CBC Vagueness

Some questions arise. Thus we are told that the capital budget of the CBC is being cut back by $5 million to $25 million. As for the operating budget — about $133 million this year, not counting the special centennial expenses — the request has been trimmed by $11 million and the corporation is to be responsible for international broadcasting (about $3.8 million this year). But what was the $11 million trimmed from and is the new budget down from 1967-68? These are relevant questions but instead of answering them, Mr. Benson bristled with indignation. Why?

We find that the CBC originally asked for $57 million on capital, which would have meant an increase of 90 per cent over the present year. If this is the measure of the realism of estimates originally submitted, Mr. Benson may be far less of a monster than we might otherwise suppose. How much blood was actually shed and how much water?

More generally, there are two points to be made. When a program is eliminated there is not only a present but also a future saving. Obviously this is not true of deferments. Apart from the Dominion Coal Board, whose functions are transferred partly to the new Cape Breton Development Corporation, partly to energy, mines and resources, nothing much is being scrapped.

Mr. Benson's list fairly bulges, however, with deferments and postponements.

This is like compressing a coil spring in government. We may be reasonably sure that, once the season of stringency has passed, ministers and their deputies will be back to the treasury board arguing that there is a moral obligation to grant what they previously were denied. This applies even to the Northumberland causeway, for though a drastic escalation in estimated costs has forced deferment and thorough review, Mr. Benson has given a new pledge that the government will honor its commitments. Watch government expenditures when the spring is released.

Disregarding Priorities

Mr. Benson's harrowing account leaves the impression that the departments have been induced to economize on something like a fair shares basis. Mr. Hellyer will have to get along for a year without his new transport headquarters, Mr. McIlraith without his underground parking garage and Mr. Greene without his hog and lamb premium payments. But not all government departments and government services are equally important. While this approach may have the political value of equalizing disgruntlement in cabinet, it seems far removed from any serious concept of priorities.

It is surely sensible that the CBC should be required to defer further expansion of color television facilities; that Mr. Cote should reduce by half his demand for small winter works post offices and that the national capital commission should be told, after its banner centennial year, to defer further driveway construction in the Ottawa area. But it seems wholly irresponsible, in the light of recent reports, to require Mr. Laing to cut back on his Indian programs, particularly the provision of schools for Indian children. By what exercise on his computers can Mr. Benson justify this?

By Hansard measurement, Mr. Benson's list is impressive since it runs to 51 items. But not all of these items have the bite of that affecting Indian children. How much is being saved, how much unemployment created, by disbanding the special planning secretariat within the privy council office? There does not seem to be an item for this in the present estimates.

Little Effect on Staff

Again it was interesting to learn on Thursday that the active promotion of the sale of Canadian government annuities is to be discontinued and the sales staff disbanded. But we had a return about this on Wednesday. It said; "The decision to discontinue promotion of the sale of annuities will have little effect on the head office staff (of 145). The occupants of any head office positions which may become redundant can be absorbed elsewhere in the department."

So they are safe. What about the sales officers (52) who are not public servants? Some will become public servants to staff seven regional service offices; some will be pensioned; and a few will have to seek other employment. We save on the few but it doesn't sound like a slaughter.

However, it is important that the government's educational campaign, kicked off with Mr. Benson's message, should succeed for otherwise, inflation will continue to rage and when the ministers come back with their deferred demands and those which have developed in the meantime, the costs of everything will have soared even further. We must at least make an effort to be impressed by Mr. Benson because the alternative is too horrible to contemplate.

Hanoi on New Tack

By JOSEPH ALSOP
From Washington

THERE are a lot of interesting and curious facts behind last week's flurry over supposed contacts between Americans and representatives of Hanoi's puppets in South Vietnam, the so-called National Liberation Front.

Alsop

To begin at the beginning, it is a characteristic Communist tactic to make a final desperate effort, at no matter what cost, to gain additional advantages just before going to the table or signing a cease-fire. In Korea, for example, the biggest single Chinese-North Korean offensive of the entire war was launched, at a cost of many thousands of men, just one month before the cease-fire in 1953. Here, beyond question, the aim was to change the truce-lines.

Signs in Vietnam

This precedent is relevant at the moment, because it is beginning to appear that the North Vietnamese are trying the same sort of thing in Vietnam. The first sign was the battle at Locninh, where the enemy commanders all but condemned their own men to death, by hundreds at a time and to no apparent purpose.

The long fight at Dakto showed better enemy leadership than the Locninh battle, but it shared with Locninh the same puzzling characteristic. In brief, the Iadrang battle in October, 1965, was the last time when the enemy voluntarily sustained a hard fight over many days. From the Iadrang until Lochninh, the other side could always be counted on to break contact, unless absolutely cornered, after no more than 18 hours' fighting. The reversion to the old tactics after two whole years is both radical and highly significant.

In addition, there is more and more evidence that the right interpretation of Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap's leviathan strategy paper of last September is the second one—which was not the initial interpretation of the Saigon analysts or of this reporter. In other words, it appears that the Hanoi war-planners have decided to send large elements of their home army into the fighting in the South.

Moving South

Signs of movement by at least one North Vietnamese division, and perhaps by two divisions, have by now been observed. At least one new regiment of North Vietnamese regular troops is known to have reached Tchepone, in the lower Laos panhandle.

Committing the home army in this manner is the Hanoi war-planners' equivalent of spending capital for a hard-pressed family. Yet it seems rather clear, by now, that they do indeed intend to spend their manpower capital in further fighting like that at Locninh and Dakto. Gen. Westmoreland expects this and is prepared for it.

Those are the facts on one side of the coin. On the other side of the coin are certain political facts which have now taken on added importance. They begin with the rather obscure publication, just before the Vietnamese election, of a new NLF political platform. The platform's significant passage was a long call for coalition government, going much further than anything seen before.

Stressing NFL Platform

Little attention was paid to the NLF platform when it was published, because so little propaganda noise accompanied it. Soon thereafter, however, the usual Eastern European diplomats began approaching their American opposite numbers in the usual manner, to say that the NLF platform was a most important document, to which far too little attention had been paid.

In a quiet way, Moscow joined this chorus. In the same Hungarian report revealing Ho Chi Minh's alleged illness, there were also strikingly interesting passages on the tone being taken by Pham Van Dong and other Hanoi personalities. These too pointed towards the NLF platform.

Finally, there has been a whole series of dim but significant signs of an attempt to divide the northern and the southern wars—to put the northern bombing in one box, in short, and to put in quite another box the actual fighting in South Vietnam. Doing this would of course serve to use Hanoi's puppets in the NLF as the active agents of a negotiating manoeuvre.

Spring Manoeuvre

By now, the betting on some such manoeuvre in the spring or early summer is beginning to approach even odds, either way, in the very small circle of people who know the real facts. It is very hard indeed, it must be admitted, to judge which way to bet. "Against," is perhaps the wise answer; yet the possibility of a negotiating manoeuvre keyed to a cry for coalition and a settlement "among southerners" most emphatically cannot be ruled out any longer.

The reason this is possible, it must be added, is that Hanoi is in a mess. If you think you are succeeding in a war, you go on as before, instead of taking radical new courses, as now seems to be happening. But the U.S. government is also likely to be in a mess if this manoeuvre is in fact attempted by Hanoi.

The Americanization Of Thailand Goes On

By STANLEY KARNOW
The Washington Post

SAKON NAKORN — Once a drowsy little market town, this shabby provincial capital has expanded into the busy centre of escalating efforts to combat the Communist insurrection that has nagged northeast Thailand for years.

Army trucks bounce down its potholed streets and helicopters cruise overhead as U.S. bulldozers and graders push fresh roads into outlying villages. There are new bars, dance halls and sleazy motels catering to the military trade, while restaurants, adapting to American tastes, serve hamburgers and Oriental-style western omelets.

The growing number of Thai troops visible here, coupled with a sharp proliferation of Americans now in the area, seems symptomatic of trends that disturb counter-insurgency specialists working to solve the deeper causes of the region's simmering insecurity.

On the one hand, despite official U.S. attempts to play down the American role in the effort against the insurgents, the operation is showing signs of becoming increasingly Americanized.

At the same time, the Bangkok regime's recent move to put the seven northeastern provinces under army rule—downgrading civilian and police authority in the process—appears to augur a narrower military approach to the problem.

One danger in these trends, experts point out, is that the Thais may be tempted, as the South Vietnamese were, to let Americans handle the more tedious counterinsurgent tasks. Another danger is that the patient, surgical techniques essential in a meaningful offensive against insurgents may, as in South Vietnam, be discarded in favor of less effective conventional methods.

Most of the $60 million in annual U.S. economic aid to Thailand is earmarked for this region. The result is that the American presence here, while microscopic by Vietnam standards, has nevertheless broadened considerably within the past year.

There are Agency for International Development civilians and U.S. Army Engineer units separately building roads, American medical teams touring villages and a collection of U.S. sanitation, agriculture and propaganda specialists here. The area also abounds in intelligence operatives, police advisers, military instructors and guerrilla warfare experts as well as social anthropologists and political scientists on defence department contracts.

PREMIER THANOM

the 500-mile-long Mekong River border against Communist infiltration from Laos by means of radar, computers and other electronic devices.

While some Americans here advocate more projects, others point to waste, inefficiency and even friction caused by the duplication and lack of co-ordination among rival U.S. units.

In addition to several Thai groups, for example, the U.S. air force and AID run different medical teams that studiously avoid each other as they roam the countryside. Similarly, the Thai government, AID and a variety of private American companies are reportedly overlapping their efforts in livestock and agricultural experiments.

Along with the drift toward Americanization, a mounting military emphasis on the counter-insurgency effort concerns specialists. Since October, when the army assumed control of the northeast, this emphasis has been reflected in a new proclamation of martial law and in sweeping jungle operations against the Communist guerrillas.

While martial law is considered vital for swift action, experts primarily concerned with winning peasant loyalty fear that it may be used indiscriminately to conscript labor or relocate populations, thereby alienating local sympathies.

Army sweeps are fruitless, these experts argue, unless guerrillas can be prevented from blending into villages near their jungle bases. There, they contend, attention must be directed mainly at creating a credible, popular pro-government presence in the villages.

After much delay, Bangkok initiated plans last summer to strengthen village security. So far, however, fewer than 300 volunteers have been trained for the self-defence units designed to protect the 765 villages in this province of a half-million people.

A more ambitious program, due to begin soon with U.S. financing, aims at training 9,000 village security volunteers within the next two years. Whether this scheme makes any headway may depend on how much real support it receives from Premier Thanom Kittikachorn and his powerful deputy, Gen. Praphas Charusathien, who is jointly minister of the interior and the armed forces' commander-in-chief.

At weekly press conferences, Thanom and Praphas speak airily on the insurgency. Praphas' statements lately have ranged from the announcement of a Chinese invasion to revelations of a Thai Communist red guard movement in the northeast. He refers frequently to Communist helicopters which have never been seen.

Neither of the Thai leaders nor their cabinet members have visited the insurgent northeast in more than a year. In a recent official Thai-American analysis, failures in that area were strongly attributed to "a lack of comprehension . . . on the part of top levels of the Royal Thai government."

At the moment, Bangkok's interest is more fixed on Vietnam and official Thai thinking seems to be that if the United States wins the northeast problem will evaporate. If the United States loses, Thai leaders believe they can accommodate however Southeast Asia swings.

This potential flexibility may eventually prove realistic. For the present, this country's good fortune appears to be that its Communist guerrillas are no more competent in waging an insurgency than its government is in fighting them.

Will Bonn Realize It Can't Represent All German People?

By NEAL ASCHERSON

BERLIN — The man who is supposed to be denying that Germany is divided has come to the conclusion that there are two German states after all.

Herr Wilhelm Wolfgang Schuetz, acting director of the "Indivisible Germany Foundation," has written a memorandum which suggests official (not international) relations between the two Germanies, says that West Germany's claim to represent all Germans has lost any sense it ever had, and calls it a "German and an international interest" that East Germany should have proper relations with all other states.

Coming from this quarter, his ideas have provoked one of those noisy and exaggerated storms of protest in Bonn which always leave behind a suspicion that the protesters are all too well aware of the force of the arguments they attack.

Chancellor Kiesinger has rejected Herr Schuetz's plans, the Christian Democrats say they are "so wrong that even their opposite would not be right" (a strikingly defensive remark, if one looks closely at it), and one CDU politician calls them "the expression of hysteria."

Cooked Up

Schemes to throw Schuetz out of the foundation are being hastily cooked up.

That is the reaction of the government's right-wing. But the Social Democrats, the CDU's partners in the Grand Coalition, have not yet spoken. And a section of the liberal press has firmly come to the defence of Schuetz. The chance has been taken to ask Kiesinger squarely whether his German policy is not so contradictory as to be an actual danger.

The Foundation used to be—and in its membership still is—a semi-official ginger-group. It is devoted to the conventional arguments, that East Germany is a "zone" with no existence as a state, that any move towards recognition or contact would widen the division, and that the Bonn government has the right to represent not only its own citizens but all the inhabitants of East Germany.

This policy—which was Adenauer's policy — is offered as the straight and narrow path towards reunification.

Every passing year has made it more obvious that this path leads into the wilderness. It belongs to the high years of the Cold War, when it was still hoped that Western military strength would by persuasion or force oblige the Russians to abandon their positions beyond the Elbe.

KONRAD ADENAUER
. . . his policy attacked

Today, the status quo in Europe is in practice accepted by almost all Germany's neighbors. East Germany has become a thriving and solidly-based industrial country, and even those East Germans who resent their own leaders have come to regard Bonn's claim to speak for them as absurd and harmful.

When Kiesinger became chancellor, he declared that "relaxing the tension between the two parts of Germany" would be one of his highest aims. He asked what could be done to relieve the sufferings caused by partition.

Set Precedent

To this end, he embarked on a correspondence with Herr Willy Stoph, the East German prime minister, a precedent which has been followed by several of his ministers. He encouraged industry to take part in the Leipzig Fairs in East Germany, and improved credits across the border.

So far, these efforts have had little result. For reasons which are not clear, but which may well have to do with uncertainty about the effects of the Sino-Soviet split upon Russian policy, the East Germans have been content to counter these letters with demands for total diplomatic recognition and fundamental changes in West Germany's defence policy.

It is felt that there is now little chance of progress, but critics of the government—and many Social Democrats—are afraid that this setback may become an excuse for complacency. To send the letter, one Munich daily paper remarks, was "the least that Kiesinger could do."

Whatever one thinks of the current East German tactic of asking for everything at once or nothing, many West Germans feel they are justified in asking for more information about West German intentions. Other parties are involved.

Poland is still waiting to know for sure whether Bonn will accept the Oder-Neisse border. And not only the Soviet Union wants to know whether Bonn still seriously aims for the old frontiers of 1937. East Germany must know whether a program of official contacts is meant to be a genuine acceptance of the existence of a second German state or a way to undermine it.

CHANCELLOR KIESINGER

Benevolent hints that nobody will get hurt are not enough. There are some things which are so important that they have to be written out in black and white.

One paper here states that Schuetz's only crime is to have taken the chancellor's intentions seriously. Meanwhile, an opinion poll has produced some significant results. Ninety per cent favored official contacts with East Germany; just over half thought that East Germany would have to be recognized one day; and 53 per cent favored recognizing the Oder-Neisse line, if it would improve relations with the East.

The Deep, Wide Chasm Between Two Cultures

By DOUGLAS FISHER and HARRY S. CROWE

(Mr. Crowe is associate professor of history at Atkinson College, York University. Mr. Fisher, a former NDP MP, lectures in Canadian government at Carleton University.

The debate over the Laurendeau-Dunton Report must not cause us to lose sight of the basic fact that the Bi-Bi Commission has presented us with recommendations to meet only half of the Confederation crisis. The language and culture aspect of the problem, mainly the adjustments beyond the borders of Quebec, may well be the place to begin. And every accomplishment here will surely reduce some of the heat in the other boiler. But the other one is the one which might explode—and this is the cauldron of Quebec.

Fisher

To help provide a little perspective and to help rule out of serious discussion those implausible people like Mayor Juba, of Winnipeg, and B.C. NDP leader, Robert Strachan, who will not accept the idea that the French fact is here to stay, let us examine one of the dimensions of the "Quebec fact."

Crowe

Less than two months ago the constitutional committee of the Quebec Liberal Party presented to the party convention a hefty document on the state of Ottawa-Quebec relations. The disposition of the various parts of the document in the charged political atmosphere which followed Rene Levesque's declaration for independence is not as important as the fact the document appeared.

The chairman of the committee was an outstanding constitutional lawyer and former Lesage cabinet member, Paul Gerin-Lajoie. Other committee members were lawyers and scholars. The document argues in support of a "new federalism" — a future for Quebec inside Confederation — and against separatism, and yet, at the same time, it is a most disturbing revelation of the gulf between Canadians in Quebec and Canadians elsewhere.

First of all there is not much more than a perfunctory nod in the direction of the proposition that Quebeckers are Canadians. But perhaps we should be grateful for any crumbs here. And these words do appear:

"We are aware of the bonds, the complementary activities, the countless economic ties in which all Canadians have learned to live and which constitute the background of the Canadian venture. As some people have rightly pointed out, nothing forces us to demolish this common venture; on the contrary, everything demands that both parties should maintain its structure."

What is Canada, our home and native land? It is a "venture," a "structure," and the constitutional committee of the Liberal party of the province of Quebec is aware of its existence!

There is no warmth. There is no generosity. These are two Anglo-Saxon attributes which have been well absorbed in 200 years of contact. But what there is, and let us state it boldly, is an abysmal ignorance of our history, including our legal history.

The document argues at length for the right of Quebec to determine its own constitution. This is a "right" arising somehow out of the fact of survival to this point of history. What utter nonsense! It is a right given to all provinces by Section 92 of the British North America Act, which begins as follows:

"In each province the legislature may exclusively make laws in relation to matters within the classes of subjects next hereinafter enumerated, that is to say:—

"1. The amendment from time to time, notwithstanding anything in this Act, of the constitution of the province, except as regards the office of Lieutenant Governor."

At another point the Liberal document states: "It is . . . through interpretations of the 1867 text (of the BNA Act) by the courts — the British Privy Council and the Canadian Supreme Court — that the central government has been able to invade progressively spheres of activity that should belong to Quebec."

That is a fairly precise statement of the exact opposite of what happened to the BNA Act as a result of court interpretation.

Again, the BNA Act is described in a cavalier way as "the British law of 1867" in a context which implies that it was not a Canadian product. Are the Charlottetown and Quebec Conferences to be expunged from our history texts and from our memories? Well, it is one step ahead of Le Grand Charles who has just derided it as the act of the "British Queen."

And also we are told that in 1867 the "State of Quebec" came into existence. Our copy of the British North American Act reads (Section 5): "The part which formerly constituted the Province of Lower Canada shall constitute the Province of Quebec." The legislature of the Province of Quebec may well bring into existence in 1967 the State of Quebec. But the BNA Act certainly did not do so.

So this committee declares against separatism and in the process shows that the chasm between our two cultures is wide and deep. What is proposed for the "new federalism"? Item by item, most of the new powers urged for Quebec could be seriously discussed. There is a danger these days in taking that position. A point declared open for discussion in the Toronto press on Monday becomes a point conceded in the Montreal press by Friday.

The net effect of all the items in just this one list might be quite another proposition. Somewhere along the line special status would become impossible status. But as the alternative is clear and unpalatable, an acceptance of defeat after 200 years of association, we must face up to the pressing demands for an altered form of federalism.

So as we begin to act on the Bi-Bi front, let us begin to negotiate on the federalism front.

THE GALLUP POLL

Voters Not Yet Certain That Stanfield Will Do

By The Canadian Institute of Public Opinion

Robert Stanfield has yet to prove himself with a majority of the voters—first, that he can win more votes for the party; second, that he can unite the Conservatives.

While Mr. Stanfield's TV image won approval across the country (five to one in favor), his weakest area is in the West, where 38% say he will unite the party and 23% feel he will not. Another weakness in Mr. Stanfield's future is indecision in Quebec. More than five in ten (51%) of Quebeckers cannot say whether or not he can unite the Conservative party.

The question: "Some people think one of Mr. Stanfield's big responsibilities will be to unite the Conservative party. Do you yourself think he will be able to do this successfully, or not?"

'Jack Frost Has Been' Opening Gates of Fancy

By ART STOTT

We looked out from the breakfast table at a lawn glistening white in December's early morning light and the lady of the house said: "Jack Frost has been."

For us, the short statement has a special, evocative impact. This was the phrase which brought the children, when they were young, scampering from warm beds to press their noses against the window and gaze at a familiar scene transformed by the magic of a character very real to them.

Stott

Jack Frost was a personality with a difference to the small ones. They could see what he had done. They had no occasion to doubt that the coating on roofs, on grass and on the road was anything but his work. And the evidence before them set their fancies soaring.

Jack Frost was a friend of Santa and so a very special person. He also provided the materials from which slides were made and he created the ice on ponds over which they could drag their sleds. Some of the characters which peopled their fairy tales might seem nebuluous, individuals to be taken on faith alone. But you could see where Jack Frost had been.

At the breakfast table we pictured the children of those children who were probably looking out on the whitened landscape and, big-eyed, telling their parents about the miracle of Jack Frost who came in the night and painted the part of the world they could see. The story and the imaginings it releases are part of the continuity of things for us—threads in the strand of family cohesion which runs through the fabric of change.

There is less joy now in the sight of hoar frost seen through eyes that are growing old. There is less resilient appreciation for the chill that will seep through coats and sweaters protecting flesh and bones that are not so young. Yet there is a remembered exhilaration in the prospect of ice on the ponds and perhaps skating parties to come.

I watched a boy by a pond in the depression of a demolished house foundation in the first days of frost, digging his heels into the thin crust of ice, testing, seeing how thick the wafer-thin cover had grown in the darkness. It was an action that seemed as normal as breathing.

At this age, we used to climb the south side of Gonzales hill to the point where native rock enclosed a shallow pool by the edge of Peacock Plain. There we dug in our heels and measured ice-thickness, coming day after day as the weather grew cooler until we found a surface that would almost hold us—a bending rubber that enticed us from dry ground to break through, knee-deep in the chilling water.

Eventually our pond froze thick enough to hold us and we made our slides—a pathetically small sheet of ice and rough from early breaking, but ice at least and hopefully a forerunner of greater sheets on lakes and swamps in Saanich.

We walked, when it grew colder, to Goodacre Lake at Beacon Hill, skates and worn hockey sticks over our shoulders, and there adopted the personalities of stars of Lester Patrick's Cougars. We waited, hopefully, in one winter of black frost, for lifts to Portage Inlet, to Langford, to Prospect Lake, or to the safer shallower flooded areas of Marigold, Quick's and Raper's Ponds, Panama Flats and the Third Trestle.

Once, on a day that still seems unreal, two of us went by T-model Ford to a lake in the Highlands, where the ice was unscratched and the crack and boom of its deeper freezing sent thunder through the hills—an eerie exercise, skating above brown-tinged water on a glass clear surface.

The recollections spring from the sights of a boy driving a heel into the skim ice of a miniature pool, from a view of the whitened grass from a window at breakfast time. The mind veers into fancy, as it should. After all, Jack Frost has been—and if he locks in water, he unfastens the gates of imagination.

CHECK THESE TIME SAVING TELEPHONE TIPS

and make your Christmas happier

There is great joy in exchanging Christmas Greetings by telephone. So much so, in fact, that thousands and thousands of Canadians do so each year. As a result, telephone facilities become crowded with traffic and you may encounter delays in completing your calls, especially on Christmas Day.

You can avoid these delays. Just follow the telephone tips below:

FIRST Make a list now of those persons in distant places to whom you plan to place Christmas greetings calls this year. Jot down the area code and telephone number for each one. You can get these — without charge — through your operator, or by following instructions in your telephone directory for reaching out-of-province information directly.

Do this now so you won't have to fight heavy holiday traffic just to get your numbers. By being prepared, you'll save time with your Christmas calls, whether you dial them directly or assist the operator by giving her the number you want to reach.

SECOND Don't wait until Christmas Day itself, when circuits across Canada will be overloaded, to place all your calls. Spread them over the holiday season. Your family and friends will enjoy your calls just as much, and you'll be more certain of getting through without delay.

REMEMBER The low, night-time and holiday long-distance rates are in effect from 6 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 23, through to 4:30 a.m., Tuesday, Dec. 26.

And have a Happy Christmas.

Surtax Called Inflationary

Opposition Lash Liberals Over High Cost Programs

By PAUL DUNN

OTTAWA (CP)—Two former Conservative cabinet ministers lashed the government Tuesday for adding to inflationary pressures by its tax increase and excessive spending.

Speaking during the fifth day of the budget debate—which ends today—Conservative House Leader Michael Starr said Finance Minister Sharp has "lost control of inflationary tendencies in the country because he cannot control the inflation in his own government."

The former Conservative labor minister was followed by George Hees, trade minister in the Diefenbaker government, who termed Mr. Sharp's five-per-cent income surtax "an inflationary tax."

He said Canada could face an economic crisis like the one that forced Britain to devalue the pound.

Both former ministers urged a system of government priorities. Along with other opposition speakers, they again painted a picture of the government as the last of the big-time spenders.

Earlier, Trade Minister Winters announced that China will buy and take delivery of up to 78,400,000 bushels of top grades of Canadian wheat in the first 10 months of next year.

NEW TARIFF PROGRAM

Industry Minister Drury announced a new tariff program for machinery that will enable Canadian manufacturing and service industries to import highly-specialized foreign-made equipment free of duty, provided similar products are not available in Canada.

The object of the program is to encourage Canadian industry to improve productivity, cut costs for domestic markets and penetrate foreign markets in the more competitive field opened by the Kennedy Round of tariff-cutting negotiations.

In a third announcement, Northern Development Minister Laing said the government has joined with a consortium of 20 oil companies to explore for gas and oil in the Arctic Islands.

Panarctic Oils Ltd. plans to spend $20,000,000 to $30,000,000 over the next three years investigating some 44,000,000 acres, much of it long regarded as potentially rich in oil and gas.

The Senate began debate on the bill to limit capital punishment to murderers of prison guards and policemen for a five-year trial period with a plea from Senator David Croll (L—Ontario) for abolition of "the whole sorry process" of executions. Two Conservative senators, W. M. Aseltine (Saskatchewan) and Lionel Choquette (Ontario) called on the Senate to defeat the bill, already passed by the Commons.

CANADIANS FED UP

In the budget debate—already the subject of two unsuccessful opposition non-confidence votes—Mr. Starr said Canadians were generally fed up with "paying through the nose for the extravagance of this government."

The government did not know where it was going from one day to the next. Revenue Minister Benson had said recently on television that the medical care insurance program will cost $80,000,000, while Mr. Sharp had said the cost will be $500,000,000.

Mr. Sharp interjected:

"No, he did not. And I did not say that, Mr. Speaker. I said we would have to raise $500,000,000 in order to pay our share, namely half, and the minister of national revenue agreed with this. The minister of national health and welfare agreed too."

Fernand Leblanc (L—Montreal Laurier) said the five-per-cent income surtax announced by Mr. Sharp will last only until the economy is stabilized.

DEATH BILL DEFEAT URGED

OTTAWA (CP)—Two Conservative senators called on the upper house Tuesday to defeat the Commons-approval bill to limit the death penalty to the murderer of prison guards and police officers.

Senator Lionel Choquette (Ontario) said the Senate would "gain in stature" if it killed the bill brought down by the Liberal government. Senator W. M. Aseltin (Saskatchewan) said there is no public demand for the measure.

"This may be the opportunity the Seante has been waiting for to justify itself," he said.

New Wheat Deal Worth $150 Million

OTTAWA (CP)—The third sale under a long-term wheat agreement with China was announced in the Commons Tuesday by Trade minister Winters.

He told reporters later the deal is worth about $150,000,000 and was made at prices above minimums under the old International Wheat Agreement.

His announcement said China will buy and take delivery of 2,000,000 long tons of wheat, plus or minus five per cent in the first 10 months of 1968. The maximum amount under the five-per-cent variation would be 78,400,000 bushels.

IT'S ROUND NUMBER THREE AS MP ANSWERS STANFIELD

OTTAWA (CP) — Bryce Mackasey, Liberal MP for Verdun, accused Opposition Leader Stanfield in the Commons Tuesday night of an "unfair and unwarranted reflection on my conduct."

The accusation came as round three in a series of speeches by he two, touched off last Thursday when Mr. Mackasey said Mr. Stanfield had endorsed the Estates General of Quebec "as being a body of serious men discussing serious subjects."

Mr. Stanfield replied last Friday that he doubted whether "anything so poisonous" as Mr. Mackasey's speech had been said in the House for some time.

He suggested that the Liberal caucus should deal with "politically irresponsible people in their ranks" and said the issue of national unity should remain above partisan politics.

Tuesday night, Mr. Mackasey noted that Mr. Stanfield had referred to him as "official hatchet man of the caucus and of the Liberal party." There were hardly words one would expect from a man who was to bring a new tone of debate to the Commons.

NO APOLOGY

The Quebec MP said he had reviewed his speech and found "no apology is indicated." Mr. Stanfield had "over-reacted to what he presumed I was going to say."

Mr. Mackasey said he would not retaliate. He had not intended even to imply that Mr. Stanfield had endorsed separatism.

Personally, Mr. Mackasey had supported the idea of calling the recent meeting of the Estates General. But had they acted in a serious manner?

To refuse to fly the Canadian flag at the meeting was hardly "an indication that serious men were discussing a serious question in a serious manner."

Mr. Mackasey read several extracts of speeches he had made in the Commons on national unity and quoted praise he had received from various Conservative members for his words.

He said he has "no lesson to take from anyone else in this House" on the unity question. He had been calling for "tolerance and understanding" for several years.

POPE SENDS MESSAGE

'We Feel Ourselves United With Yourself'

VATICAN CITY (Reuters) — Pope Paul has sent a message of good wishes and his "particular and affectionate blessing" to Paul-Emile Cardinal Leger, who recently gave up his post as archbishop of Montreal to care for lepers in Africa, the Vatican disclosed today.

The Pope wrote: "It is a heartfelt need for us to express in a personal message our emotion and our intimate participation in the grave and noble decision which you have made."

After praising the cardinal's work as archbishop, he said that he now had become "poor among the poor, infirm among the infirm, weak among the weak."

"We feel ourselves even more united with yourself and those who are always the favorite children of our father in heaven and privileged members of the holy church—the suffering, the disinherited, the unhappy, that is, all who in human society particularly need understanding assistance and help."

GRAIN

WINNIPEG (CP) — Canada's wheat sale to China Tuesday stimulated trade on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today with most commodities selling at firm to higher prices.

Oilseeds dominated the trade although early advances in flax were reduced as trading progressed. Hedging sales were light in both flax and rapeseed.

Oats and barley prices were firm with shippers showing interest in the two commodities. The rye market was firm to higher in light trade.

A factor in all commodities was December contracts being closed out.

Lakehead prices for class two, IWA and domestic wheat were all unchanged.

Eastern notice is being given to Utica Mines Ltd., the Keremeos producer becoming the country's biggest primary silver mine.

Local investment men attribute the stock's 45-cent run-up Tuesday to this new attention by the financial press, which observes that at its recent price in the $4.30 range the stock is undervalued by about 100 per cent.

Kent

It was an eastern financier—Morris Black of Endako fame—who sparked Utica through extensive exploration, development, expansion of claims and finally mill construction completed last summer.

Concurrent with the efforts of Mr. Black and a capable management team, the price of silver has been soaring, which gives gratuitous enhancement to Utica shares.

Perhaps Mr. Black has been spreading the word along Bay Street, but even so, Utica would appear to be capable of standing on its merits with some 700,000 tons of ore reserves containing 20 ounces of silver per ton, plus recoverable values in gold, lead, zinc and copper.

Six months ago, as the 300-ton mill was being finished, the estimated earnings of Utica, based on silver at about $1.50 an ounce, were around 50 cents a share.

Now, with silver at about the $2.20 mark and the Utica mill capacity boosted to better than 400 tons per day, earnings should be something like $1 per share including the sale of by-products.

The calculation takes operating expenses, depreciation and debt-retirement into account.

At this rate, using the customary 8 times earnings multiple for silver producers, Utica should have a market value of $8. It closed Tuesday at $4.90-$5 and today was trading over $5.

Silver producers are conscious of a world shortage of the precious metal, of which the photographic, electrical and space-oriented industries require vast quantities.

Photography alone could consume more than what is available, which lends support to the theory that demand is good for years to come.

One dark cloud could be a breakthrough in photographic film research where a process eliminating silver compounds is being developed. Whether it will be successful may not be important in the long run as other silver requirements grow.

Victoria Elevator Ltd. can expect to ship some of the 75 million bushels Canada will send between next month and next October.

The B.C. whaling industry will go dormant next year, at least until a new assessment of catch and market potential is made in the fall.

Western Canada Whaling Co. Ltd., which has fished the Pacific from Coal Harbor, Quatsino Sound, the last six years, is tying up its five-ship fleet for the 1968 season, said president K. F. Fraser.

The company — owned 57 per cent by B.C. Packers, 43 per cent by Japanese fishing interests—has decided following consultations in Japan that demand for whale flesh and oil was too low and prospects for a good catch are slim.

He said the Japanese and Russian whaling fleets had fished out the Antarctic and were in danger of doing the same in the north Pacific through lack of conservation policies.

Tight money and high interest rates notwithstanding, Great National Land and Investment Corp. Ltd. shows a 66 per cent gain in pre-tax revenue for the six months ended Oct. 31.

President Frank J. Ney, mayor-elect of Nanaimo, said his company owed the improvement over the same 1966 period to diversification—unimproved land, subdivision, private and commercial construction, financing, insuring and real estate sales.

He said profits came to $62,145 in the period.

Madison Fund Buys Big Block Of Denison Shares

ELLIOT LAKE, Ont. ((CP)—Edward A. Merkle, president of the Madison Fund in the U.S., announced the fund has acquired 400,000 shares of Denison Mines Ltd. for $30,000,000.

Mr. Merkle said it was the largest single purchase ever made by the fund.

Denison is the world's largest uranium producer, and with the purchase, 17 per cent of Madison's portfolio is in uranium.

Mr. Merkle said the purchase reflects "our confidence in the future of nuclear power." He said nuclear power will be responsible for an increasingly significant portion of new electrical generating capacity.

Madison acquired the stock for $76.50 per share.

Industry Gets Break on Duty

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP)—A sweeping plan to encourage Canadian manufacturing and service industries to expand and specialize, to meet sterner competition at home and abroad resulting from Kennedy Round tariff cuts, has been unveiled by Industry Minister Drury.

He announced Tuesday the government will set up a high-level five-man board to recommend waiving import duties on production machinery which must be bought abroad because it is not available in Canada.

About 60 to 65 per cent of Canadian machinery imports will be covered by the plan. Eighty-five per cent of it comes from the United States.

Hitherto, importers of such machinery had to pay duties of up to 22½ per cent of the invoiced price, plus federal sales tax.

Under tariff cuts Canada agreed to in Geneva last summer, the top rate of duty will be cut to 15 per cent, starting Jan. 1. In cases in which similar machinery is not available from any Canadian source, the duty will be waived completely.

LOOK AT LIFE from a new angle is given by Yoga. Gordon Limbrick says "yogic postures" keep the mind and body young and flexible.

Your Answer May Be Here

You've got troubles?

Don't know what to do with your swimming pool? Want to take up Yoga and you don't know where to start? Can't seem to get the hang of cake decorating? Your fencing technique getting rusty?

Chances are one of the 144 courses in adult education the Greater Victoria school board is offering in the new year will solve your problem, no matter what it is.

Some of the courses are follow-ups from the division's fall program. Many are new. Most start Jan. 8 and have weekly sessions, with fees ranging from $8 to $26.

Almost 7,000 persons have enrolled in the fall and winter sessions so far. Co-ordinator Reg Mylrea thinks the total may reach 10,000.

●

Among new courses in the arts, crafts and hobbies section is a photography workshop. For the experienced hobbiest, the results from Saturday morning field trip photos will be analyzed and discussed on Thursday evenings.

New drawing, painting, ceramic portraits, oil portraits as well as woodworking, woodwork and cabinet making, wood-carving and sculpture courses have been added.

In the homemaking and food section, Lannie King Yee has added another Chinese cooking class to meet the demand as has Danny Hajnal to meet the requirement for hair styling and skin care. New dress-making and tailoring classes have been added along with millinery and shoe recovery.

There will be a course in the motion picture as art and one on swimming pool operation and maintenance.

Under recreation and fitness, fencing and yoga are just two of 19 series which also deal with badminton, ballroom dancing, fishing, gardening, golf, tennis, sailing and slimnastics.

Among business management and allied courses are ones dealing with accounting, personnel management, finance and taxation and electronic data processing.

On the vocational and technical side there will be instruction in welding and blueprint reading, furniture refinishing and pattern drafting.

Basic commercial courses include ones on business machines, typing, and duties of a clerk-typist for those seeking employment in this field.

Registration is now open and information is available at 385-1411, locals 258 and 259. The full list of courses will be advertised in the Times after Christmas.

Some Even Try Wonders of Yoga

A form of physical exercise with claims to develop the mind will soon be available to Victorians through a course offered by the Department of Adult Education.

Evening courses of yoga instruction will be offered at Oak Bay Junior High School from Jan. 9 to March 12 by well-known local yogi Gordon Limbrick.

Included in the instruction is a series of lectures on Yogi concntration, breathing and diet, Yoga and the mind, LSD or Yoga, Yoga and Mysticism, and positive health through Yoga.

AGE-OLD

The exercises have been extolled as a source of health and physical power for centuries, and according to Mr. Limbrick:

"... Yogic postures have been used to keep the mind and body young and flexible and to ward off the tendency of the skeletal frame to ossify with age. Those who practise the exercises daily are able to retain maximum use of the body's faculties throughout their lifespan."

Mr. Limbrick first introduced Yoga to the adult education program in 1964 and instructed again in 1965. He has practised Yoga for the past 30 years while travelling throughout the world. During a 1957 sojourn in India he was initiated into Shabd Yoga by Maharaj Ji Caharan Singh of Beas, Punjab.

Since his retirement from the army he has taught Yoga in Canada and the U.S.

U.S. Intrusion Could Wreck Ship Firms

LAUZON, Que. (CP) — Canadian shipping companies are in danger of being wrecked by unfair United States intrusion in the coastal trade, a Canadian shipping executive said Tuesday.

T. R. McLagan, board chairman of Canada Steamship Lines, speaking after the launching of the 730-foot Frontenac, said there may be a decline in building such ships for companies owned by Canadian citizens. The Frontenac is due to go into service next year.

Mr. McLagan said that because of lack of protection by the Canadian government "foreigners are free to come to Canada, form a Canadian company with 100-per-cent foreign ownership and participate in the Canadian coastal trade."

"Lack of restrictions particularly favors American citizens who have their own coasts protected, but are free to come to Canada and participate in trade here."

The Canadian government, happily, had become aware of the danger to lake shipping companies and launched an inquiry. The new Canadian transport commission had asked for briefs by Jan. 15, 1968, and these will probably be followed by public hearings, he said.

Travel Study Delayed

OTTAWA (CP) — Cuts in federal government spending will mean a delay of one year in a proposed study of interprovincial travel by Canadians, the federal-provincial tourist conference was told Tuesday.

J. H. Warren, deputy trade minister, said the Dominion Bureau of Statistics will be unable to take part in the survey next year because of the extra staff it would require.

A pilot survey of interprovincial travel was to get under way in 1968 at an estimated cost of $50,000. It was to be followed in 1969 by a full study costing $1,000,000.

Travel officials feel they are not getting a full picture of the number of tourists visiting their areas since no record is kept of travel within Canada by Canadians.

Trade Minister Winters officially opened public sessions of the three-day conference by telling delegates Canadians owed them a debt of gratitude for the money earned by tourist travel in 1967.

On Monday, DBS estimated that $1,250,000,000 was spent by tourists in Canada this year and that Canada would have a surplus in its travel account of $400,000,000.

Mr. Winters said Expo 67 accounted for more than half of the increase.

BRAZIL FINDS 'POT FARMS'

BRASILIA (Reuters)—Federal police have seized 20 tons of marijuana and destroyed 10 illegal plantations in Brazil so far this year, the anti-narcotics squad disclosed Monday. A stepped-up drive against marijuana and other drug trafficking was planned for next year, with a special watch on frontiers, ports and airports for cocaine and heroin.

U.S. Faces More Violence in 1968

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — Negro militant H. Rap Brown, at the peak of last summer's city rioting which a Senate subcommittee says took 84 lives, cried: "Violence is as American as cherry pie."

Supporting examples abound. Crime rates continue to rise, as in other countries.

Four years after John F. Kennedy became the fourth assassinated U.S. president, gunned down with a mail-order rifle, there still is no legislation to curb the brisk small-arms business.

A 19-year-old youth, one of the thousands and thousands back or coming back from Vietnam, is arrested for shooting up a Washington suburb with a machine-gun in a Haloween caper.

But a much more sinister and widespread pattern of violence is seen by some as a result of the passions raised by the Negro's status and the pros and cons of Vietnam.

"The trend of the young militants in American politics is clearly moving now from peaceful dissent to physical resistance," says columnist James Reston of the New York Times.

The tone of recent campus demonstrations, and the assault on the Pentagon itself recently by several hundred youths and girls, increase that threat. Specifically, it is raising serious questions about what kind of election campaign can be expected next year.

An unprecedented challenge to security precautions is forecast for candidates for next year's U.S. presidential election.

Columnist Marquis Childs says it is "widely acknowledged privately that the hazards will be greater than in any previous presidential contest."

450 CERTIFIED CURES

The Doll Lady Performs Miracles

By KATHRINE THOMAS

Piles of arms, broken legs, decapitated heads smiling sweetly at the world around them.

A setting for a horror show?

No. Just a basement overflowing with dolls of every shape and size.

There are dolls a few inches high, and some three feet tall; there are baby dolls, teen-age dolls, dolls that walk and talk and even dolls that burp.

And others look as good as new.

The miracle worker is Mrs. Mabel Adamson, 1047 Colville Rd. Over the past four years she has restored over 450 dolls to human form.

The dolls are then given to the Jaycees and distributed to children on the Gulf Islands tour of their Santa Ship which leaves Saturday.

Mrs. Adamson is a doll-lover from way back. She enjoyed them as a child and later made outfits for her daughter's dolls.

●

But when her daughter grew up, her hobby was at an end—until she happened to wander into Goodwill Enterprises one day and notice a bundle of doll parts and a lovely red-headed doll with one leg.

"I put the doll together, and dressed it," says Mrs. Adamson, "and then I had to find something to do with all the parts and pieces."

From then on she had a flourishing doll factory.

Well first you have to find matching arms and legs—sometimes even a whole new body—clip them together or use elastic to hold the different parts.

Mrs. Adamson has some dolls who have been waiting patiently for a particular part for four years.

Then she paints their faces with the enamel used for model airplanes.

"Sometimes I also have to re-eye them," she says, "it's quite a job; you have to cut out the sockets and fit them together again."

Next it's new clothing. Mrs. Adamson makes "original creations" for each one. The hardest job is to find shoes, particularly for teen-age dolls.

Mrs. Adamson claims she has no favorite type of doll though she likes girls better than boys.

●

"They're much more fun to dress up."

She also prefers brunettes to blondes.

"You can dress them in brighter colors—oranges, reds. With blondes you have to be more careful."

But they all become quite human to Mrs. Adamson. "They really take on different personalities. They're people to me when I work on them."

"I have Shirley Temple, Barbara Ann dolls and also some very old ones made around 1890."

The dolls also take part in another Christmas festivity. Every year 40 of them, dressed in plastic to keep out the rain, form a Christmas tableau in front of the house.

Neighborhood children always ask Mrs. Adamson eagerly at this time of the year, "When are the dolls coming out?"

WINTER CHARM

Blossoms Defying Calendar

By ELIZABETH FORBES

"The flowers that bloom in the spring, tra, la," are always delicately beautiful.

Forbes

The ones that flaunt their colors in the summer and autumn are assured and gay. But it's the blossoms which defy the calendar to bring us charm in December that are strong and courageous. And that are so dear to our hearts.

There was a while when it looked as though wind and rain would be victors this year and that we would have few, if any, garden flowers for our Christmas boasting.

However, the blossoms themselves soon knocked that pessimistic idea into acocked hat.

Poke around among the leaves. Look closely at the shrubs. Move near to the perennial borders. And you'll soon discover what I mean.

★ ★ ★

Perhaps the colors are muted. Edges of petals may be a bit ragged. If the plants are close to the ground you may find smudges of mud.

What does it matter? The flowers are still lovely. And they point to the fact that here in Victoria we are singularly blessed.

A few days ago (in order to write this column) I did my annual snooping in our own and in friends' gardens.

And I've come up with an amazing list of blossoms that appear to have no working agreement with the seasons and that bloom whenever they manage to get the wraps off their buds and shove them up into the light.

As I write I can look across our street to a garden where a Peace rosebush has two blossoms preening in the December sun. Next door to my home I can see a rosebush border touched here and there with bright red blooms.

At our front steps the tiny cream blossoms of a winter daphne are showing. Close to the house a rhododendron is proudly sheltering a cluster of pale pink flowers.

The lauristeinus that lost its first froth of lacy blossoms in earlier windstorms has recovered and produced many more flowers.

There are wine purple berries on the pernettya and the Christmas roses are pushing up from under the brown leaves.

In a planter on the sheltered side of an Uplands home and in gardens in other parts of the city, too) red geraniums are still putting on a splendid show.

My friend Mary tells me that a viburnum burkwoodi edging her patio, is in bloom. "It's far too early," she says, "and there is little of the rich perfume. But the pink blossoms are there."

★ ★ ★

In her garden an azalea is in flower. And she has found sweet scented blue violets, lobelia, the first polyanthus and, of course, mauve and white heather fronds.

Out on the Dallas Road, where the full force of our winter winds sweep in from the Strait of Juan de Fuca, there is a garden where yellow jasmine is in full flower.

In the same place I discovered pansies, purple red wands, calendulas (marigolds), snapdragons, sweet alyssum (candy tuft), and a few Esther Reed daisies.

These are the flowers I discovered when I took a short "breather" from addressing Christmas cards, writing seasonal letters and wrapping parcels.

Perhaps if you would take "time out" to peek at the gardens in your own neighborhood you would find others to add to my list.

And, like me, you would be tempted to pause for a moment and to remember how lucky we are to live in a place where flowers bloom in the gardens at the Christmas season.

Sacraments Barred For Bikini Girls

VALPARAISO (AP) — Bishop Emilio Tagle Covarrubias says holy communion may not be received by Roman Catholic girls who wear bikinis on Chilean beaches. The Catholic bishop of Valparaiso issued his directive Tuesday as Chille neared the prime of the summer season.

HOME GARDEN

Surprise, Treat For Guests

By HILDA BEASTALL

With so little frost registered locally to this date, it will be rather a gamble whether branches or early spring flowering shrubs will come into bloom in the house. Usually we can rely on them to break their buds in two weeks if they are brought in, totally immersed in warm water and then stood in deep water in a warm room.

Hilda

On the other hand, winter blooming shrubs will be more satisfactory this year for Christmas decorating, needing only a little additional warmth to give a good display.

Witch-hazel (hamanelis), Winter jasmine (Jasminum nudiflorum), Winter Viburnums and winter-flowering cherry, or plum (Prunus subhirtella autumnalis), will all bloom outdoors in any mild spell in winter.

LONELY EFFECT

When branches of these are cut and brought into the warm house, more buds will open at one time and therefore a lovely effect is achieved.

There is satisfaction in displaying at Christmas flowers which normally bloom in your garden at this season —especially if you have as guests folks who are newly from a less pleasant winter climate.

If the bowl arrangement you assemble of leafless branches appears rather bare, fill in at the base with sprays of winter blooming heathers, or small plants of sweet scented winter violets.

Once you begin to think about it, I'm sure almost any Victoria gardener will find suitable material to use.

Nearly all our winter flowers have fragrance, though they may not be spectacular in color. A handful, well arranged in a bowl or vase that is not too overwhelming in color, will give pleasure to you and your holiday visitors.

For Every 100 Women, 101 Men

OTTAWA (CP) — Men still outnumber women in Canada, but the women are catching up.

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics said Monday the 1966 census showed 101 men for every 100 women in the country. The ratio was the lowest since the bureau started keeping track of the figures in 1901 when there were 105 men for every 100 women.

The bureau says men still have a big edge in rural areas, outnumbering women by 115 to 100.

But in urban centres, the women already have taken over. There are only 98 men for every 100 women in Canada's municipalities with populations of 10,000 or more.

There also is a wide variation from province to province —Saskatchewan has 105 men for every 100 women, while the numbers are even in Ontario and Quebec.

Halt Requested In West Coast Herring Fishing

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Pacific Trollers' Association has asked Fisheries Minisister Robichaud for a complete healt to herring fishing off the west coast of Vancouver Island.

The request was contained in a letter to the federal minister and signed by secretary-treasurer R. (Stan) Stanton of the association.

Mr. Stanton said the depletion of herring stocks has hurt the west coast salmon troll fishery and will continue to force British Columbia trollers to fish more extensively in U.S. waters.

He said a number of previous warnings to the fisheries department have been ignored.

There is no intensive herring fishery in U.S. offshore waters and American stocks of coho and chinook salmon have not been depleted through a loss of their basic food, he said.

Thousands Homeless

COLOMBO (AP) — A cyclone and flooding from incessant rains last week have left about 125,000 persons homeless in various parts of Ceylon, said reports reaching Colombo. The northwest Chilaw district was hit by its second cyclone in six weeks and had left 80,000 homeless. Army trucks carried in 5,000 pounds of bread to help feed them.

VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 13, 1967—PAGE 17

Arthur Mayse

My own memory for dates is none too reliable, but Win unfailingly remembers.

"Twenty-one years ago today," she said, as we dumped armloads of gale-smashed evergreen boughs on a smoky bonfire.

So it was; and although we've never made any special fuss about the anniversary that came round again last Sunday, it marks one of the pivotal days in our joined lives.

Since the day also belongs to our son, a busy young teacher now,

I am able to tell you about it only because he gave me his unhesitating permission.

"Go ahead," he said. "In fact, I wish you would. You know how I feel about being adopted."

He knows how we feel too, and here is a truth that those who have never shared one of life's richest experiences sometimes fail to understand.

How can a couple entertain for a child not born to them the same love they would give to the child acquired by birth?

I can only assure you that they do, and there are in this city any number of parents who can back my claim.

Adoption, as they and we have learned, is a weld that endures through fair weather and foul. The adopted child—and I tell you this in all honesty—becomes a son or daughter, in love as well as in law.

The boy we hoped to take for our son was no baby, but a little blond kid of two years and a few months. He went around singing to himself, and we yearned to have him with us in time for his third Christmas.

Together and separately, we worked on the Children's Aid, which had investigated our backgrounds with daunting care.

All we got was an unvarying, amiable, "No, I'm sorry, that's out of the question."

Then, one afternoon in mid-December, Win phoned me at work. She sounded jubilant, also scared.

"He's coming tomorrow, and we still have to furnish his room!"

We were shopping in less than an hour. We bought a chest of drawers, a picture with robins in it, rug, lamp and a plump yellow teddybear. We added child-sized bedding, and ordered a crib.

"We can't deliver before next week," said the salesman. This was the year after the last war when transport was scarce and Canada not yet fully returned to peacetime gear.

"But we need that stuff," I protested. Win said, "There's this little boy we're adopting, and he needs . . ."

"Say no more." The salesman gave us a big grin. "It'll be out. You know, I've got an adopted son myself."

There is great joy in adopting a child, but there is also something very much like terror. What are you undertaking? Can you carry it? How will it work out? I left the magazine office next day, nervous as a cat—bought a little car at a toy store, then, worried that Ron mightn't like it, went back for another.

At the home doorstep, I turned away and walked twice around the block. This that we'd done would change the whole shape of our lives. And come to think of it, what did we know about raising children?

The lights were out downstairs. I went up, entertaining butterflies the size of bats.

Ron was tucked into our bed. He looked very small there; his hair was rumpled, and it was plain that he had been crying no long time past.

Win sat beside him. She said, "Ron's just wakened from his nap." She didn't seem scared at all, only happy. "Come on in and say hello to him."

I crossed to them, still struck stupid, but happiness beginning, and reached down to the little boy who is a man now. Ron put a hand in mine, and the fears and ridiculous doubts departed.

To him, that night is only part of a story from a past longer than his memory. He doesn't remember our first Christmas, either. But we do, and until we added a daughter to our family—though not by adoption—it was our best.

Tomorrow, I'd like to tell you more about adoption, as we've lived it through the ups and downs of 21 years.

FOOTSLOGGERS of Gordon Head Junior High School deposited $5,214 today—and hope to soon make it $6,000 — in the Project 100 bank account. The school raised the money to aid foreign students when 403 youngsters entered the recent March For Millions and 298 completed the 25.8 mile course. Ten teachers marched with the youngsters. Eighty pledges are still to be collected. From left are depositers Craig Darling and Ian Horne and Bank of Montreal Uvic branch staffers Mrs. P. Kimmerly and Mrs. M. Dagg. At Lansdowne Junior High, 267 students took part in raising another $4,000. They expect to have 90 per cent collected by the weekend from persons who sponsored marchers at so much per mile. Uvic organizers still have their eye on $100,000 goal. More than 10,000 people marched, 7,000 finished. (Times photo by Bill Halkett)

Total of 290 Boilermakers Out of Work

A shipyard union official said today Yarrows has laid off 100 of its members in the last three days.

Neil Hindle, business agent for Local 191 of the International Brotherhood of Boilermakers, said this brings unemployment in his union to 290—about one-third of the total membership.

As announced earlier, Victoria Machinery Depot shipyard will shut down at the end of this month.

"This gives life to the words of (Yarrows manager) John Wallace that shipbuilding is on its death bed," said Mr. Hindle.

"We are very fast approaching the critical stage. Those laid off include welders, shipsfitters, platers, drillers and caulkers.

"Our men will have to give serious consideration to other work and that means an end to this industry.

CAN'T STAY

"They just can't stay on $36 a week unemployment insurance for a married man and $27 a week for single men."

He said all the jobs at Yarrows are finishing at once, including two barges and a tuna boat.

"We are meeting management tomorrow, on a regular basis, of all business agents, and we will discuss the employment situation once more," he said.

Ex-Prosecutor, Judge Testify In City Court

Perjury Hearing Gets Under Way

The preliminary hearing of Frank Hulbert, also known as Frank Pepler, charged with perjury in a 1943 murder trial, opened in central court today.

The crown charges that Hulbert, 41, of Port Alberni, a juvenile in 1943, committed perjury when he appeared as a crown witness in the murder trial of William Mitchell.

Mitchell was found not guilty and released, and the murderer has never been found.

TRANSCRIPT

In today's hearing, prosecutor J. W. Anderson filed a transcript of the 1943 preliminary hearing into the Mitchell charge.

Witness Claude Harrison, former mayor of Victoria and prosecutor at the 1943 hearing, testified he had a clear recollection of the case.

"Hulbert told the hearing Mitchell had told him he had killed the girl. He said Mitchell said he waited for her, asked her for sexual intercourse, and when she refused, he hit her on the head with a rock."

'SAME PERSON'

When asked if the present accused Hulbert was the same Hulbert who gave that testimony in 1943, Mr. Harrison replied "twenty years have passed, but I should say he is the same person as the young man who gave evidence."

Mr. Justice Cody, a retired justice of the Appeal Court, also appeared as a witness today.

He said he presided over the Mitchell trial.

Prosecutor Anderson told the court no transcript of the trial was kept, so Magistrate Ostler allowed Mr. Justice Cody to read from his bench book as it is the "best evidence available."

Mr. Justice Cody read to the court notes on evidence Hulbert gave similar to the evidence in the transcript of the preliminary hearing, but he said he could not identify Hulbert now.

HE CRASHED OUT, CRASHED IN BUT PARTYBOY'S PLOY SPIKED

Visitors to Government House usually sign the visitors' book and as a result they're on the garden party invitation list the following year.

However, this won't apply in the case of one recent visitor to the grounds.

He signed the book in the outer portico and in the column for honors and decorations, he added "AWOL, Brannen Lake."

Sure enough, a couple of days later city police picked up an escaper from the boys' industrial school at the lake, and the name matched.

Government house officials are unlikely to send an invitation to another recent signatory—Ringo Starr. There is some doubt in official circles that he was ever in town.

Civil Servants Talk Strike After Bennett Wage Freeze

This was the swift and angry reaction to Premier Bennett's clear indication that no general wage increase for the province's 23,000 government employees will be provided in the 1968 budget.

E. P. O'Connor, of Vancouver, general secretary of the 10,000-strong B.C. Government Employees Association, said Monday night that civil servants will "take what action they think necessary," including a strike to see that pay raises are granted.

Premier Bennett, at an annual luncheon which he has used for the past five years to announce wage increases, Monday told civil servants that this year he was not making "the usual announcement" because B.C. is in a war against inflation.

As in the past, his speech was timed in advance of the annual meetings between the B.C. civil service commission and BCGEA to discuss the next year's wages.

The BCGEA has claimed that the commission always toes the line drawn by the premier, which has resulted in wage increases approximating 5 per cent on average in each of the past five years.

PROVE NEED

"We will prove beyond all reasonable doubt the need for a new wage structure," Mr. O'Connor said, referring to next Monday's meeting with the commission.

He said that civil servants' salaries are 10 per cent below those for comparable jobs in private business.

If Mr. Bennett's statement results in flat rejection of the BCGEA request for raises, "there are certain sections (of the civil service) who will be militant," Mr. O'Connor said in his strike warning.

He complained that government employees are expected to accept the cost and responsibility of other people's mistakes.

"If the government finds itself in a tight money situation, it always takes it out of the government employees' wages," Mr. O'Connor said.

Trustees Ask Full Report On Measles

Greater Victoria School Board has asked for a prompt and full report on a threatened measles epidemic here next year.

The request was made this morning to Metropolitan Health Board medical officer Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread.

He told a health board meeting Tuesday that unless an $8,000 immunization program is launched in the schools "we will have an epidemic," He said they occur every two years and it is wrong to minimize the disease.

School Board chairman Peter Bunn expressed shock that Dr. Whitbread was reduced to asking service clubs to raise money for the immunization program because federal and provincial governments had earlier refused to contribute.

EXPLANATION

"We've asked Dr. Whitbread to explain in writing what the situation is all about," said Mr. Bunn. He thought the cost of immunization might be included in the school board budget.

Dr. Whitbread told his board of directors that it is time people took measles seriously. One child in 10,000 dies with the disease, one in 1,000 is threatened with deafness. In a few cases the disease can mentally retard a child, he stated.

He said he had tried for years to get money from senior governments for measles vaccine, but without success. He was meeting with Lions Club presidents Friday to ask them to raise at least $4,000.

Dr. Whitbread said the immunization program must be complete by the end of February if it is to be effective.

The board decided that if the money is not available elsewhere a request will be made to Greater Victoria municipalities to contribute.

Hydro Studies At Jordan River For Research

B.C. Hydro co-chairman Dr. Gordon Shrum today said engineering studies are underway at Jordan River but only as part of a continuing research program.

B.C. Hydro now has two small dams on the river, northwest of Sooke, feeding a power station.

"We have no immediate plans for Jordan River but we're always gathering engineering data for our installations," he said.

Dr. Shrum recently revealed that a "brown out" for some Vancouver Island industrial plants may be necessary next year due to delays in completing a program for increasing power supply through submarine cables across the Strait of Georgia.

FERRY MEN MAY GO 'RIGHT UP'

Ferry workers are "definitely" opposed to a possible wage freeze next year, a union spokesman said today.

"This would be a big issue," said Norman Thornber, business agent for the B.C. Government Employees Association marine branch (unlicensed).

He said employees of B.C. Ferry Authority "fought for a long time" for parity with outside maritime rates and this had been agreed to on a continuing basis.

"If this does not apply, our people will be right up in the air," he said.

Lay-Off Rumor Discounted By Ferry Chief

Rumors sweeping B.C. Ferry Authority crews that up to 140 will be laid off with shutdown of two ferries on the Nanaimo-Horseshoe Bay run are nothing more than rumors, BCFA manager Monty Aldous said Monday.

"We've picked them up too," he said when asked about the rumors. "We're not sure how they started."

In any event, he said they were nothing more than rumors.

"We haven't made any such recommendation," he said.

Mr. Aldous speculated that the rumors may have sprung from a misunderstanding about the work schedule for the Sechelt Coast service — where the former Pere Nouvel will replace the Sechelt Queen under the new name Sunshine Coast Queen after renovations this winter.

They said Mrs. Hill was lying across one lane of traffic and her husband's car was blocking the other.

DISTILLERS' HIKE

More Price Boosts Face Liquor Buyers

More heavy increases in hard liquor prices appeared on the way today and Attorney-General Robert Bonner suggested that customers upset about escalating costs should stop buying.

He reserved direct comment on a Toronto report that two major distillers will raise their prices by 5 and 6 per cent across Canada.

The move could add as much as 75 cents to retail prices after government middlemen superimpose their cut.

H. Clifford Hatch, president of Hiram Walker-Gooderham and Worts Ltd., announced in Toronto a 5 per cent increase on all the company's products across the country.

A high-place source at Distillers Corp.-Seagram's Ltd. said his firm would follow suit with price increases of about 6 per cent.

MAGNIFIED

The manufacturer's increases would be magnified greatly by successive application of the federal excise tax, federal sales tax, B.C. liquor control board profit mark up and provincial sales tax.

As an example, it has been estimated a distiller's increase of a nickel a bottle could grow to 40 cents by the time the customer pays the cashier.

A 5 per cent increase at the manufacturer's level likely would total nearly a dime on most 25-ounce bottles of spirits, boosting the total increase to about 75 cents as a result of the progressive government imposts.

The cost of all 25-ounce bottles of spirits went up 37 cents a bottle only last week as a result of the LCB decision to increase its markup while passing on the 10 per cent federal liquor surcharge.

Mr. Bonner said the LCB has had "no firm advice" of the distillers' increases yet and he reserved comment on what impact they would have on retail prices here.

UP TO CONSUMER

Asked if it was conceivable that the LCB, as a monopoly business, would drop liquor lines that went up in manufacturers' price, Mr. Bonner replied that "would depend on whether alternate lines were available," for re-sale to the public.

"I feel the most effective dropping of lines is done by the customer at the counter," he added.

"And it may be time for them to stop purchases if they feel that prices are becoming unacceptable."

Chase Finishes With $350 Fine

A man who drove a car past a police car at a high speed early today and then was chased at speeds up to 85 miles per hour was fined $350 in central court.

For Many It's Sunday On Tuesday

Boxing Day falls on a Tuesday this year and it will be like a Sunday — everything closed.

Only major exception to a day off work is the federal civil service. The government has ruled Boxing Day is a work day.

Provincial civil servants will have Boxing Day off work as will municipal employees.

All retail stores will be closed, said a spokesman for the Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce.

He added that the Municipal Act makes it clear there is "no question" of opening on Boxing Day.

"It's like trying to open on Sunday," he said.

Chartered banks will also be closed, but they will be open 9 a.m. to noon the previous Saturday — normally a closed day.

A spokesman for the carpenters union said both days are holidays which means the men must be paid triple time if the contractor wants any work done.

Wood products manufacturing plants will be shut both days, said spokesmen for the International Woodwrokers of America and B.C. Forest Products.

The recent provincial statutory holiday regulation, however, does not provide that Boxing Day is a statutory holiday.

This menas that non-union employees at places which open Boxing Day are not legally entitled to extra pay.

NECESSITY MOTHERS ANOTHER INVENTION

Toy for Boy Sparks New Industry

By PAUL WILLIAMSON

Fred Francis wanted a new toy for his eight-year-old son Ken. He couldn't find what he wanted, so he designed one.

And as a result, Victoria has another industry, the manufacturing of "Carpento" sets.

Mr. Francis, 3930 Hobbs St., is a mathematics teacher at Victoria High. Looking for a toy both educational and entertaining, he decided to construct a miniature carpenter set for his son.

After experimentation, he found certain sizes and shapes of wood—½, one and two-inch widths of ¼-inch in varying lengths up to eight inches—could be fitted together in dozens of different ways to construct boats, planes, elastic guns, houses and so on.

"That's where my mathematical mind came in," he said.

Somewhere along the line, he realized the set would be marketable if he perfected it, so he set out to improve upon the idea.

With his son as chief tester, he tried various weights of hammers until he settled on an 8-oz. tool. Different woods were tested, and soft pine, which never splits, was chosen.

A local paint company cooperated in developing a quick drying paint that is water soluble and shiny. Even the nails were selected after much trial and error.

After carefully choosing his lumber and finding a company to cut it into ¼-inch strips, Francis set up a miniature assembly line in his basement.

The 78 pieces of wood, the paint, nails, hammer, pliers, screwdriver, paint brush, eight maple wheels and instructions are neatly packed in a small carpenter's tool box.

The set, sealed in a special clear plastic wrap, is then shipped to a retail outlet.

EDUCATIONAL

"It helps children attain skill in hammering, constructing and painting and develops imagination and creativity.

"My son could hardly drive a nail when we started experimenting. Now he's developed considerable skill."

Mr. Francis, who said he's invested "several thousand dollars" in the project, has manufactured 900 of the sets, most of which are on sale now in local stores.

"If we sell five or six hundred, I'll call it a success."

And then what? Mr. Francis is already working on several ideas for accessories and expansions to his Carpento sets.

OWNER OF SEALS CLAIMS HE'LL STAY IN OAKLAND . . .

. . . BUT SHIFT TO VANCOUVER CONSIDERED POSSIBLE

To Move or Not to Move . . . That's Barry's Question

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

To move or not to move may be the question haunting Barend van Gerbig II today, although both he and Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League, protest the idea.

Van Gerbig, majority owner of Oakland Seals of the NHL, is having trouble getting fans to watch his fledgling team perform and reports a swirling around him that he is considering moving the franchise—possibly to Vancouver.

Oakland attendance problems were reportedly discussed at a meeting of the NHL governors last week in New York and Monday van Gerbig was in Vancouver, where he toured the city and visited the new Pacific Coliseum.

In an hour-long talk with Jim Kearney, columnist with The Sun, he suggested that unless attendance picked up in Oakland, then a franchise transfer, possibly to Vancouver, would be considered.

NEED CAPITAL

Saturday in New York, Campbell said after the governor's meeting that one of the troubles, other than attendance, was that they were suffering "a lack of liquid working capital."

The problem, he suggested, was that while van Gerbig and his partners had plenty of money to run the club, it was tied up and not readily available for emergency use.

Reports from Vancouver Monday and again Tuesday indicated that while van Gerbig was not officially scouting a new site for his club, he wasn't missing the opportunity afforded by an invitation from Vancouver businessman Frank McMahon to look the situation over.

The Sun report indicates that van Gerbig is distressed on two counts about maintaining the Seals' franchise in Oakland—over saturation of the San Francisco Bay area with major league competition and a lack of fan response.

He said there was no immediate concern with club financing, but that there was no way the club could be financed as a losing proposition for as long as five years.

NHL ATTITUDE

Of the New York meeting, he was reported as saying:

"Historically, the NHL always helps teams in trouble.

"We're not in financial trouble. In fact we're one of the better financed teams. But we cannot go on this way for, say, five years.

"The NHL governors are tough men, but they look kindly on the idea of a franchise transfer."

After the report was published, both van Gerbig, from Oakland, and Campbell, from Montreal, denied that a transfer was in the wind even though Oakland has the worst attendance record in the league.

After 12 games, the Seals—registered as San Francisco Seals Ltd., known as California Seals and later as Oakland Seals—had drawn only 59,383 fans compared with 127,435 in 11 games for Minnesota North Stars, the best draw of the six expansion teams.

In their last two games, the Seals have pulled fewer than 7,000 fans with only 2,426 out last Wednesday to see Philadelphia Flyers, then leaders of the Western Division.

Tuesday night van Gerbig said no permission had been sought from the league to move the franchise, adding "We definitely will finish the season here and plan to stay many more years."

Campbell said that a franchise shift would require approval of three-quarters of the member clubs of the league and that "no permission of any kind has ever been given to any club to negotiate for a change in site of its franchise or operation" by the league governors.

But in Vancouver, van Gerbig detailed the steps that would be necessary in moving the franchise. He also said that if Coley Hall, owner of the Vancouver franchise in the Western League, were willing "then I would anticipate no problem whatever in coming to Vancouver."

Hall is already on record as saying that if an NHL franchise should be available to Vancouver, he would not stand in the way of its development.

Van Gerbig told Kearney he had visited no other prospective site and would not do so because of the high regard in which manager-coach Bert Olmstead held Vancouver as a potential NHL site—"a small Toronto . . . that will be every bit as good as Toronto in three years."

Trend Changes As Track Bets Show Decline

OTTAWA (CP)—After 17 straight years of reaching new highs, wagering on thoroughbred racing in Canada dropped in 1967.

The federal agriculture department, which supervises pari-mutuel betting at the 23 tracks, reported Tuesday that bettors pushed $184,391,434 through the betting windows—a decrease of $291,426 from last year.

The figures do not include betting on harness races. These totals are not usually available until January. Last year's betting hit $224,000,000.

Ontario, main centre for thoroughbred racing, bet $100,174,152 in the 1,574 races held there. That is a decline of $4,471,560 from last year when 1,570 races were held.

ALBERTA PICKS UP

Picking up most of the slack were Alberta track-goers who wagered $24,662,188 on 838 races, an increase of $3,707,963 from 1966 when there were 753 races.

Quebec, Manitoba and British Columbia also reported increased betting while Saskatchewan joined Ontario on the downgrade.

There are no thoroughbred tracks in the Atlantic provinces.

Of the $184,391,434 wagered in 1967, the 53 racing associations across the country retained $17,676,688 as their legal percentage. The provincial governments collected $13,079,678 in pari-mutuel taxes.

Of the amount retained by the racing associations, $8,848,897 was paid in purse money.

Best individual handle of the year was at Toronto Woodbine June 24—Queen's Plate day—when $1,333,927 was bet.

RECORD NUMBER

Smallest handle of the year was at Williams Lake, B.C., where $286 was bet May 22.

The number of races reached a record 4,417 in 568 days of racing, compared with the previous high of 4,136 in 527 days in 1966.

Mike's Mother Told Imlach About Her Boy

By Canadian Press

Punch Imlach is convinced—mother knows best!

Mother is Mrs. R. C. Walton, who has been telling manager-coach Punch Imlach of Toronto Maple Leafs for three years that her son Mike is good enough for the National Hockey League.

But it took three seasons and serious injuries to key Toronto players to give Walton a chance to prove himself.

Walton's big chance finally came Nov. 15 against Boston Bruins when leftwinger Frank Mahovlich was in hospital and centre Dave Keon had suffered a leg injury in the Leafs' previous game.

Walton, 22, one of the fastest skaters in the NHL, came off the utility list to centre a regular line with George Armstrong and Wayne Carleton.

Walton kept charging the Boston Bruins' net that night and, on one occasion, took three shots in succession before scoring. When the game was over he had scored three goals.

"It was really the first chance the kid ever had on a regular line," said assistant manager-coach King Clancy.

NEW IRON MAN

Walton, a compact 175 pounds, has become the Leafs' iron man, playing on a regular line, working as a utility forward on other lines and taking his turn on the power plays.

He has scored nine goals in Toronto's last 10 games, to bring his goal total to 16 in 26 games and has assisted on six others since Nov. 15.

He gets a chance to continue his hot pace tonight when Pittsburgh Penguins visit the Leafs in one of five scheduled games. Montreal Canadiens also visit Boston Bruins, New York Rangers travel to Chicago for a game against the Black Hawks, Minnesota North Stars are at home to Los Angeles Kings, and Oakland Seals visit St. Louis Blues.

Walton's excellent stick handling, dazzling speed and whistling shot have proven that mother was right from the start.

"He passes to anyone, including the defence, and then uses his speed to get into the clear and catch the return pass. And he can take a pass from anywhere—it doesn't have to be right on his stick."

STARRED AT TULSA

He was sent to Tulsa Oilers of the Central Professional Hockey League the next season where he won the rookie-of-the-year award.

He got a brief six-game trial with Toronto next season while his mother kept insisting that if he didn't play in the NHL, "he won't play hockey at all."

But Walton was willing to prove his own point, scoring 19 goals in 36 games with Rochester Americans of the American Hockey League last season before coming to the Leafs. He scored seven goals and assisted on 10 in 31 games while playing as a utility forward, but proved his worth as a power-play specialist in the Stanley Cup playoffs with four goals and three assists in 12 games.

"It's really just a matter of getting a chance to play more," Walton says of his sudden success. "When you sit on the bench for half the game and you're told to go in, you just can't get going. If you make a mistake, you're back on the bench."

Runners Snap Skein On Lamoureux' Goal

Rochester Americans missed a golden opportunity to move into serious contention in the Western Division of the American Hockey League Tuesday night.

Playing an interlocking series in the Clippers dropped a 5-3 decision to Vancouver Canucks and remained four points behind leading Cleveland Barons.

To make matters worse, they play a second game—against Portland Buckaroos—in the WHL tonight with Cleveland still idle. Victories in the two games would have pulled them even with the Barons.

In the only other game Tuesday, Hershey Bears came back from a 3-2 second-period deficit for a 4-4 tie with Quebec Aces.

HORVATH SCORES

Milan Marcetta scored his 16th and 17th goals of the year for Rochester while Bronco Horvath contributed the other, but it wasn't enough against the varied fire power of the Canucks.

Vancouver goals went to Danny Belisle, Bob Lemieux, Phil Maloney, Gord Vejprava and Bruce Carmichael as the Canucks exploded for four second-period goals after the Americans had taken a 1-0 lead in the first.

LAMOUREUX HERO

In a Western League game at Phoenix, the last-place Roadrunners snapped a seven-game losing streak by tripping the front-running Seattle Totems, 1-0.

Dick Lamoureux, who, like Marcetta, played with Victoria Maple Leafs last season, was the Phoenix hero. Lamoureux scored in the first period on a play with Tom McVie and the Roadrunners made it stand up before 3,785 fans.

Rochester moves to Portland tonight for another interlocking contest while the Totems, who have now suffered three straight defeats, will try their luck again at Phoenix Thursday night.

Singles-Slapping Is Secret Of Winning Batting Titles

ROBERTO CLEMENTE
. . . best bat mark

CINCINNATI (AP) — Singles, and a lot of them, still are the secret of winning the National League batting championship.

Roberto Clemente of Pittsburgh Pirates won the league's 1967 crown for the fourth time with a .357 batting average. His "singles average" was .713.

Clemente went to bat 585 times to accumulate the best hitting average of his 13-year major league career. He collected a total of 209 hits and drove in 110 runs—second only to the 111 of Orlando Cepeda of St. Louis Cardinals. Clemente's hits included 150 singles, 26 doubles, 10 triples and 23 home runs.

In fact, only one of the top six batters came up with a "singles average" of less than .700, and home run king Henry Aaron of Atlanta Braves, who hit 39 homers and 105 singles, wound up in a seventh-place tie with Richie Allen of Philadelphia Phillies. Both batted .307 for the season.

The top six batters, with their batting averages and "singles averages" in parentheses were:

Roberto Clemente, Pittsburgh, .357 (.713); Tony Gonzales, Philadelphia, .339 (.744); Matty Alou, Pittsburgh, .338 (.839); Curt Flood, St. Louis, .335 (.825); Rusty Staub, .333 (.709); and Orlando Cepeda, St. Louis; .325 (.661).

Aaron, with his 39 home runs, still accumulated a "singles average" of .570 and drove in 109 runs for third place in that department. It was his fourth home run crown.

The Atlanta outfielder also tied Lou Brock of St. Louis for the most runs scored with 113. No one came near Brock's total of 52 stolen bases or the 18 times he was caught stealing.

Maury Wills of the Pirates hit more singles than anybody else—162—and tied the league record by leading in that category four times.

Disc Jockeys Spin Win Over Teachers

An unusual basketball team comprised of Seattle disc jockeys and accomplished athletes hustled from behind in their first Canadian game Tuesday night to defeat a group of Victoria high school teachers.

A cheering audience of 1,120, almost all teen-agers, packed Oak Bay High School gymnasium to see the KJR All-Americans come up with a 100-93 win in the charity event.

KJR is a rock 'n' roll radio station in Seattle. The team was organized by program director Pat O'Day as an institution "primarily to raise money for school funds."

The idea was to let the DJs clown around and after the laughs send the good players in to win.

Since 1965, the team has played 65 games and won 61. It has raised more than $80,000.

LENGTHY FREE THROW

Hero of the game proved to be Thomas Murphy, a DJ who was granted before the game "political asylum in the sovereign state of Oak Bay" and took three minutes in the third quarter to make a free throw.

Real hoop stars Levi Fisher and Waverly Davis got serious enough in the fourth quarter to provide the victory margin.

Scoring leaders for the visitors were Don Rae with 22 points and Davis with 20. Pat O'Day netted 12 points to lead the disc-jockeys.

Macs Finish Fast To Pad Hoop Lead

Coffee Macs stretched their lead in the Victoria Senior Men's Basketball League to eight points by trouncing Farmer Construction, 80-54, in a Tuesday night game at Reynolds Junior High School.

Despite having only five players they extended the half-time lead of 33-21, behind a fast break in the fourth quarter.

Bruce Clark led Macs' goal getting with 25 points, Mike Gallo had 18, Darrell Lorimer 15, and Ken Gregory 13, leaving only Rick Williamson out of the two figure bracket at nine points.

Pacing Farmers with 14 points was Jordan Ellis. Wayne Farmer added 12 and Dick Sparks had 10.

Macs only had a four-point lead with ten minutes to play but finished with a rush.

LABS MOVE UP

In the second game Labatts scored the final seven points to down Colony Inn, 61-52, and take over second place in league standings with the losers.

Brewers came alive in the second half under the lead of veteran Gordie Jones, when he scored 16 of his 22 points. John Devlin added 12 points for the winners, while Dave Emery's 20 and Ed Steele with 13 paced the innkeepers. Labatts led, 28-24, at half time and were only two points ahead with a minute to play until the outbreak clinched the win.

Falcons' Boss Claims He Has Toronto Berth

TORONTO (CP)—Joe Peters, owner of Toronto Falcons, said Tuesday he owns the franchise for a Toronto team in the merged United Soccer Association and National Professional Soccer League.

However, he agreed at a news conference that the final decision as to who owns the franchise will be settled between the two leagues in Chicago today.

Peters was attempting to explain the ramifications of the merger between the leagues. Last year, the first year of operation for both, Peters' Falcons were in the NPSL while Toronto City, owned by Steve Stavro, was in the USA.

With the merger one of the Toronto teams must go. Stavro has denied that he will lose his franchise while Peters says the Stavro franchise will be bought.

Peters said he originally offered Stavro $200,000 for his franchise. Stavro, Peters said, refused twice and the offer was cut to $160,000 but the deadline on that offer now has passed.

WARRINGTON OUSTED

LONDON (Reuters) — Castleford defeated Warrington 14-2 in a Rugby League Cup semi-final match Tuesday night.

Marshall Shares AHL Point Lead

ROCHESTER (AP) — Veteran Centre Willie Marshall of Baltimore Clippers picked up 10 points on six goals and four assists last week and tied Andre Lacroix of Quebec Aces for the lead in the American Hockey League's individual scoring race.

Both players have 44 points. Lacroix had six points in last week's games.

Poles Withdraw Team From Games

WARSAW (AP) — The Polish Olympic Committee withdrew its hockey team from the 1968 Winter Olympics competition Tuesday. The decision lifted West Germany into the championship pool at Grenoble, France, Feb. 6-18.

The committee based its decision on the weak performance of the Polish team in recent matches.

First Defeat For Canadian

It was the 54th knockout in 61 fights for Pimentel, who fights for the world bantamweight title next month in Japan. He has lost three.

Russian Athletes Busy

MOSCOW (AP) — The number of participants in sports activities in the Soviet Union has soared from 40,000 to 50,000,000 in the last 50 years, a Soviet official said Tuesday.

Tass, the official Soviet news agency, quoted Yuri Mashin as also reporting a tremendous jump in the number of sports clubs, to 200,000 from 800.

Mashin is the chairman of the central council of sports societies and organizations of the U.S.S.R.

Mashin said there now are 2,500 stadiums in the country with seating capacities ranging from 1,500 to 100,000, about 400,000 playing fields, and more than 33,000 gyms.

The official said that since 1945, when Soviet sports organizations joined international federations, Russian athletes have improved world records more than 1,200 times.

SAM HUFF . . . leaves door open

Tough Pro Sam Huff Tells It With Tears

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sam Huff, his eyes red and swelled by tears, said Tuesday he would play his last professional football game Sunday.

The veteran National Football League linebacker left the door ajar, however, for a possible return next season if he were needed to help Washington Redskins win a championship.

"There comes a time in every athlete's life when he has to hang up his jersey," Huff told a news conference in his team's dressing room.

Before meeting reporters, the 33-year-old Huff spent about 15 minutes alone in front of his locker, crying. His teammates, finishing practice, said nothing to him but as several went past him, they patted him on the back.

Huff has spent the last four years with the Redskins following an eight-year stint with New York Giants.

He was out five weeks this year with a severely sprained ankle. Before the injury, he played in 157 consecutive games.

He has been rated one of the National Football League's greatest modern linebackers. A vicious tackler, Huff's name has become synonymous with the controlled violence of professional football.

Unitas in Landslide; Six Packers Picked

NEW YORK (AP)—John Unitas, without a vote last year, today was named quarterback of the National Football League all-star team selected for The Associated Press by a panel of sports writers and sportscasters.

Unitas' skill in guiding Baltimore Colts through 13 games without defeat was recognized by a landslide vote of the committee, three from each league city.

Despite the Colts' fine record, the old reliable Green Bay Packers still had the most men on the team with a total of six, two on offence and four on defence. Dallas Cowboys placed four and Baltimore three. Nine of the teams had players on the first team.

SEVEN CLUBS BLANKED

New York Giants, Philadelphia Eagles, Pittsburgh Steelers, New Orleans Saints, Minnesota Vikings, Detroit Lions and San Francisco '49ers were blanked.

Looking ahead to Sunday's meeting of the Colts and Los Angeles Rams for the right to play the Packers in the Western Conference final, Baltimore has Unitas, tight end John Mackey and flanker Willie Richardson on the first offensive team.

The Rams put two men on the defensive line—end Deacon Jones and tackle Merlin Olsen.

Unitas' running backs on the first team were Gale Sayers of Chicago Bears and Leroy Kelly of Cleveland Browns. His receivers were Mackey, Richardson and split end Charley Taylor of Washington Redskins.

CARD AT CENTRE

Bob DeMarco of St. Louis Cardinals was the centre, flanked by Jerry Kramer of Green Bay and Gene Hickerson of Cleveland at the guards and Ralph Neely of Dallas and Forrest Gregg of Green Bay at the tackles.

The five repeaters from 1966 on offence were Mackey, Gregg, Kramer, Kelly and Sayers.

There were only three changes in the defensive unit, two linebackers and one cornerbacker. The same front four were back. That meant Willie Davis of Green Bay at one end and Jones at the other with Bob Lilly of Dallas and Olsen at the tackles.

Tommy Nobis of Atlanta Falcons pushed his way into the middle linebacker job, held by Green Bay's Ray Nitschke last year, Dave Robinson of the Packers, replacing teammate Lee Roy Caffey, and repeater Chuck Howley of Dallas, were the other linebackers.

Soaked Fans Hoot Timeouts for TV

BALTIMORE (AP)—Timeouts called for the purpose of showing commercials on television were booed loudly Sunday by fans at the National Football League game between Baltimore Colts and New Orleans Saints.

It was raining hard and the temperature was 37 degrees.

John F. Steadman, sports editor of the Baltimore News American, devoted a full column to the subject under the heading "TV Timeouts All Wet to Soaked Fans."

He wrote there were 17 timeouts during the game, "six of which were called for the express purpose to sell commercial products to the TV viewers along the network.

IMPOSITION TO FANS

"It was an imposition to the fans of Baltimore to have to be inconvenienced by television timeouts while they took a drenching."

Television commercials are scheduled in advance to be shown at certain times during a game. If the ball is not dead otherwise, such as after a touchdown or at the two-minute warning, and it is time for a commercial, the referee calls an official timeout on a signal from a representative of the television staff on the sideline.

Steadman called upon Pete Rozelle, NFL commissioner, to appoint a committee to study the television timeout system.

A spokesman for the National Football League said he was not aware of any abuses and that the game would have to be reviewed before any official comment could be made.

"The understanding is that TV commercials are to be shown at convenient stages when they don't interrupt the movement of the game," the spokesman said. "That is, after scores, etc.

"If there are not enough of these occasions, then the officials may call timeouts for TV but they should not interrupt the game. They are made at the change of the ball and times like that."

BY LABOR

LBJ War Policy Backed

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — President Johnson says he will not be deterred, influenced or inflamed by his Vietnam war critics "regardless of my polls and regardless of the elections."

Departing from his prepared text in a televised and broadcast speech to the AFL-CIO convention here Tuesday, the president said: "I am going down the centre of the road—doing my duty as I see it—for the best of my country."

The representatives of U.S. organized labor roared their approval when Johnson said he would always be ready to hear and act on any proposal for ending the Vietnam war. And their volume increased when he added:

"But in the meantime I want you to know—and I want all Americans to know— that I am not going to be deterred. I am not going to be influenced. I am not going to be inflamed by a bunch of political selfish men who want to advocate their own interest."

HITS REPUBLICANS

The president also had harsh words for congressional Republicans terming them "wooden soldiers" warring on progress.

He asked the representatives of the 14,000,000 - member labor federation to help Democrats elect a "great Congress" in 1968.

About 2,000 convention delegates, officials and guests frequently interrupted Johnson's jibes at the Republicans with cheers, applause and laughter.

"We support you, Mr. President, and we urge you to carry on," said Meany.

The only part of Johnson's speech met with silence was his plea for voluntary wage restraints, similar to his request last week for price restraint from business.

The labor delegates earlier this week said they wouldn't be bound by any voluntary restraints.

Earlier the mere mention of economics professor John Kenneth Galbraith and Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy (D-Minn.), brought loud boos, Galbraith, who teaches at Harvard University, is former ambassador to India. McCarthy, who in the past has enjoyed wide labor support, plans to oppose Mr. Johnson in the presidential primaries next year on the issue of Vietnam.

Meany drew laughter and applause when he said he had read a resolution passed by the labor section of the committee for a sane nuclear policy two weeks earlier in The Worker, the American Communist weekly. The resolution counseled a cessation of bombing North Vietnam but not an American pullout.

Emil Mazey, secretary-treasurer of the United Auto Workers and a sponsor of the same meeting in Chicago last month was not amused. Meany's remarks "are the sort of thing you might expect from a senile old man" Mazey said. "They are libelous, slanderous and false."

BEAT UP PROTESTERS

Thomas W. (Teddy) Gleason openly boasted before the federation's biennial convention that members of his International Longshoremen's Association beat up young war protesters and draft card burners in New York last week.

Joseph Curran, president of the National Maritime Union, said anyone who didn't actively oppose communism is "in bed with the Communists."

A substitute resolution for a neutral AFL-CIO stance on Vietnam was offered by Presiden Charles Cogen of the American Federation of Teachers, which had taken the same position during its own recent convention.

It won an estimated 30 or 40 yeas in a voice vote. The original resolution pledging continued support for present policy passed with only a half dozen delegates standing in opposition.

Some observers regarded the actions as yet another rebuke to Walter P. Reuther, the auto workers president who resigned from the AFL-CIO executive council last spring after claiming the federation had become fat, complacent and no longer an adequate representative of American workers. Reuther takes a more moderate position on Vietnam—although not as dovish as Mazey's—and attacked an earlier council resolution on Vietnam as "jingoistic" and sabre rattling.

Sentence Suspended

LONDON (AP)—Brian Jones, guitarist of the Rolling Stones pop group, had his nine-month sentence on drug charges set aside Tuesday. He was placed on probation for three years and ordered to pay a maximum fine of £1,000 ($2,570). Jones, 25, had been on bail since being sentenced Oct. 31 for possessing marijuana and allowing his Kensington apartment to be used for smoking marijuana.

OBJECTIVE: SOCIAL DEVELOPMENT

SECOND OF A SERIES

'We Let Them Feel We Accept Them'

By KATHRINE THOMAS

There are many children in our public school system who need extra help because they have specific disabilities that cannot be handled within a regular classroom. The Greater Victoria School Board has set up a number of special classes designed to meet the individual needs of these children. In the following article, the second of a series, Times reporter Kathrine Thomas tells about the nature of the specail classes.

Opened in September, 1966, it is a small modern building with five bright classrooms and an auditorium. School board plans call for an expansion in the near future.

The teaching staff of six are concerned and dedicated; the children appear happy and affectionate.

Most of the children at the school have an IQ in the 30-50 range. They are not capable of academic achievement but they can be taught to do manual tasks that will enable them to be accepted in society.

"The training is directed towards social development," says principal Ed Sullivan. "We are mainly concerned with altering their behavior patterns to conform with the accepted patterns of society."

The school follows no academic program. Instead the children are taught such basics as learning how to recognize signs, to sit still, to have good manners at meal times and to tidy up their rooms.

Some of the older boys can make rugs, paint, work with wood and cook. The girls also cook, vacuum, wash dishes and do the shopping.

At the moment there are 60 children in the school—approximately 10 to a teacher.

"The public needs to be better educated about the mentally retarded," says teacher Miss Elizabeth Gurney. "They need to mix with them and see they are not as objectionable as many people think.

"People are always afraid of anyone who differs from the norm. But I think if one were blind and some of the children did not have speech problems, it would be hard to tell that they were different."

Miss Gurney feels that one of the greatest problems is that parents and the public are afraid to make demands on the children—they overprotect them.

"Their capabilities need to be used to the utmost," she says.

The teachers at Victor school try to deal with the children through kindness and affection. "We have to let them feel we accept them," says another teacher, Mrs. Perea Bjornson. "In many ways they are just like normal children, only more limited."

To help them develop their potential, they are taught to understand stories in sequence by working with blocks, to fit together puzzles, to string beads in order and to paint, cut and paste.

"They are really good with their hands," says Mrs. Bjornson, "and they have marvellous memories."

To teach the mentally retarded you must have a great deal of self-confidence, says Miss Gurney. "You need to be very optimistic and to be able to accept disappointments."

"Sometimes they may surprise you," Mrs. Bjornson added, "but if you expect them to follow through, you will be disappointed. You have to be satisfied with just a little success."

What happens to the mentally retarded child when he leaves the school?

"Very few of them are able to go out in the world," says Mr. Sullivan, "they will always have to work in a sheltered workshop—and with our dependence on machines, it is becoming much harder to find places for them.

Some do find work at the Elford Street Centre run by the Association for the Mentally Retarded, and a few at the Goodwill Centre, but there is a sad lack of facilities to accommodate them all and many just remain at home.

But Mr. Sullivan does feel the work of the school has great validity. "We are helping them as much as we can and we are also helping to relieve the family of the burden for a short while a day."

And the rewards of working with the children are many. As one teacher put it, "Never have we felt so needed, never have we felt so loved."

POLLUTION CONTROL BOARD APPROVES

Sewer Hook-Up May Solve Plaza Problems

The provincial Pollution Control Board Tuesday advised Metropolitan Board of Health of a new plan to solve Colwood Plaza sewage problems.

The provincial board has approved a hook-up of the shopping centre with the Belmont Park sewer network.

This is expected to end a recurring problem of pooling of septic tank effluent, the local health board was told.

The health board also considered complaints that remarks by Medical Health Officer Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread concerning septic tank problems had injured property values in View Royal and Craigflower.

The directors decided that they, not the doctor, were responsible for the statements.

Dr. Whitbread pointed out, "I find there is a strong possibility the condition can be alleviated and we are having a meeting with the ratepayers' association Wednesday night at which it is hoped some answers can be found."

EASED

The board also was told that sand filter regulations have been eased in Greater Victoria area. For years, septic tanks had been permitted in areas of poor drainage, provided a sand filter box was also installed. But a change in regulations appeared to doom new construction in non-sewered areas, a few weeks ago.

Saanich was alarmed at the prospect and the health board asked the provincial government for clarification.

Since then, the board was advised, the new regulations are not retroactive and do not affect building projects already started.

VATICAN TO SPEAK ON VIETNAM

VATICAN CITY (AP)—The Vatican announced today that "an important papal document," presumably on world peace and the Vietnam war, will be made public Friday.

The announcement will be presented by Maurice Cardinal Roy, archbishop of Quebec and president of the Vatican Commission on Justice and Peace. Vatican sources said the document would contain the views of Pope Paul on present major world peace problems, especially the Vietnam war.

ISLAND PROJECTS LACKING

Bleak Picture for Construction Firms

A dreary winter followed by a grim spring and summer is the outlook for heavy construction on Vancouver Island.

Contractors polled today indicate there are too few confirmed projects to go around for the number of firms in heavy construction work.

High interest rates have deferred private projects and cutbacks on capital spending have sliced into proposed government undertakings.

"The outlook for 1968 is bleak," said Ken Oliver, of Oliver Equipment Service and Supply Ltd.

There is a choice of pending projects in the heavy category, ranging from roads and bridges, piers and docks, large buildings, hydro installations and allied undertakings.

The amount of new construction under way or committed, coupled with major projects proposed for the immediate future, looks paltry compared with the hundreds of millions spent on new pulp mill construction in recent years.

SCATTERED

Another $6.6 million of proposed jobs worth at least $200,000 brings the grand total to $33 million.

By comparison, a single pulp mill addition to B.C. Forest Products' Crofton operation—now virtually finished—cost $25 million and brings the total worth of that mill to $125 million.

Oscar Erickson, general manager of Nanaimo Bulldozing Ltd., the largest earth-moving firm on the central and northern Island, pointed out it had been "a long time since the government called any future contracts for highway development."

No new highway work has been awarded since 1966, although some clearing, bridge and paving work has been given out.

Mr. Erickson said there is no B.C. Hydro work in sight and little else to tender on, although next year could see some private logging roads built.

The trouble with that forecast, he said, is that so many logging companies today do their own roadbuilding.

The outlook is "grim," he said.

Mr. Oliver gave Patricia Bay Highway as an example of needed highway work that is going unheeded by the government.

There are also fewer housing subdivisions due to the cost of mortgage money and tighter local sewer restrictions.

The requirements mean that in order to get building lots where septic tanks are permitted, a builder has to venture into unorganized areas, Mr. Oliver said.

More bankruptcies in the construction business are noted from day to day, he said.

Mutual Equipment Rentals Ltd. has seen a decline in demand for heavy machinery. George Farmer said the heavy construction outlook is "not so good."

Mr. Oliver said he faces the prospect of having an inventory of idle machinery, unable to sell or rent it.

Among the largest projects under way on the Island are Eric Martin mental health centre, worth $7 million; the provincial museum, $9 million; an addition to Pacific Biological S tion, $3.5 million; Blanshard School, $493,112; paving at Gold River, $785,760; Elizabeth Fisher School addition, $378,189, an. Saanich arena, $534,000.

Of the proposed projects, a University of Victoria common block—virtually assured—is the largest undertaking at $1.5-$2 million, followed by a $500,000 Duncan courthouse and a North Cowichan sewer program worth $470,000, and a new hospital wing at Comox estimated at $350,000.

Possible new structures, often discussed and postponed are a provincial vocational school and a $4 million school for retarded children, both in Saanich. The latter has had a $343,596 start on its heating plant, but the rest of the job has yet to be called.

Yemen Capital Quiet

SAN'A (AP)—Yemen's mountaintop capital was firmly in republican control today and from no quarter was there any sound of royalist gunfire. Col. Abdullah Barakat, 40, acting interior minister, estimated the active royalist force at only 300 men, operating in groups of five or less, and said the republicans could not mount a big offensive to smash them because the royalists did not have a real army, only tiny bands.

McCloskey Wins

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (Reuters) — Paul McCloskey, 40, a Republican dove on the Vietnam war, won the House of Representatives' seat for San Mateo County Tuesday night. The seat had been sought unsuccessfully earlier by Shirley Temple Black, former child movie star. McCloskey, a Korean War hero, beat Democrat Roy Archibald, 47, also a dove, in a runoff election.

Canada Joins Major League In Tourist $$

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada has joined Italy, the United States and Spain in the big four money-earners of tourist dollars and if it uses its resources well, can stay in that league, Trade Minister Winters said Tuesday.

"By hard work, by persistent promotion, we have moved into tourism's billion-dollar-league," Mr. Winters told delegates to the federal-provincial tourism convention.

But both Mr. Winters and director Dan Wallace of the Canadian travel bureau agreed Canada cannot expect to match the $1,250,000,000 it reaped in tourist dollars in 1967.

Expo 67 and other centennial events pushed Canada's earnings from tourists this year and it isn't realistic to expect the same result in 1968.

Mr. Wallace set $1,100,000,000 as the 1968 target and looked forward to 1972 when he predicted the total would rise to $1,500,000,000.

AMONG THE BEST

Mr. Winters said facilities for tourists in Canada—hotels, restaurants and transportation—are among the best in the world.

"Our centennial has left us a legacy of new theatres, libraries, museums, aquariums, planetariums, community centres. We have overnight accommodation for more than 500,000 guests, 60,000 miles of paved roads, excellent air services."

Mr. Winters said few Canadians realize how important the tourist industry is to the country as a provider of jobs, a market for Canadian goods and an earner of essential foreign exchange.

The federal government would not be able next year to put as much money in travel promotion as it would like. Mr. Winters said the budget would be $10,000,000, slightly over the 1967 total.

DELAYS SURVEY

The crackdown on government spending also will delay for one year a planned survey of interprovincial travel by Canadians.

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics will be unable to provide the increased staff for the study estimated to cost about $1,000,000.

The study would establish the amount of money Canadians spend visiting other provinces. Mr. Winters said estimates vary between $1,000,000 and $3,000,000.

With the exception of Nova Scotia, which predicted a decrease of about eight per cent, the provinces reported increases in tourists during 1967. All pointed to Expo as the prime reason.

The 1968 tourist season will build on the awareness of Canada created by Expo. The theme will be "Expo plus One" and the travel bureau plans to put out direct mail to "7,000,000 good prospects" to visit Canada in 1968.

ASTRONAUT PROTECTION PACT AGREED

UNITED NATIONS (Reuters) — The United States and the Soviet Union were reported Tuesday night to have agreed on a convention covering protection and repatriation of astronauts and liability for damages in case of space accidents.

Usually-reliable sources said the terms will be considered Tuesday by the legal subcommittee of the General Assembly committee on outer space.

Details were not disclosed. It is depicted as the first major breakthrough in space co-operation since a treaty on the peaceful use of outer space was concluded in January.

KIDNAP victim, Mrs. Frances Howe, 50, and her banker husband, E. Frank Howe, talk to newsmen in Glendale, Calif., Tuesday after she was released unharmed less than two hours after being abducted from her home. Police quickly arrested two men and recovered $50,000 ransom money. Fifty policemen and a police helicopter staked out the ransom drop, a trash can in nearby Van Nuys. A car drove up and one man got out and grabbed the paper bag containing the money. Police converged on the car and found Mrs. Howe lying on the floor of the car. The men have been identified as Edson Legrande Little, 25, and Robert Sheader, 32. (AP Wirephoto).

New 'Awareness' Oceans Aren't For Dumping

Attitudes towards sewage and industrial waste disposal are changing rapidly throughout the world, a Fisheries Research Board scientist said Monday night.

Speaking at the University of Victoria, Michael Waldichuk of the board's biological section in Nanaimo, said:

"We've suddenly become aware of the fact that this big ocean is not completely available for waste disposal.

"After a good deal of research, we've found that the use of the ocean is no longer to be considered legitimately for waste disposal."

Many engineers, however, still propose that dispersal of wastes into the ocean was the cheapest method of sewage disposal.

"But this is an attitude that is rapidly changing," he said.

"I would say that our present permissive outlook by pollution control agencies is strictly an interim measure."

Year-Old Theft Of Car Admitted

A man who stole a car over a year ago pleaded guilty in central court Tuesday to theft over $50.

William Quebec, 22, of no fixed address, admitted stealing a car Oct. 7, 1966, belonging to Edwin Popham, 1234 Transit Road.

Prosecutor Cory Stolte told the court Quebec had 21 theft convictions and one of escaping custody in the years 1962 and 1963.

MARTIN SAYS PARIS TALKS 'FRIENDLY'

Canada Wants Closer Ties

By HAROLD MORRISON

BRUSSELS (CP) — The Canadian government is seeking to promote closer relations with France despite President de Gaulle's open support for separatism in Quebec, a position which Prime Minister Pearson has described as unacceptable and intolerable.

External Affairs Minister Paul Martin told a press conference Tuesday that Canada may sell plutonium to France. Steps also had been taken to implement agreement for exchange visits by young persons in the two countries and for joint co-operation in space research.

After a meeing with French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville, Martin insisted that relations between Canada and France are "harmonious and friendly."

No one need undersell Canada, Martin said. In the next 15 years Canada would be more united than either Britain or France. There would be no breakup of Canadian confederation.

His meeting with Couve de Murville, he said, could not have been better.

DID NOT DISCUSS

Martin said he had not discussed de Gaulle's statements with Couve de Murville.

The plutonium, if sold, would go to the French Atomic Energy Commission for peaceful use. France would have to agree to international inspection safeguards.

The fabricated plutonium, he added, would come from Canadian plants, probably from Douglas Point, Ont., but would have no bearing on the sale of uranium to France. France had show interest in buying Canadian uranium a few years ago but negotiations collapsed, partly because Canada insisted on rigid inspection safeguards.

TO NEW NAVAL UNIT

While Martin conferred with Couve de Murville and other representatives of the Big Four, Defence Minister Leo Cadieux told the 14-country NATO military alliance Canada agrees in principle to contribute a destroyer to a new Atlantic task force to keep an eye on an expanding Soviet fleet of trawlers and submarines lurking off the Canadian and other coastlines.

Cadieux declined to say how close Soviet submarines and trawlers have come to Canadian coastlines, but suggested they were outside the territorial waters—"on the high seas."

Canada also agreed to continue to maintain her current commitments to NATO for at least another year and endorsed the NATO five-year plan for estimated military contribution—a so-called rolling plan that would be subject to review annually.

INTO LIGHT BRIGADE

An adjustment will be made to turn a heavy Canadian brigade, in reserve in Canada, into a light brigade which can be moved quickly into NATO use through existing and additional aircraft soon to be acquired. These will include four C-141 Lockheed transport planes.

Intermunicipal Body Organizes for Next Year

It was "plan for the future day" Tuesday as the Greater Victoria Intermunicipal Committee held its final meeting of the year.

With five items on the agenda the committee, comprised of municipal representatives from Victoria, Oak Bay, Esquimalt and Saanich, switched two decisions back to individual councils, one to the Regional District Board, and for the other two ordered study committees to be struck early in the new year.

A request from the Victoria Basketball Commission asking for civic grants to meet operating losses has already received favorable approval from Victoria and Oak Bay.

Both municipalities have tossed $400 each into the pot to boost basketball at the juvenile level.

Saanich and Esquimalt, their representatives said, require more time before they make a decision.

Mayor Hugh Stephen suggested that as soon as possible recreation supervisors from the area get together to form an advisory committee for the future.

The same fate met an application from the Greater Victoria Library Board seeking reaction to its proposed expansion program over the next four years.

Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow, also attending his last Intermunicipal Committee meeting, suggested that a meeting between the mayor and municipal reeves and library board members be convened as soon as possible.

"We want to know where we're going and what we want," Ald. Edgelow said. "I think we are all concerned with rising library costs and the only way we can find out just what is required is to get together with these people."

The Intermunicipal group agreed and a joint meeting will be called early in the new year.

The Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health sought endorsation from the Intermunicipal Committee for an area-wide referendum on fluoridation of domestic water.

Its bid was switched to the Regional District Board after Mayor Stephen pointed out that the Intermunicipal group could only refer the request for support back to individual councils.

WRONG PLACE

"This committee is not a suitable vehicle for a request of this kind," the mayor said. "I think we should write back and suggest that they ask the regional board to make application for a change in the letters patent so that things like this can be taken care of."

The metro health board wants to press for all domestic water in all areas of the regional district to be treated with fluoride.

The fifth item on the agenda, a request for $750 for a luncheon for the annual convention of the Institute of Public Administration, was referred to individual councils.

Some 190-200 delegates belonging to the Institute will meet here in September, 1968.

HOVERCRAFT FOR C.G.

OTTAWA (CP) — The transport department announced Tuesday it is buying one hovercraft for the Canadian Coast Guard at Vancouver to see just how the craft, which floats over land or water on a cushion of air, could be used in other parts of the country.

The British-built vehicle, to be delivered in May, will cost about $490,000.

Small Farms Unaided By New Tax Proposal

A proposed tax formula to be presented to the provincial government next week to alleviate land tax on farms won't benefit small holdings.

This means that most farms on the Saanich Peninsula, Metchosin and Sooke area wouldn't benefit.

The formula proposes an increase on assessments on home and home sites and a decrease in farm land taxation.

The increased assessments on homes on small holdings equals the decrease on farm land taxation to be received under the formula, he explained.

Assessments on homes on large farms would also go up but the formula provides a greater tax reduction for large acreage, he said.

With no land tax relief proposed for small holdings, the break-up of small farms for housing is expected to take place at an increasing rate on the Saanich Peninsula.

Land values and taxes are rising so rapidly that it's no longer economical to start a new farm on the peninsula.

Agricultural experts also predicted the decline of the $1,500,000 greenhouse industry and berry farming.

Alan Littler, district horticulturist, said it is becoming extremely difficult for some greenhouse operators to stay in business because of high land values.

He cited as an example a greenhouse business which occupied a three-acre lot valued at $35,000.

"The operator is paying about 7 per cent on his land capital investments which amounts to $2,500 a year," he said. "On top of that he pays $850 in taxes."

NORTH OF MALAHAT

He predicted the greenhouse industry would gradually move to other localities, north of the Malahat.

Dixon Holloway, Island View Road loganberry grower, also said there would be a slow but steady decline in berry production on the Saanich Peninsula.

"I don't see any further expansion of berry farms," he said.

Defensive Driving Course in B.C. Urged

B.C. should have defensive driving courses that are mandatory for every driver in the province, B.C. Safety Council president B. M. Brabant said Tuesday.

Mr. Brabant told a gathering of senior government officials at a safety award ceremony he was "appalled" by a cost figure from traffic accidents which he estimated at some $94,000,000 this year alone.

"There are new educational techniques available," he said, "but they need top government support. We believe it is within the grasp of your government and the people of this province to become world leaders in this field."

Mr. Brabant also called on insurance companies to deduct the cost of a defensive driving course from their premiums—in an effort o make the courses still more attractive to the driver.

Provincial Secretary Wesley Black said he was sympathetic to the view expressed by the safety official.

$33,493 Bid Recommended On Paving Work

A $33,493 bid by Victoria Paving Co. Ltd. for Oak Bay's 1968 paving program has been recommended by "B" committee for council approval.

The money will provide nearly 1,400 feet on Windsor Road and, subject to government approval, 3,600 feet on Cedar Hill Cross Road.

The committee also recommended $27,790 be spent next year to complete the boulevard sprinkling system.

The rest of the 16-item agenda at Monday's committee meeting was tabled until Saturday morning when committee members will make an inspection tour of the municipality.

They will study traffic problems, inspect trees which have been subjects of requests for removal and look into flooding and drainage problems.

Spaniards Happily Quit N. Vietnam

MADRID (AP) — A group of Spaniards repatriated after years as prisoners in North Vietnam described the country as a "concentration camp" and said they had to flee to the jungles to escape American bombs.

"My poor wife is half crazy from the bombing," said David de la Cruz, who spent nearly 20 years in North Vietnam, first as a member of the French Foreign Legion and later as a captive in North Vietnam.

The seven men and their vietnamese wives were repatriated during the weekend from Hanoi. In interviews with Spanish newspapers they said the Spanish government arranged their repatriation.

Canada's first postage stamp, the three-penny beaver of 1851, depicted a beaver in a forest setting and was designed by Sir Sandford Fleming.

STOLEN BOA LOCATED

Sofa Lump 'Slithers' Away

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (Reuters) — There was a large lump in the sofa of a furnished apartment rented six months ago by Manuel Valencia, his wife and small child, but they got used to it.

Then suddenly the lump disappeared—and Valencia found a seven-foot-long Colombian boa constrictor nestling happily under the refrigerator in the kitchen.

Police, who are looking for the former tenant, said the boa was stolen from a local zoo earlier this year.

They speculated it had gorged itself on a heavy meal and then contentedly gone to sleep in the sofa.

More Greeks Jailed

SALONIKA (AP)—A Greek military tribunal has sentenced five former members of a leftist youth organization to prison for violating a temporary military law forbidding meetings of five or more persons.

The law, imposed soon after the April 21 coup by the ruling military regime, was repealed a month after their arrest. One man received five years, the others 13 months each.

ARCTIC OIL HUNT

Potential High Minister Says

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government went into the oil-and-gas exploration business Tuesday by investing at least $9,000,000 in mineral research in the Arctic islands.

But the risk—amounting to three hundredths of one per cent of the federal budget—was one worth taking, Northern Development Minister Laing said.

He told the Commons the government is joining with a consortium of 20 Canadian oil companies to explore the potentially-rich mineral acreage of the islands. Permits held by the Panarctic Oils Ltd. amount to 44,000,000 acres or 63 per cent of the islands.

The 20 companies will invest $11,000,000 over a three-year period and the federal government $9,000,000. An additional $10,000,000 may be tacked on to this amount.

Mr. Laing said geologists agree the potential is high and the federal government will hold 45 per cent of the common shares and 45 per cent of the preference shares. The government share will come from its existing five-year northern development fund which already has been budgeted for.

"It's the happiest day I've had since becoming a minister," Mr. Laing told a press conference. The joining of government and private interests was the best way to tackle problems associated with Arctic exploration.

COULD CHANGE ROLE

He said discovery of oil "could conceivably change Canada's role ultimately from that of a net importer of oil to that of a net exporter with all the consequent benefits to our balance of payments position and our economic well-being generally.".

A statement by the company said scores of thousands of Canadians will have a direct interest in the Arctic program as shareholders of corporations involved in Panarctic.

These are Canadian Pacific Oil and Gas Ltd., Cominco Ltd., Bankeno Mines Ltd., Thor Exploration Co. Ltd., Campbell Red Lake Mines Ltd., Sigma Mines Quebec Ltd., Canadian Gridoil Ltd., Conick Petroleums Ltd., Canadian Nickel Co. Ltd., Noranda Mines Ltd., Bow Valley Industries Ltd., Dome Petroleum Ltd., Dome Mines Ltd., Scenic Oils Ltd., Anticline Petroleums Ltd., Excel Petroleums Ltd., Eagle Ridge Petroleum Ltd., Eric Connelly, Canadian Industrial Gas and Oil Ltd.

Also sharing in any find would be shareholders in about 60 small companies which agreed to have their permits explored by Panarctic. With government participation, the Canadian-owned share was 76 per cent.

A northern development official estimated a find would have to yield between 200,000 and 300,000 barrels a day to be developed.

NARROW ESCAPE was experienced by U.S. Sen. Charles Percy of Illinois, considered a Republican U.S. presidential possibility, when he came under Viet Cong mortar and small-arms fire today while walking through the devastated South Vietnamese village of Dakson. His wife was waiting in a nearby helicopter which took off as two mortar rounds burst within 20 feet. Other helicopters lifted Percy and his party out of danger.

HYDROFOIL DAMAGED HITTING LOG

The Tucumcari was up on its foils, "flying" at high speed when she struck and splintered a large log in the rough, debris-laden waters of the strait. The 71-foot Boeing-built craft sustained damage to the front foil strut.

The Tucumcari crew was conducting builder's trials for the United States Navy at the time of the mishap. The trials will be resumed after repairs are made.

The gunboat has been operated more than 65 hours since its first run in October.

LESS FILMS

India's recession has caused a drop in the production of films with only 205 films certified in the first nine months of 1967, compared to an average of 310 for similar periods in the last three years.

CUSTODY CASE

Sect Leader Arrested In Montreal

MONTREAL (CP)—A religious leader involved in a court battle over the custody of about 80 children was arrested here Tuesday night, several weeks after he came out of hiding assuming he was no longer wanted by police.

Father Jean de la Trinite, head of a breakaway Roman Catholic sect called the Apostles of Infinite Love, was arrested as he visited friends in Montreal on a trip from his sect's Laurentian monastery located near St. Jovite, Que.

Police said he was arrested for failure to appear in court. Father Jean had been ordered to appear before welfare court last spring on charges that he had not been provided proper education, food and lodging for children of sect members living at the monastery.

He reappeared in St. Jovite last month after police began a search for him for failure to appear. The bearded leader said he had been travelling in the United States and Canada but had returned to St. Jovite when told by fellow Apostles that the warrant for his arrest had been withdrawn.

FACES CHARGE

He will appear in court in St. Jerome, Que, today to face the charges concerning his alleged failure to provide properly for the children.

The Apostles are appealing a welfare court decision which ordered 80 children from the monastery be turned over to welfare officials.

Most of the children were hidden by sect members following police raids on the monastery, about 60 miles north of Montreal. All but about 40 were later found by police or welfare officials and sent to foster homes.

Father Jean said last month that those still in hiding are getting regular schooling and care from the sect.

Four Young Dancers Have Prominent Roles

Four attractive young dancers from Victoria will have prominent roles in the performances of The Nutcracker at McPherson Playhouse Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

San Francisco's Ballet Celeste selected them at open auditions held last October. They are Anne Mullins, Deborah Lovett, Deborah McIntyre and Camille Connolly.

Camille, a leading young dancer in the city, has appeared for five seasons in the Butchart Gardens summer revue and in many musicals.

Miss McIntyre was the only Canadian girl from the West Coast to be selected by George Balenchine to appear with the New York City Ballet Company when it was presented at the World's Fair in Seattle.

Fourteen Victorians will also appear in children's roles in this full-length version of the popular ballet.

Highway 16 Partially Re-opened

PRINCE RUPERT (CP) — Highway 16, the only road linking this north coast city with the rest of British Columbia, was partially re-opened to traffic Tuesday after being blocked by a train derailment.

The highway and the Canadian National Railways line 30 miles east of here were blocked Monday when 13 cars of a freight train ran off the track.

Witnesses said a number of the derailed freight cars ran across the highway and others dropped into the adjacent Skeena River.

A track bent by a highways department snow plow was believed the cause of the derailment.

Plow driver Len Hemmons said he tried to flag down the train but was nearly struck by debris when freight cars began leaving the track.

Railway and highways officials were investigating.

Pseudo Doctor Glad His Career Ended

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—Freddie Brant, the ex-convict who successfully posed as a physician and psychiatric interne at a state mental hospital and as an East Texas town's only doctor for more than three years, says he feels "a great deal of relief" at being unmasked.

"It just all sort of skyrocketed," the crewcut, slender 44-year-old Brant said Tuesday of his career as an imposter.

He posted $10,000 bond at 2 a.m. Tuesday at the Kaufman County jail. Last Friday he was charged with perjury and forgery for his impersonation of Dr. Reid Brown, a Chattanooga, Tenn., physician for whom Brant had worked as a labor and x-ray technician for four years.

"I thought many times I'd like to get out of it," Brant said of his dual role at Terrell State Hospital and in the East Texas lumber town of Groveton.

Brant said at a press conference in the office of his lawyer, Emmett Colvin, that he had delivered four babies during his tenure as a physician. But he said he referred all critical or terminal cases to physicians in Lufkin, about 35 miles away, or to specialists in Galveston.

In Groveton, meanwhile, citizens circulated petitions on behalf of their only doctor and were pledging help to support him in efforts he might want to make to become a legitimate physician.

"I'm amazed by these people, by their faith in me and their desire to help," said Brant.

The Louisiana native said he'd like to return to Groveton, after his legal troubles are cleared, and be a laboratory and x-ray technician, which he is licensed to do.

Four Given Medals By Canada Council

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada Council Medals for 1967 have been awarded to historians Frank Underhill and Wallace K. Ferguson, painter Jean Paul Lemieux and literary scholar H. Northrop Frye, it was announced Monday.

The medals, each accompanied by a cash prize of $2,500, are awarded for outstanding achievement over a period of years in the arts, humanities or social sciences.

Jean Martineau, Canada Council chairman, paid tribute to Ferguson for keeping alive the spirit of the Renaissance by means of his "keen scholarship."

He called Frye "one of the intellectual giants of his generation" who has had an electrifying influence on Canada.

In presenting the medal to Underhill, he referred to him as "an apostle of Canadian liberalism" and a "writer of uncommon power and precision." Few men have had as much effect on the attitudes of a country, he said.

Lemieux is a man who paints to satisfy his soul and "that is what we see in his paintings," Mr. Martineau said.

Parisian World of Fashion Split in Two Sections

THE PRICE IS THE ONLY THING THAT REMAINS THE SAME ON BOTH SIDES

PARIS—Paris is increasingly splitting up between right bank and left bank.

Although the two sides often cross the river and mix, right bank brings up mink, black and pearls, cocktails at the Ritz, dinner at Maxim's and the sweet smell of success. Left bank means minettes (cute young girls) in jazzy clothes, castel's and regine's, a beer chez lipp and the fun of talking all night at La Coupole.

The fashion world has already split up. Houses like Saint Laurent, Pierre Cardin and Jean-Louis Scherrer have opened five gauche boutiques where they let go with wild, young and less expensive clothes. The sedate House of Guerlain also felt the need for a peppier branch when it opened The Jeunes Filles Shop. Now, the same virus is bugging the beauty parlors.

Now hairdresser Claude Maxime has launched her Rive Gauche Salon, to complement her right bank one at 15 Ave. Kleber. Claude is a pretty and determined blond girl who took only 10 years to conquer Paris. A small-town girl who had nothing but talent, she is now running not only her Paris salon but branches in Saint-Tropez, Deauville, Courchevel and La Baule.

"The idea is not to have one huge establishment," she says, "but several small ones in order to catch all the various clienteles."

Her two salons in Paris are as different as night and day. The right bank one, draped with pink moire, has crystal chandeliers, tender lights and a boudoir atmosphere. The customers wrap up in ruffled pink robes and the hairdressers are dressed in black and white, the currently chic couture color combination.

In the left bank shop which is smack on the Place Saint-Germain-Des-Pres, the decor is starkly modern, with white marble floors, brown walls and white knoll furniture. The round mirrors are circled with light bulbs just as harshly bright as in a movie star's dressing room. Upstairs, the customers sit under driers in a circus-like black and white room where they're shown, on color television, the latest creations of several neighboring boutiques. The uniform here is jodoka-like saffron kimonos for the clients, wild hippy outfits for the hairdressers.

Both salons have contrasting gift departments. The Avenue Kleber has scarves, Chanel-type jewelry and romantic black bows with white camellias. The left bank carries metal neckties (for both men and women), flowers, chains and 1920-ish jet bandeaux.

Consistently enough, the hairdos aren't the same either. Right bank customers want chignons, soft, face-framing waves and "I-want-to-be-pretty" approach. In Saint-Germain-Des-Pres the girls will get the new, all curls, Dolly Sisters' hairdos.

So, even in hairdos now women are faced with a difficult choice. The price list however, will be virtually the same.

Inexpensive Crystal For Holiday Elegance

By Penny Saver

If you have prepared a feast for your Christmas party you must make sure it is set off properly with the proper dishes, silverware and glasses. Of course, if you are unhappy about your table setting, you won't be able to rush out and buy another, but now could be the time to get proper wine glasses.

I went down to get some for myself and received a brief lecture on the latest in wine glasses. I was a bit surprised at the new shapes I was shown and at the reasonable prices. All the glasses were made of crystal, very thin and plain with no decoration at all.

White wine, I was told, must be served cold, and since it should stay cold for a while, glasses for white wine should have long stems so that it won't be warmed by your hands. The ones I saw had long elegant stems topped by round glasses. They cost only $1.39 each.

For the same price, there are glasses for red wines that are meant to be warm. The glasses have short stems and tall straight sides so that you can cup your hands around them to warm the beverage. These are as attractive as they can be and are large enough so that the youngsters with juice instead of wine won't feel left out.

My biggest surprise came when I was shown some champagne glasses. On the rare occasions when I have had this most celebrated drink, it has been served in shallow glasses. These glasses however were deep teardrops of crystal, the hollow reaching right down into the stem. The idea of this is that the bubbles will rise more slowly, increasing the beauty of the wine and, presumably, keeping the wine from going flat so quickly. The most attractive part is that the glasses are only $1.49 each and so beautiful that even if I can't afford champagne, I am itching to have the glasses.

Please call me at 382-3131 if you would like to know where I shopped.

THE BETTER HALF By Bob Barnes

"Why on earth would you want to sell an encyclopedia to a man who already knows everything?"

A New You

by Emily Wilkens

DEAR EMILY WILKENS:
FACTS ABOUT SLACKS

My friends and I enjoy your articles tremendously. We thought you could help stop the trend of women wearing slacks everywhere, but EVERYWHERE. Ninety per cent of the girls over 21 look so unfeminine and unattractive in slacks. Can't you suggest who should wear them and when?

NANCY H.

Where to wear pants is one thing. Who should wear them is another. In some areas, such as ultra-casual California, slacks are accepted almost anywhere. In other areas, this fashion worn on the street, in stores, or restaurants is as verboten as curlers (covered or not)! If all females took a good rear view of the situation, the pants-wearing population would undoubtedly diminish.

Aside from normal deterrents (oversized hips and thighs), many women fail to realize that as the years go on their buttock and tummy muscles sag, presenting a MOST unattractive image. All women can improve their appearance in pants by practicing this effective bottom and tummy tightener:

Several times during the day—the more the merrier—"suck in" the tummy and buttock muscles simultaneously and count to 10. Incidentally, girdles that are especially fitted for wearing under slacks are a great help, too.

MIX-UP FIX-UP

My face seems so mixed up it drives me mad. Since my skin breaks out, I use special drying preparations. However, my neck and undereye area seem very dry as a result. Can I use an oil or cream on them and the medicated products on the rest?

LUCY L.

Indeed you may, Lucy, and don't be discouraged. You're hardly an exception . . . most people have combination complexions that need a variety of care.

Every evening use a bland cream or oil for 10 minutes on your lips, neck and under your eyes. Blot off the excess and try not to get oil or cream anywhere else on your face. Then proceed with your normal preparations.

Emily Wilkens welcomes letters, but cannot undertake to answer each one. She will use questions in her column of general interest. Address your letters to Emily Wilkens, in care of this newspaper.

NEWLYWEDS WILL LIVE IN IDAHO

Following their wedding in Christ Church Cathedral Mr. and Mrs. Gregory Scott Hulsey left on a honeymoon trip along the Oregon coast before travelling to make their new home in Lewiston, Idaho.

The bride, the former Marlene Jane White, wore a floor-length gown of peau de soie, topped with a coat of white cut velvet. The coat was styled with wrist-length sleeves and featured a train sweeping back from the shirred waistline. A pearl and crown headpiece held her tiered illusion veil. She carried a cascade bouquet of red roses, centred with a white bow. As jewelry she wore an heirloom opal and diamond ring and a pearl necklace, gift of the groom.

White flowers decorated the church when Canon C. Hilary Butler heard vows uniting the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. R. Arthur White, 1409-350 Douglas Street, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Hulsey of Oroville, Wash. Dr. White gave his daughter in marriage.

CHORAL CEREMONY

The boys' choir sang as the wedding party entered the church. Miss Claire Wiley, soloist, sang "Ave Marie" and the choir sang "A Wedding Prayer" during the signing of the register.

Mrs. Irving Trembley, Oliver, was matron of honor, Miss Dianne Johnson, Vancouver, was bridesmaid, and Mrs. Glen Whitton, bridesmatron. They wore matching gowns of blue velvet with tiaras of garnet roses and feathered chrysanthemums in their hair. They carried open-lace fans decorated with red sweetheart roses.

John Odello, Carmel, Calif. acted as best man. Ronald Barillaro, North Surrey and James Arnzen, Lewiston, Idaho ushered the guests.

At the reception following in the Imperial Inn, a wedding cake topped with red sweetheart roses was cut. Dr. A. O. Stebnick, Vancouver, proposed the toast to the bride and Dr. J. N. Edmison acted as master of ceremonies. Miss Francis Schmidt was in charge of the guest book.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Find Husband Enjoyable Hobby

I just have to print two more letters from women whose husbands have retired.

"Dear Mrs. Lowman,

"My husband is retired. He had no hobbies. I kept trying to think of things for him to do to keep him happy and occupied, for his sake as well as mine.

Lowman

"I felt like I was supervising ward activity. He would take garbage out, do the shopping, take the laundry out, paint and do a little carpentry around the house and then look at TV.

"Then I saw the light and suggested that we buy a boat, any kind of a boat so that he could have an interest of his own and have some privacy. At first my husband insisted that I go along. It was fun but I realized that I couldn't go every day.

"Now he has his fishing and boat friends, and I am learning to play the organ. We both have our individual interests as well as our mutual interests. There is peace and harmony in the house.

"Now I am busy doing the shopping and laundry and going to weight watchers to lose the weight my husband's cooking has put on me. I have lost 17 pounds in a few weeks, and am practicing do, re, me, fa, so, la, tee, on the organ.

"This winter I guess we will put the boat in the back yard and maybe he will make some gadgets for it so that it will be ready for next summer. If my music doesn't improve, he may even sleep on the boat!"

Another:

"Dear Mrs. Lowman,

"My husband retired about five years ago. He had no hobbies. His work for the past 50 years had been his hobby so we took it from there.

"When a young couple marry, they face the fact that things will be different. What gets me is, why do people put so much stress on not wanting things to change? Are they so dull that they want to stay in the same old rut? Do women forget how nothing their home and their possessions would be without a husband to share them?

"I thought, "If my husband's work had been his hobby, how can he put it to work in retirement?" I remembered that through the years he had received many compliments on his interesting letters to business friends and personal friends. I suggested that he enroll in a correspondence course in writing.

"He did and I fixed up a corner of the living room for his study. I found a second-hand desk and we put up some bookcases which acted as a room divider for that corner.

"The project to date is 100 per cent successful. He made fine marks in the course and is still learning. He has sold a few things already but, more important, his mind is growing bigger and better every day.

"When we started retirement, it seemed that we had nothing in common, but we weren't thinking. Then we set aside one day to go exploring. With a picnic basketful of food and a car full of gas, what fun we have had!

"We select good books and take turns reading aloud. I could go on and on but the picnic basket and the car are waiting right now."

If you would like to have my free leaflet "Keeping Romance Alive" send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it. Address to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

In addition to one of his usual "helpers," Bernice Kendrick, Dr. Hugh L. Keenleyside volunteered to interpret for some of the smaller tots at the party. DEAR ABBY . . .

Let Mate 'Relate' His Real Feelings

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My husband works in an administrative group. They are all highly educated people. In searching for new approaches to work, they bandy such terms as "creativity," "sensitivity" and "relating" to one another. My husband says it is tiresome and ludicrous.

Not only does this require special meetings, they also retreat to some dude ranch where there is a bar, pool, fine meals and overnight accommodations to relate to each other even better. Left-over spouses are not included, so we sit home for days, waiting for them to finish up all the relating they can't seem to accomplish in town at the office.

I think it's admirable to organize such outings for the unmarrieds to help lead them to closer interpersonal relationships with each other, but my poor husband gets fed up with all this nonsense. He telephones to tell me how bored he is, and frequently he comes home early if he hasn't driven out with someone else. I asked him what would happen if he flatly refused to go. What do you think, Abby?

FROSTED IN TUCSON

DEAR FROSTED: And what did he say? If the whole business is as tiresome and ludicrous as he says it is, why doesn't he flatly refuse to go and find out?

DEAR ABBY: My teen-aged daughter is convinced she is ugly, and she is right. The sad part of it is, she does it to herself. She is a very bright girl, and God gave her a pretty face, but she ruins her appearance by wearing her hair in an unruly mop and letting her posture go.

I have told her if she would cut off half that mop and take some time for exercise to strengthen her abdominal muscles and her ankles each day she would be attractive, but she doesn't listen to me.

Should I continue to nag and insult her? Or should I let her face the insults of the outside world?

LOVING MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Leave her alone. If she is as bright as you say she is, she will soon realize she is losing out (if indeed she is) because of her appearance, and she will do something about it.

Troubled? Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069. For a personal reply, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

'Grave Political Crisis' If France Vetoes Talks

BRUSSELS (UPI) — Common Market nations must open negotiations on Britain's demand for membership or face a grave political crisis, a top executive of the market warned Tuesday.

Jean Rey, Belgian president of the market's executive commission, told a ministerial session that disagreement over Britain could bring "a terrible political crisis at a time when European unity is more necessary than ever."

Rey offered his 14-member group of economic and political experts for mediation between France and the five other market nations on the British problem.

French President Charles de Gaulle has refused to allow the community to talk with Britain. He recently warned that any attempt to force the negotiation issue could result in a French walkout.

Rey was reporting on talks he had Dec. 4 with British Prime Minister Harold Wilson and other government members. He quoted Wilson as saying Britain stands at the crossroads leading toward or away from Europe.

The executive commission, Rey said, could only recommend. Only the council of ministers can decide and the decision must be unanimous—hence France has an unshakable veto.

The council was scheduled to discuss the British demand Dec. 18-19 in what could be a "make or break" session.

No one expects de Gaulle to lift his veto and unless some compromise is found, the crisis Rey and De Gaulle both predict seems inevitable.

If West Germany, Italy, Holland, Belgium and Luxembourg bow again to France to avoid a crisis, they will acknowledge De Gaulle's dominance over the Common Market's economic and political affairs.

The five accepted reluctantly De Gaulle's first veto of Britain in January, 1963, and allowed him to cut down the powers of the executive commission in 1965. Both increased France's powers in the community.

. . . AS SCIENTISTS CLOSE TO SOLUTION

By RALPH DIGHTON
AP Science Writer

Scientists who even now are altering insects and animals by tinkering with genes predict that some day they will be able to change people, adapting them to virtually any environment.

"Ours is an age of transition," says Dr. Robert Sinsheimer, biophysicist at the California Institute of Technology. "After 2,000,000,000 years of natural evolution, this is the end of the beginning."

The science that offers this promise, however, has not yet brought forth the wisdom to guide man's most daring venture into the unknown. Human evolution is at a crossroads, but none knows what direction it will—or should—take.

The techniques for the genetic revolution are developing rapidly in laboratories as a result of the discovery in the 1940s that growth and heredity are controlled by a chemical substance, deoxyribonucleic acid—DNA.

The complex molecules of this acid are called genes, and there are about 150,000 of them clumped in chromosomes in the nucleus of every human body cell.

Genes control the cell's assembly of amino acids into proteins, the building blocks of living tissue. Normally they do this according to an inherited pattern which insures that each generation is much like its predecessor.

In recent years, scientists have learned how to disrupt this process with heat, radiation or chemicals, producing mutations, or freaks.

They also have learned how to transfer genes from one cell to another, causing a mixture of strains impossible in nature.

This bit of genetic wizardry leads to predictions of furry humans with powerful legs to explore the Antarctic, and gilled men who can live in the sea.

It also gives rise to some profound moral and social problems.

Nature, to insure continuation of the species, has made sex our strongest motivation. But when genetics comes of age there may be no need for sex.

Whatever else it may be, sex is mainly a mechanism of reproduction, but it is not the only mechanism. In some lower forms of life, there is no male or female differentiation between individuals. Many plants spread by "asexual" propagation.

SEX NOT NEEDED?

By copying this method, geneticists say—and nothing seems beyond their scope these days—human beings, too, can reproduce asexually, through a process called cloning.

In laboratories, single cells have been cultured so they divide and grow into a mass of tissue, each cell of which is exactly like the first. This is called a clone, from a Greek word related to colony.

Such a clone never develops to resemble the creature from which the original cell was taken, no matter how large it is allowed to grow. This is because the cell's genes—complex molecules which direct growth according to an inherited blueprint—carry instructions only for the cells to make replacas of themselves.

A fertilized egg cell grows into an embryo, however, because it carries full genetic instructions for its daughter cells to develop into all the differentiated kinds of tissue that make up a complex organism.

NEARING THE ANSWER

Geneticists are not sure yet just where along the line of development a cell gains the ability to differentiate, but they are getting close.

In experiments, they have cultured one fertilized frog egg into a blob of 1,000 cells, then with a tiny glass tube siphoned the nucleus from one of these cells. That nucleus they transplanted into another egg from which the nuclear matter had been removed. The egg with the transplanted nucleus grew into a healthy frog.

This genetic surgery was repeated many times and each time the result was a frog identical to the first.

This complicated process also is called cloning—production of a colony of identical individuals.

Nature has locked into the mechanism of sexual reproduction a barrier against cross-breeding. Fish sperm won't fertilize mammal ova.

But if you bypass the sexual process, as in cloning or in nuclear transplantation, you bypass the barrier. Thus any combination of genes, natural or synthetic, would appear feasible.

Patchwork creatures which are combinations of widely different strains may inhabit laboratories in the not-too-distant future.

Some day, society may want to create beings who can live in the ocean, fathoms below an atmosphere that may be charged with fallout from nuclear holocaust.

Or suppose over-population and famine made space exploration vital.

Might men not wish to weigh 10 pounds instead of 160, thus yielding space and payload to rocket fuel?

A genetic key to these now-locked doors is asexual reproduction. It would solve a lot of problems already foreseen for the day man starts genetic tinkering with himself.

With the elimination of sex as a means of reproduction, populations planners would have to make decisions on what to produce.

Someone would have to decide how many geniuses to clone each year, how many clerks, how many factory hands—and how many robots.

Eventualities such as these, many geneticists fear, may give rise to opposition more formidable than any science has yet faced. Surprisingly little, however, has developed to date.

Responsible men predict the human race can become whatever it decides to become. They hope mankind is more mature than it sometimes seems.

Alaska Ferry May Qualify For Grants

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) —Senator Warren Magnuson of Washington State is confident federal aid for Alaska's marine highway system can be obtained, Governor Walter Hickel said Monday.

Magnuson, chairman of the Senate commerce committee, told Hickel at a meeting in Washington, D.C., Sunday federal aid might be obtainable through the Urban Transportation Act or the Interstate Highway Program.

Hickel met with Magnuson while on an eastern trip that took him to the Republican governors' conference in Palm Beach, Fla., and to New York City.

MATCHING FORMULA

Hickel said federal aid through the Urban Transportation Act would be on a 50-50 matching formula. The interstate highway program provides for a 90-10 federal-state matching formula.

Hickel said he was adyised that through the Urban Transportation Act aid is available for transportation systems linking population centres.

If federal interstate highway funds can be obtained for the state's marine highway system, the governor said, the state's new route between Ketchikan and Puget Sound, due to start Thursday, will have to be a year-around operation.

On the basis of advance passenger car and freight bookings, Hickel said, the new run should pay its own way.

Championship Potatoes

Safeway is proud to be offering you these top quality, Canadian Grown, World Championship Netted Gem Potatoes. Shown above is Tona Ohama, of Ranier, Alberta receiving the Championship Trophy from Don F. Wright, chairman of the Vegetable Committee, Canadian Horticultural Council, for Netted Gem Table Potatoes. This award was made recently at the Toronto Royal Agricultural Winter Fair which is considered Canada's show window of agriculture and is open for international entries. Mr. Ohama also placed first in the Netted Gem Seed Potatoes Class.

The Table Potato Class is judged on dry matter, or starch content, as well as appearance. The Ohama Netted Gems which we are offering have exceptionally high dry matter . . . they'll boil or bake-up light, fluffy and white. They will also give you crisp, gold brown, home-made French fries.

Bank Bandit to Die

MADRID (UPI) — A Spanish military court today sentenced Jean Pierre Hellegouarch, a 24-year-old Frenchman, to death for robbing a Madrid bank on Dec. 1. Hellegouarch's two alleged accomplices, both male, were sentenced to 30 years in prison while a female defendant, was freed.

DEADLY SAMENESS IN CURRENT COMEDY CRITICIZED

Groucho Offers 'A Bit of Everything' to Viewers

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"When I turned 60, I thought I was washed up, that nobody would want to hire me. And now I've got more offers of jobs than ever before!"

Such is the position of Groucho Marx, the irreverent elder statesman of American comedy who refused to act his age, which is 72.

Those who hark back to the mad musical comedies of the Marx Brothers will be able to view the master in his fine old form tonight on NBC's Kraft Music Hall.

Groucho is host and performer on a special called A Taste of Funny, and he will be performing in his classic roles as Captain Spaulding and Dr. Hackenbush. He sings, he dances, he lopes about the stage like a lecherous fox. His performance may prove a revelation to youngsters who know him only as the acid quizmaster.

"We all learned to do a bit of everything in the old days," explained Groucho. "That's why the veteran comics can perform in any kind of sketch. I'm thinking of men like Bobby Clark, Willie Howard and George Burns. Bob Hope is darned good at it, too.

"Soupy Sales, who is on this show with me, is excellent at sketchy comedy; I think he has great possibilities that haven't been revealed yet.

"But most of the new crop of comedians can do only one thing: stand-up comedy. All they can do is get up in front of an audience and tell jokes. It's a pity, because this leads to a deadly sameness in comedy style."

Groucho claims that humor has fallen upon bad times in recent years, and he offered his reason for the decline.

"The laugh track," he declared. "Those phoney, recorded laughs on television comedies have done more to destroy comedy than anything else."

SAANICH HELP ASKED

'Our Defences Washed Away'

Saanich engineer Neville Life will make a report on serious erosion cases at Cordova Bay following the recent storms.

This was agreed by the municipal public works committee Tuesday night after hearing a delegation of local residents.

Spokesman Norman Sear said the damage has gone beyond the "individual effort" stage and help is needed.

"We feel the situation is quite serious," he said.

"Our defences were washed away. Most have gone. It is not a situation of immediate desperation but the next storm or high tide will be one."

Erosion had led to exposure of septic tank outlets onto a popular summer beach area.

CAN YOU HELP?

Committee chairman Coun. Leslie Passmore said the municipal solicitor assured him that unless it is proved the municipality did not do something it should have done, there is no responsibility by the municipality to do anything.

"We didn't come for legal argument. Can you help us?" asked Mr. Sear.

"I don't think quite frankly it's the municipality's problem," replied Coun. Passmore.

"It's simply a case, as representatives of all ratepayers, how we spend the money. If there is no obligation where do we stop? If a tree falls on a house we don't compensate."

15 PROPERTIES

But Coun. Passmore said accepting this argument means extending it to Cadboro Bay and Gordon Head, where there is also erosion, and Saanich "can't cope with reinforcing the coastline of the entire municipality."

Mr. Life said a casual inspection showed 15 properties seriously affected by the recent storms. Each one would have to be looked at to determine what is best in each case.

Mr. Sear said he doesn't think residents would go for $300 or $400 a year in a local improvement seawall two miles long and 10 feet high.

Mr. Life said the problem is that each person has different requirements.

Asked whether the medical health officer has been consulted about exposed septic tank outlets, Coun. Passmore said he didn't know if he read the newspapers but he would probably demand "something other than the method of disposal be in there."

Coun. Passmore asked the engineer directly if Cordova Bay could be considered a disaster area.

"I don't think it would qualify as a disaster area," replied Mr. Life. "The people have had a warning."

NEW Victoria district administrator for immigration division, department of manpower and immigration, is J. Douglas Cook. Mr. Cook, who has been with the department 10 years, was formerly regional training officer working out of Vancouver.

EXPERTS SUPPLY UNPLEASANT FACTS

Survival Struggle Faces Farmers

By HUMPHRY DAVY

Vancouver Island farmers face a struggle for survival in the next 10 years due to revolutionary changes in the agricultural industry.

But if they adjust themselves to new and technological advances, new food producing processes, they may emerge stronger economically than ever before.

This seems to be the consensus of an agricultural Outlook conference for Vancouver Island held in Courtenay Tuesday.

The outlook was based on hard and unpleasant facts supplied by agricultural experts and some of the most efficient and experienced Island growers.

The conference was one of the most important meetings of its kind held on Vancouver Island in years.

Growers representing every branch of farming, discussed and thrashed out with experts some of major problems facing their industry in the next decade.

Chairing the meeting was Alec H. Turner, deputy minister of the B.C. department of agriculture, who left no doubt in the minds of growers that difficulties were in store for them.

But he was optimistic that growers would meet the challenge.

"The push is on," he said. "We must move along with these changes.

"It is up to you individually, your organizations, to adjust yourself to these changes through sound farm management," he added.

About 100 delegates were present, including a large group from the Saanich Peninsula and Duncan.

Some idea of what is at stake in the industry's struggle for survival—the effect on the island's economy if farming declined—was given by some agricultural experts.

The estimated gross cash receipts from the sale of farm produce is $18,000,000.

LARGE INVESTMENT

The average per capita investment of growers is $30,000 (not including home) compared to labor's $11,000.

(Capital investments of dairy farmers may run as high as $80,000 or more.)

Some developments growers will have to face in the next few years:

● Rising land values which are making farming uneconomical in some areas. This is especially true on the Saanich Peninsula.

● The impact of "substitutes" on the dairy industry, such as "sterile milk."

This milk is rendered sterile by killing all bacteria. It thus can be stored for an indefinite period and shipped to distant places.

No one yet knows what effect the product will have on the sale of fluid milk, but some dairymen feel it is a real threat to the industry.

Sterile milk is already well established in England and Europe.

● Increased use of air freight to move farm produce thus making it possible to import fruits and nursery stocks from distant places at a moment's notice.

● The rising costs of farm production was another problem but many growers felt this difficulty could be overcome by effective business farm management.

While the future farm picture was gloomy for a few growers quite a number of farmers felt that the agricultural industry would still continue to play an important economic role on the Island.

Geoff Vantreight, Gordon Head, operator of one of B.C.'s largest nursery and greenhouse businesses, said the new trend to ship farm produce by air freight could be just as advantageous to farmers as not.

"It can work both ways," he said. "We too can use air freight to export our products."

John Pendray, Blenkinsop Road, operator of one of the largest and most modern dairy farms on the Island, said there was a future for the industry if farmers implemented the best known methods of food production.

Farmers must also be willing to help correct market problems, especially with regard to dairy products, and to spend an increasing amount of money on promoting their products, he said.

He felt the government should provide more technical assistance to dairy farmers.

STRONGER POSITION

"This lack is particularly apparent to me in the engineering facilities of the department of agriculture," he said.

Dr. Jack Berry, faculty of agriculture, University of British Columbia, predicted that within 20 or 30 years, farmers would be in a stronger positon than ever they have been in man's history.

Driver Ruled Careless In Fatality

A coroner's jury ruled Tuesday night the driver of the car which killed Mrs. Mary Stewart Patterson Dec. 5 was careless.

Mrs. Patterson, 81, of 1333 Fort, died in hospital 80 minutes after she was hit as she crossed Fort near Craigdarroch, by a car driven by Kenneth Grant, 23, of 1840 Newton.

The jury heard testimony that driving conditions were excellent. Witnesses testified the sun was shining, the pavement dry, and traffic moderate.

Mr. Grant told the jury he glanced in his rear-view mirror, and when he looked up Mrs. Patterson was about 10 feet from his car.

BUSINESS WORRIES

He said he could give no reason for not seeing her before then. He also told the jury he was worried at the time because business was slow.

Mr. Grant is an oil burner mechanic.

Earlier, Mrs. Yvonne Eland, 2333 Beach, testified Mr. Grant's car passed her car two blocks east of the accident moments before.

She said the car was not travelling at an excessive speed.

Commenting on Mr. Grant's testimony, Coroner Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre complimented the driver on being "an honest and courageous man who handled himself well in a difficult position."

The coroner told the jury they could bring in a verdict of dangerous driving, careless driving, or accidental death.

The jury ruled Mrs. Patterson died as a result of "shock brought on by multiple injuries and a fractured spine, these injuries caused by Mr. Grant's driving a car without due care and attention."

Another Try On Mail Rate

OTTAWA (CP) — A proposed increase in mail rates, batted down in a surprise Commons vote Nov. 28, will be back before the House early next year with the same proposed effective dates.

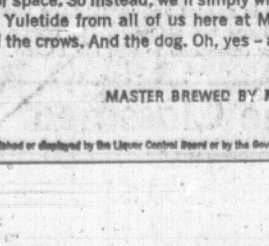
Postmaster General Cote, speaking during the Commons budget debate Monday, said the increase "will be back early in the new session so that the time schedules established for increases in the postal rates can be met. . . ."

He is proposing to increase first-class letter rates to five cents from four on local mail, and to six cents from five for non-local mail.

BAD START

Tokyo's annual fire prevention week got off to a bad start when two persons were killed and seven injured in 22 fires — six more fires than Tokyo's daily average.

No partridge. No pear tree.



No room. Not with:

It's too bad about the partridge. And the pear tree. We'd add them if we could – just to make our jolly old green-and-red label even more Christmasy. But you can see the problem. We're a little pushed for space. So instead, we'll simply wish you a warm and wonderful Yuletide from all of us here at Molson's. From the rabbit. And the crows. And the dog. Oh, yes – and the people.

"I'm Looking For Someone

"Yes, I need a nice retired couple to look after me, I just can't handle the family that have me now. It's not because I need a touch up here and there but only because they need more room. I am real different and have a lot to offer other than my 2 bedrooms, living room and quaint kitchen. You are going to find this hard to believe but my yard is 65x190 on waterfront, with a boat dock. I've watched my people catch trout here and barbecue at the water's edge, can also say that we have a commanding view over the waterway. You will find me within the 3-mile circle, close to schools, bus and on sewer. The way I look at it I am worth a lot more than $11,450, but I should tell you that I heard my owners say that they need quite a bit of cash. If you phone the Real Estate Man I'll be happy to open my doors to you." 388-4271 anytime.

KITCHEN SINK WENT WITH IT

A neighbor, Charles Dyer, said he saw some unidentified men "jack up and haul away" the house, which was located near the Atlanta Airport.

'Hot Pursuit' In Cambodia, Laos Studied

WASHINGTON (WP)—The United States is conducting a serious restudy of its policy that now generally bars pursuit of Viet Cong guerrillas into Cambodia and Laos, informed sources confirmed Tuesday night.

"We are concerned and we are looking at the problem to see what the options are," said one administration source. It was emphasized that "the president has made no decisions" and the present activity is one of "collecting evidence."

Acknowledgement that the United States is seriously re-examining both diplomatic and military approaches to the problem of Viet Cong "sanctuaries" in Cambodia and Laos, however, is itself a major departure.

DIPLOMATS CONCERNED

Until a few days ago, every report of a possible shift of U.S. policy toward border "sanctuaries" was roundly denied. While the subject was constantly pressed by U.S. military leaders in South Vietnam, American diplomats continually cautioned that any move in this direction would have grave international consequences.

The Soviet Union, which is a pledged guarantor of the neutrality of both Cambodia and Laos publicly warned the U.S. on Sunday against extending military action into these nations. It charged that "United States" aggressive circles" appear to be "preparing to spread the fire of war" in Southeast Asia.

SPIRITS SOAR DESPITE WAR

Johnson Getting Funny

By RALPH HARRIS

flecting contentment and inner peace have broken through, dispelling his previous somber mood over the war, attacks by critics and a reported drop in voter popularity.

The "new" Lyndon Johnson has become the talk of the White House press corps, with which he has had his ups and downs since he took office in 1963.

Some observers believed his change of mood resulted from his family—happiness over the marriage of daughter Lynda Bird, hours spent playing with his five-months-old grandchild, son of younger daughter Luci, and a new resolve not to give into worry.

BELIEVES IN POLICY

He has replied to his war critics and low public opinion poll reatings by saying he believed he was following the correct course in Vietnam and he intended to carry on even if hispopularityslumped to one per cent.

This week was particularly successful for the president with political observers applauding his good humor and predicting he was curtain-raising the style of campaign he will conduct for re-election in November, 1968.

On the decision to hold Lynda's wedding in the White House East Room instead of a church —"This is the poors n wedding chapel . . . but you can have a wedding here and no one thinks it's cheap."

On the unexpected shift of De- from the Pentagon to the pres dency of the World Bank— "There's no truth to the story that George Woods (current world bank chief) resigned because I asked him for a small wedding loan."

AVOIDS DISGRUNTLED

On State Secretary Dean Rusk, chief target of anti-war demonstrators—The secretary chose an eighth-floor office with sealed windows in the state department because "he wanted it to betoo far for him to jump andtoohigh for the pickets to climb."

Another crack about Rusk was that birds flocked to his windows and, being a kindly man, he got Mrs. Rusk to fill a bag with crumbs so he could feedthem every day.

"Well, the sparrowwwts and st lings like it," the president observed, "but as you know there's no filling the appetite of these peace doves and war hawks."

Talks about the ebullient presidential mood began Nov. 17 when Johnson unveiled a new, free-swinging style at a White House press conference.

He also dropped the caution he normally used in answering questions and enlivened the proceedings with historical comparisons, biblical quotations, jokes and biting sarcasm.

$80 MILLION COST

Surprise Marks Destroyer Bids

OTTAWA (UPI) — An air of surprise and excitement attended the formal opening of bids Tuesday for four DDH-280-class helicopter-carrying destroyers for the navy.

Future of the four ships had been in doubt since the announcement last week of severe cutbacks in federal spending.

Bids were submitted by two shipyards in Quebec, one in Halifax and one in Vancouver. The surprise element developed when the Vancouver bid proved to be more than twice the amount of the low bid, from a Quebec shipbuilder.

Officials of both the navy and the defence production department said that the best bids were "considerably less" than they had estimated that the ships would cost.

Production of the ships is divided into two phases, called lead yard and follow yard. The lead yard is to develop working drawings for the ships, and will also build ships one and two. The follow yard will build ships three and four.

Lowest bid for lead yard was Marine Industries Ltd. of Sorel, Que. at $20,436,200. Sorel also had low bid for follow yard at $18,459,950. High bid for lead yard was Davie Shipbuilding Ltd. of Levis, Que., at $24,436,-767. High for follow yard was $49,287,230 by Burrard Drydock Ltd. of Vancouver.

A defence production official said the disparity in bidding was probably due to the fact that the shipbuilders were bidding on different phases of construction, "from a bare ship on the one hand to a completely equipped vessel on the other, but we won't know the complete story until we have examined the proposals."

He added that early estimates in the probably cost of the four destroyers had run as high as $80,000,000.

Something Out There Keeping Navy Busy

Canadian Navy ships are out on secret missions and Russian fishing vessels are reported to be in B.C. coastal waters.

But authorities at CFB Esquimalt won't connect the two. In fact, no mention of Russian ships has come out of Esquimalt.

On Friday, HMCS Qu'Appelle returned home after an exercise in U.S. waters and within 24 hours was at sea again on "surveillance duty." No details were given.

Today, the Saskatchewan will go out to "take advantage of a set of circumstances which now prevail off coast," says the navy. No return times or dates for the two destroyer-escorts have been given.

Last time Canadian ships went out on secret missions was in late July this year when the Mackenzie and St. Croix left suddenly on a patrol of which no details were disclosed.

Tuesday a report from Seattle indicated that Russian trawlers had been operating off the coast for some months near the Canadian 12-mile limit.

Today a report from Astoria said that an aerial survey of the Washington and Oregon coast showed only one Russian fishing vessel off Tillamook, but a heavy layer of cloud hampered the survey. A U.S. Bureau of Commerical Fisheries said that there have been about 60 Soviet vessels around in the past year.

A CFB Esquimalt spokesman would only comment "the navy is just doing its main job, which is looking after the interests of Canada."

French-Canadians Watch B.C. Project

COQUITLAM, B.C. (CP) — A district school board official in this Vancouver suburb says French-Canadians across the nation are watching with interest efforts to have French made the language of instruction in classrooms at nearby Maillardville, an predominantly French-speaking community.

Maillardville, with a population of 8,000 is the largest French-speaking community west of the Rockies. Its schools come under the jurisdiction of the Coquitlam district school board.

E. P. Murphy, school board chairman, made the comment Tuesday night after hearing submissions urging the move presented by the French-Canadian Association of British Columbia.

The brief urged the school board to ask for an exchange of teachers between Quebec and B.C. and for the board to consider French as the language of instruction in Maillardville schools.

Romeo Paquette, who presented the association's brief, said the exchange of teachers would combat the difficulties of recruiting teachers for the community.

Mr. Murphy said later: "We were very interested to hear Mr. Paquette and we are going to discuss his brief and then take it to Victoria."

"I feel that this is a stage with the eyes of all French Canadians watching."

Directors Told Museum May Close 3 Months

The B.C. Maritime Museum in Bastion Square may close from Jan. 1 to April 10.

At an extra-ordinary meeting Tuesday members were told that closure might be necessary to stop the museum from running into further debt.

The balance sheet showed a debt to the city of $4,700 in taxes, and a bank loan of $9,000, Cmdr. F. E. Grubb, secretary-treasurer, said.

He noted that the museum had applied to the intermunicipal committee for a grant in aid of $12,000, but had been awarded only $7,000.

He anticipated the deficit for the current year would be $13,500.

The reason for the museum going in the red was the falling-off in anticipated paid attendance.

The museum had banked on a paid attendance of 50,000 people this year.

But only 29,000 people paid to see the museum, Mr. Grubb said.

Closure of the building would result in a saving of $1,674. The director, secretary and model-making staff would be retained.

ILLEGAL ABORTIONS

Payoffs to Police Claimed by Women

OTTAWA (CP)—Linda Seese of the Women's Liberation Group of Toronto Tuesday told a meeting of the Commons health committee the bulk of $400 and $500 fees for illegal abortions goes for police protection.

Miss Seese, 25, said she could not support her allegations with proof. The group presented a brief to the committee which is studying all aspects of the abortion question.

Peggy Morton, 22, also of Toronto, said she knew of cases where a doctor who had performed illegal abortions had "closed up" for a while. The doctor had told "someone" the police were on to him.

He had continued later to give illegal abortions, charging substantially higher fees, she said.

"People have told me they think he is paying off police."

HAD NO PROOF

"None of us has ever seen money handed from the abortionist to the police," Miss Seese said.

Four Liberation Group members, all unmarried women between the ages of 20 and 31, told the committee their organization had been formed after they met through various anti-war groups.

Three from Toronto said they are unemployed and had been members of the Student Union for Peace Action. Judy Bradford, 20, of Montreal, formerly a member of the Company of Young Candians, is secretary for the peace magazine Our Generation.

Both the Women's Liberation Group and The Canadian Abortion Reform Association in their briefs, advocated abortion on request if a doctor considered the measure would not damage the mother's health.

Veteran Skipper Dies

VANCOUVER (CP) — Capt. John Duncan Vosper, 76, has died in Lions Gate Hospital. The veteran skipper, one of B.C.'s last links with the age of the windjammer, was one of the few who held a ticket for both sail and steam. Funeral service is set for Saturday.

POLITICIANS COULD USE TRANSPLANT

CAPE TOWN (CP) — Hundreds of telephone calls and letters have been received here since Louis Washkansky became the first man in the world to undergo a human heart transplant, hospital officials said today.

Dr. Jacobus G. Burger, superintendent of Groote Schuur Hospital, where the Dec. 2 operation took place, said one postcard from British Columbia said:

Ottawa Backs Hippie Press In Court

VANCOUVER (CP)—The federal justice department has intervened in a freedom-of-the-press battle between the Georgia Straight, a hippie-style weekly newspaper, and the city of Vancouver.

Publishers Dan McLeod and Peter Hlookoff went before the B.C. Supreme Court Tuesday asking for a declaration that the city licencing department's suspension of its business licence Sept. 28 to Oct. 20 was illegal.

The two men also want damages and an injunction to prevent the city from ever again suspending the Georgia Straight's licence, which allows it to sell copies of the paper in the city.

Lawyer Norman Mullins of Vancouver appeared before Mr. Justice D. R. Verchere during Tuesday's court session. He said he had been asked by the justice department to appear because the case involved a constitutional question.

He told the judge he plans to submit today that city licencing inspector Milt Harrell acted without legal authority in lifting the newspaper's licence because a section of the city charter under which he acted was illegal.

MAYOR NAMED

Mr. Mullins said he will attempt to prove that the legislation which created the city charter section "purports to encroach on freedom of the press."

Mr. Hlookoff and Mr. McLeod have named Mr. Harrell, Mayor Tom Campbell and the city as defendants in the action.

They claim the mayor and the inspector were acting as self - appointed censors when they halted street sales of the paper, an act which had no legal or moral basis.

Part of Tuesday's hearing was occupied with playing of a television videotape of a live program in which Mayor Campbell described the Georgia Straight as filth which should not be sold in schools.

Mayor Campbell was asked by the newspaper's lawyer, John Laxton, if he sets himself up as a censor for the public.

"I DO"

"When something affects youngsters of tender age, I do," the mayor testified.

Mr. Campbell said he suggested that Mr. Harrell take away the newspaper's licence to sell after getting complaints from a Parent - Teachers' Association about sale of the Georgia Straight on school property.

Mr. McLeod told the court the paper lost about $1,750 as a result of being forced to miss six issues. The newspaper claims a weekly circulation of about 52,000.

Fined $200 For Assault

Douglas Hoffman, 23, of 920 Empress, was found guilty of assault causing bodily harm to Mrs. Carol Hoffman, 1923 Quamichan, Nov. 4.

Mrs. Hoffman attempted to withdraw the charge "to keep peace in the family," but Magistrate Ostler refused permission.

She told the court Mr. Hoffman struck her in the mouth after a dispute about his actions in her apartment on Nov. 4.

She said her only interest in bringing the action was to recover the costs of repairs to her teeth.

Customs Man Remembered Bag, Nabs Heroin

MONTREAL (CP) — An alert customs official who recently stopped a French couple trying to smuggle heroin into Canada was credited Tuesday with the seizure of heroin believed to be worth $5,000,000 on the illicit market, police reported Tuesday night.

The dozen bags seized Tuesday was believed destined for New York.

The unidentified customs officer was handling passengers on an Air-Canada flight from Paris when he noticed a man carrying a similar bag to that used by the couple from Marseilles, in their attempt to bring heroin into the country three months ago.

Face Lifting By Dangerous Methods

By Dr. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

I was just talking to an able plastic surgeon who told me how distressed he is when he sees a woman who had someone paint her face with carbolic acid, hoping thereby to get a cheap, illegal face lift, with rejuvenation. Actually, in many a case, what the woman got was a badly scarred face. A strong acid painted on the skin must do harm.

Alvarez

I hear of women who, when told that U.S. plastic surgeons will not do such work, go to Japan or Mexico or some other country, hoping to find there a physician, or someone, who will do what they want done. It is a very dangerous thing for a layman or laywoman to insist on getting in a foreign land some treatment that no good U.S. physician will give or is permitted to give.

Another unwise and forbidden treatment many women are now looking for is the injection into their small breasts of a chemical called silicone. I discussed this with the plastic surgeon, and he said he is much afraid of it and would not think of using it. It could produce a lumpy breast which would make the woman very unhappy; also, the silicone might later have to be dug out.

I lived through the years when liquid paraffin was injected to fill out hollows in women's faces, necks, and breasts. Later, some of these women had to have a difficult operation performed to get rid of the parafinomas or tumors produced by the chemical.

Because of these disastrous results, every doctor stopped injecting paraffin, and all of us physicians who had to try to help those unhappy women now have no desire to try injecting another chemical — until it has been tried out on animals and perhaps on the women who so want to be human guinea-pigs that they go to Japan to get the injections.

To show what can happen to such determined people; in recent years I have heard of men and women who traveled to a neighboring country to get a new drug for arthritis. They took it, and an alarming number of them died of it. Many of these people had felt angry with the U.S. government authorities for not permitting the drug to be sold here—but the F.D.A. (Food and Drug Administration) investigators are constantly trying to protect U.S. citizens from taking perhaps another thalidomide type of drug such as in Germany produced a few thousand babies without arms and legs.

DAILY NEWSPAPERS Gets the BIGGEST Share of the Daily Shoppers!

ASK ANDY

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a World Book Atlas.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Ricky Renfroe, age 11, of Huntsville, Alabama, for his question:

When do raccoons have their young?

Our very own native raccoon rates among the world's most bright and beautiful animals. But, shame on us, we have treated him badly. What's more, most nature books fail to explain him fully and fairly. And even experts disagree on important details of the raccoon's family life.

Aside from being a very good looking fellow, Mr. Specs is also very intelligent. And true intelligence, as a rule, goes along with a warm heart and lots of friendly affection. If you live in a woody region, near streams and ponds, chances are you have made the acquaintance of a raccoon. If you treat him with the respect he deserves, he will pay you regular visits. The introduction begins with a request for a handout. The raccoon has a huge appetite and his dainty little hands gladly accept almost any food you offer him. He shows his appreciation by performing playful and clever tricks for your amusement.

A half-time raccoon visits at night, which is his usual time for foraging. In the northern states, his visits will be rare in the winter. Then he spends most of his time dozing in a cozy nest, coming out only for an occasional snack and to date a few of his lady friends. In the southern states, he may be around all through the year. In early summer, your friend of the wilds may lead to your door a playful troupe of baby raccoons. They will arrive with their mother, for Mr. Specs refuses all child care duties. The male courts several females and leaves the details of bearing and rearing the children to his wives. For him, fatherhood begins when he is about two years old. Motherhood in the raccoon world may begin when females are 10 months old.

Feed on Insects

Naturalists give different figures on the gestation period, the time required for the litter to develop within the body of the mother. The different figures range from 60 to 90 days. Perhaps more scientific research is needed on this topic. Most litters arrive in April or May and a few wait for June or July. The infants are small copies of their handsome parents, complete with furry coats, Mardi Gras masks and bushy ringed tails. But the baby raccoons do not open their bright eyes for about three weeks.

At the age of about two months, Mama takes them on their first outing. The little cuties follow her single file, trying hard to resist their natural impulses to romp and play. After a few lessons in food foraging and raccoon craft, your half-tame friend may bring them for a formal introduction. In warm winter zones, expect them sometime in June and be ready with a polite handout. In colder zones, young raccoons may not be ready to come calling until late in the summer.

The raccoon devours hordes of insects, keeps down the rodent population and plays a vital role in the balance of nature. True, he may snitch a few ears of corn and maybe a few eggs. He has a marketable fur coat and his flesh, they say, is good to eat. But these excuses do not justify the brutal cruelty with which he has been hunted and slaughtered. Somehow the splendid little character has survived. He is full of clever caution and artful dodges and the female defends her young with courageous fury.

Andy sends a World Book Atlas to Cheryl Held, age 13, of Rochester, New York, for her question:

How do you translate Fahrenheit to Centigrade degrees?

The boiling point of water is 212 degrees Fahrenheit. Let's have a go at translating that standard temperature into Centigrade degrees. First you subtract 32 from the Fahrenheit 212. The number that remains should be exactly 180. You divide this number by 9 and if you do the job correctly the answer is 20. Now multiply the 20 by five, say the magic word Abracadabra and the trick is done. The final number is 100 and, as you know, 100 degrees Centigrade is the boiling point of water, a temperature equal to 212 degrees Fahrenheit.

You can make a notation of Fahrenheit into Centigrade as F minus 32 multiplied by 5-9. The process for translating Centigrade into Fahrenheit is reversed. However, you can perform the trick without standing on your head if you say the magic word Abracadabra and follow this formula: To change Centigrade numbers into Fahrenheit multiply C by 9-5 and add 32. If you start with the 100 Centigrade degrees of boiling water, the answer should return you to your 212 Fahrenheit degrees. The same systems work for translating any number on the F and C scales.

300 Students To Carol On Street

DUNCAN — Three hundred young voices will sing carols and Christmas songs in the main street of Duncan Friday evening.

They will be students from Duncan and Alexander Elementary schools and will sing on Station Street under the direction of Mrs. Rosamund Cox.

It will be an hour-long concert accompanied by the students' band of Cowichan Senior Secondary School.

The carolling will begin at 7 p.m. After the children will be guests of Duncan city firemen who will provide hot chocolate and doughnuts.

Christmas concerts in town will continue next Monday and Tuesday with a carol festival sponsored by Duncan Rotary Club.

CHEER FUND

Festival chairman Rev. Neil Robinson said Tuesday the festival is to prepare people for Christmas. Proceeds will go to the local Christmas cheer fund.

Monday evening's concert in Cowichan Senior Secondary auditorium will be presented by the junior and senior choirs of St. John's Church; Quamichan Junior High School Choir; Duncan United Church choirs; Duncan Choral Society; Queen Margaret's School Choir; Duncan AOTS Choir and the Admiral Mainguy Sea Cadet Corps Band.

Tuesday, the program will be from Duncan Elementary Junior and Senior choirs; the Madrigals (a senior student choir); Queen of Angels School Choir; Serfs Pop Group; Mount Prevost School Choir, and Kuper Island Indian Residential School Band and dancers.

Each concert will start at 8 p.m. and there will be community carol singing accompanied by Mrs. Elsie Carter at the organ.

FINANCES SOUND —DOBSON

DUNCAN — Retiring Mayor Jack Dobson told council Monday he is leaving the city in a sound financial position.

A reasonable surplus had been built up over the years to handle emergencies, he said.

Although the mill rate has advanced with the trend of escalating costs, since his becoming mayor the debt rate has been decreased some two mills.

He listed among the accomplishments of councils under his leadership the establishment of Centennial Heights subdivision with 158 fully-serviced lots, now all sold; complete sewerage service on a self-liquidating basis with a 50 per cent safety margin; a water system second to none in quality and volume; purchase of land for recreation and public use, and qualification for urban renewal.

Mayor Dobson said his chief regret was his failure to bring closer co-operation with neighboring North Cowichan.

38-1 RATIO CALLED OUTRAGEOUS

Schools Like Prisons, Principal Charges

COURTENAY—A high school principal, noted for his unorthodox approach to education, told the Rotary Club here the longer he stays in the teaching profession the less confidence he has in the system.

He compared schools to penal institutions and criticized government spending on education, only 6.1 per cent of the gross national product or less than is spent on dog and cat food and cosmetics.

He called "outrageous" the system which allows 10,000 elementary school students to be in classes at a ratio of 37 or 38 pupils to a teacher.

Classrooms are equipped with a blackboard, some books and a few pieces of chalk, Mr. Young said.

"It hasn't changed since 1867."

He said an overwhelming number of schools don't have libraries. The library is the heart of a school and should not only be open from early morning until late at night but should include tapes, film strips, slides and records.

Buildings today are a collection of little boxes and are monuments to an education system long past, he said.

Mr. Young's sharp criticisms brought a reply from Courtenay school district Ron Lucas who said that in some respects Courtenay is ahead of Campbell River where Mr. Young teaches under his own "no rules" system. Mr. Young feels the system is bringing university atmosphere to Grade 11.

Mr. Lucas said the Courtenay district has two schools which embody the principal of flexible teaching and that two schools being planned will feature "team teaching."

"I do not like extremes in education, one way or the other," said the Courtenay superintendent.

Woman Fined After Boy Hit Leaving Bus

LADYSMITH—A Campbell River woman was convicted here Tuesday of failing to stop behind a school bus which had its flashing red lights operating.

The charge arose from an accident on the Old Island Highway at Saltair when Judith Diane Dow, 21, knocked down and injured Bruce McAdams, 5.

The boy had just alighted from the bus when hit. He suffered concussion and cuts.

Accused said she didn't see the bus lights or the boy.

He recommended that she be examined by the Motor Vehicles Branch before her licence is restored.

MANITOBA TOWN UPSET

A Wild Game Of Post Office

COTE
. . . show indifference

But the events surrounding a decision to transfer the local post office from one store to another across the street aroused many of the 230 mail subscribers in and around this community 35 miles northeast of Winnipeg.

Feelings came to the fore Monday when former acting postmaster Ray Gilson was prevented from signing transfer papers by a mob of 50 that carried him off to a farm to elude postal authorities.

Similar action was planned for Tuesday, but faced with no legal alternative Mr. Gilson was unhindered as he signed "under protest" the papers that made the move official.

The people and Mr. Gilson object to the appointment of Ewald Greening as new postmaster in the town, an appointment that also means the postal facilities are now located in his store across the street from Mr. Gilson's general store.

ACROSS THE STREET

The transfer was completed when postal officials took the mail from Mr. Gilson's store Tuesday and carried it across to Mr. Greening's.

The dispute had its beginning four months ago when Mr. Gilson bought the store and was appointed acting postmaster because the post office was on the premises.

Mr. Greening decided to apply for the job and was successful.

Many of the subscribers, however, feel "they have been swindled," as one of them put it, because no applications for postmaster were invited by the federal department. Those objecting to the new appointment sent a petition to Ottawa, but they claim it was ignored.

They also claim there will be insufficient room in the new premises for those waiting for their mail.

Clarence Kamke, a leader of the anti-Greening faction, said about half or maybe more of the subscribers have changed their postal address and pickets may be set up at the new post office.

He said another petition will be sent to Ottawa and if this doesn't work, they will seek rural delivery.

Confusion Blamed On English

MONTREAL (CP) — Postmaster-General Cote blamed English-speaking business Tuesday night for much of the confusion surrounding Quebec's future.

He said they are often the first "to promote anti-Canadian interests by the contempt and indifference they show towards the culture, the mentality and the language of French-speaking Canadians."

But the federal cabinet minister said it is up to the Quebec government to create a favorable climate for continued growth in the province.

The present atmosphere, he told a service club meeting in suburban Longueuil, "is one of fear, of distrust, of apprehension and restlessness."

He said it is up to the provincial government "to instil confidence at all levels and dispel all factors of distrust and apprehension that prevail at the moment."

PRESS TOLD:

No Reason For Us To Fight

LONDON (Reuters)— Foreign Secretary George Brown, the most publicized British minister, made up with the British press at a charity reception in the London Free Press Club Monday night.

"I am prepared eo forgive you," he told reporters, suggesting they should start afresh.

The reception was arranged by the National Union of Journalists after the union dropped its threat to report Brown to the press council, watchdog over British newspapers, for his aggressive behavior toward photographers who tried to snap him dancing at a ball in October.

"I do what I feel, or know I have to do," he said Monday night. "Then I read what you write about it . . . of course, I get fidgety about it."

He said he did not want to argue with working journalists and photographers—"we have to do our work . . . there is not reason to be fighting."

Fleet School Throws Party For Handicapped

The party in the old gymnasium will also feature clown and trampoline acts, carol singing and games.

MOB STONES CITY HALL

MONTREAL (CP)—A suburban mayor and four municipal aldermen, accused of taking bribes, met with their city council Tuesday night while angry residents smashed windows of the St. Michel city hall.

A crowd of about 1,500 hurled snowballs and rocks.

Mayor Maurice Bergeron, four of the six aldermen, and the suburb's police chief, together face 25 charges of taking bribes, filed after a police investigation of accusations made by a citizen, Gerard Beaudry.

Kennedy To Join LBJ On Ticket?

CHICAGO, Ill. (Reuters)—Richard M. Nixon, Republican former vice-president, delivered a political tip here Tuesday—forecasting the possibility of a Democratic ticket for 1968 of President Johnson and Senator Robert F. Kennedy (Dem. N.Y.)

Nixon, now heading opinion polls as the leading contender for the Republican presidential nomination next year, said President Johnson might be prevailed upon to strengthen the Democratic ticket by dropping Hubert H. Humphrey in favor of Kennedy as his vice-presidential running mate.

He made the predictions during the taping of a television interview.

OTTAWA (CP) — Premier Smith of Nova Scotia today asked the federal government to share in the operating deficit of the Sydney, N.S., steel mill and to assist in its capital financing.

IN ESQUIMALT

Boulevard Parking Claimed Dangerous

Coun. Ed De Costa told a traffic committee meeting something must be done about the large number of cars parked on boulevards and sidewalks throughout the municipality.

He said some of the cars, parked there by Yarrows employees, "are parked right up to the corner, obscuring the view and causing a traffic hazard."

A bylaw forbids such parking, and the committee will send a letter to the police chief expressing its concern.

Monday night, "A" committee decided to recommend a change in bylaws to prohibit parking on boulevards in front of multiple dwellings.

FOR TROOPS

R and R A Major Industry

By J. C. GRAHAM
Canadian Press Correspondent

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (CP)—R and R may not be a familiar term in some parts of the world, but lately it has become the basis of a major new industry in the Far East.

R and R means rest and recreation and it is eagerly awaited by troops fighting in South Vietnam—mainly American troops, but also for Australians, New Zealanders and men of other nationalities.

After some months service in the war zone, varying according to national arrangements, troops become eligible for five days rest and recreation leave in another country. They have a wide choice of countries, extending within the last few months even as far as Australia.

Throughout the East, the presence of large numbers of free-spending servicemen with bulging paybooks, almost untrapped in Vietnam, is a matter of great importance. However, it has also raised prices sharply for the ordinary tourist.

MUFTI IS THE RULE

The troops do not wear uniforms on R and R leave. Mufti is the rule, yet they are as obvious as if in full regimentals. In Hong Kong, Bangkok, Taiepi, Tokyo, Manila, Sydney, Penang and a score of other cities, the young, pale, crewcut, rather sad, rather bitter young Americans are unmistakeable.

And institutions have sprung up in vast quantity to cater to their needs. They come by air, and rapidly spread out to hotels in the main cities—regular tourist hotels and new hotels which seem to have come into existence mainly for this trade.

Likewise, all the major cities have flocks of brightly lit new bars and night clubs catering to the visitors, complete with coveys of hostesses and varying nationality.

Hotel lobbies carrying a range of pamphlets giving the troops information on local attractions and particularly on the habits and customs of the bar girls—how much it costs to buy them a drink, to talk with them at hourly rates, to take them out on the town.

The information usually stops at that point with advice that any additional arrangements are a matter of individual negotiation. The evidence suggests that a large number of individual negotiations are made.

Some of the new hotels, prominently labelled "Best place for R and R," leave little doubt about their purpose and the range of facilities available. They carry such names as the Perfumed Garden or the Seventh Heaven.

But the girls who serve as ubiquitous escorts to many of the troops are not visitors only to such new institutions. They can be seen hand in hand with R and R leave personnel in main hotels in all the big cities at all hours.

PROVIDE COMPANIONSHIP

They act as sightseeing escorts, too, leading servicemen patiently on tours of the main sights, instructing them in taxi fares, bartering where necessary, and generally acting as guides and companions.

The girls vary in appearance and sophistication from place to place. Most of them are incredibly fine-boned and decorative, almost universal among young Eastern females. Some adopt elaborate makeup to the point of fantasy. Some wear Oriental styles to advantage, others prefer the latest Western fashions.

But mini-skirts are rare. Instinctively, or regretfully, most of them acknowledge that the Oriental leg is woefully unsuited to the fashion—the lower leg is short and the thigh skinny, a combination that rules out mini-skirts for most Eastern girls of perception. They have other advantages to exploit.

The most noteworthy feature of the whole R and R industry, however, is its quiet, sad orderliness.

Australian and New Zealand troops on leave tend to be ebullient, even riotous. But the Americans, by and large, raise remarkably little hell. Large numbers of them do not, in fact, make any contribution to the R and R caterers in Eastern cities. But even those who do seem to derive little evident pleasure from it.

They walk quietly hand in hand with their exotic butterflies, talking quietly among themselves or to their girls. Ordinary American tourists make 10 times as much noise.

The girls chatter away gaily in bars like so many twittering sparrows, but once contact has been established and a temporary alliance formed, they also show less animation.

King Leading Revolt Against Greek Junta

TUESDAY was a bad day for this pooch. After trudging through heavy rain and slush he finally made it to the Montreal SPCA clinic—and found himself locked out. As the sign says, Mondays and Thursdays. He could wait, or brave the slush to tramp across town to the SPCA's animal shelter, open six days a week. (CP Wirephoto)

'Storm' Spotter In Space

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Beaming back strong signals to earth, a robot "interplanetary weatherman" named Pioneer VIII rocketed into orbit around the sun today to help weave a network that could warn astronauts of deadly solar radiation storms in space.

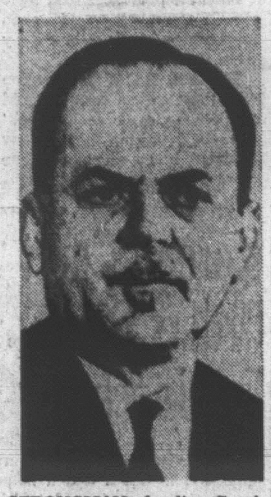
En route to the sun-circling path between that of earth and Mars, Pioneer VIII's fiery Delta booster rocket successfully kicked a radio-relay communications satellite into orbit around earth to be used for testing America's man-to-moon tracking network.

"We now have the Pioneer VIII spacecraft in a solar orbit," a National Aeronautics and Space Administration spokesman said 35 minutes after the double payload blasted off at 9:08 a.m. EST. The tricky two-in-one shot closed out the 1967 launch scheduled at Cape Kennedy.

SENSORS PROBE

Scientists refer to the Pioneer family of spacecraft as "interplanetary weathermen" and said sensors aboard Pioneer VIII could provide the best information yet on how great a danger radiation storms emitted from the sun pose to astronauts.

Working with other craft previously launched, drum-shaped Pioneer VIII, could possibly lead to a foolproof means of predicting when dangerous flares will erupt on the sun—just as earth-orbiting weather satellites help forecasters predict climate on this planet—so manned space flights can be scheduled around them, officials said.



STRONGMAN of ruling Greek junta which took over power in April is Col. George Papadopoulos, whose Athens office was under close guard today as King Constantine attempted to lead a counter-revolution.

Nation Verging On Civil War

(Times News Services)

King Constantine led a military revolt today against the ruling junta that seized power in Greece eight months ago and appealed to all Greeks to help him "restore democracy and freedom."

The junta mobilized the army and said it was determined to crush the rebellion.

Greece balanced on the brink of civil war.

Unconfirmed reports said troops under the 27-year-old king's command were moving on Athens from north central Greece. Air force planes believed manned by pilots loyal to the king flew low over the capital, which is filled with junta troops and tanks.

In Belgrade, the Yugoslave news agency Tanjug reported that Greece closed its borders with Yugoslavia this afternoon. It said radio broadcasts from northern Greece said the junta had taken control of the area and called on all soldiers and army units to report to their garrisons and remain loyal to the military regime.

Constantine, in a broadcast this morning from Larissa in central Greece about 160 miles northwest of Athens said he was trying to bring democracy back to the nation where it was born.

Larissa is the site of the biggest air force base in Greece and the headquarters of the 1st Greek Army under the command of Lt.-Gen. Constantine Kolias.

His troops were reported moving south towards Athens with the king, but this report could not be confirmed.

'Misled by Criminal Opportunists'

The junta, in a broadcast early this afternoon, said Constantine was "misled by criminal opportunists" and charged he was trying to overthrow the regime which ousted the civilian government on April 21 in what was described as a coup to save Greece from communism.

The ruling military leaders poured troops, tanks and armored cars into Athens from army camps around the city and surrounded the royal palace, government offices, the radio station and posted machine gunners on the roof of the foreign ministry.

Athens Radio announced that King Constantine "was misled by criminal opportunists and turned against the nation-saving revolution."

Interspersing the announcement with martial music, the Athens broadcast said:

"The Greek armed forces are determined to defend the unity of the nation or to crush through armed might those who divide the country. The national government calls on the Greek people to maintain their sangfroid and their confidence in the government.

"Greek people, the revolution of April 21 is at your side. The April revolution will protect the nation from any division. Do not worry. Everything is under control."

Monitors in Istanbul, Turkey reported Athens radio interrupted a music program later to report that the king is escaping from village to village. The junta is in complete control of the country, the station said.

Communications Cut in Afternoon

An assessment of late developments after the broadcasts by the junta and Constantine was complicated when telephone and telex communications from Greece were cut in mid-afternoon.

Rome reports said Athens was rejecting incoming calls because of "a breakdown in an amplifier." Calls from other European capitals to Athens could not be completed.

London reports said international airline flights to and from Athens were cancelled or delayed.

King Constantine and his Queen, Anne-Marie, 22, were reported to have travelled from Athens to Larissa earlier this week in connection with military manoeuvres. The queen is a member of Denmark's royal family.

In Copenhagen, Danish government sources said King Frederick and Queen Ingrid, the parents of Queen Anne-Marie, were unable to get in touch with her today. The Danish sources said Constantine and Anne-Marie apparently were still in Larissa.

Unconfirmed reports reaching Athens said Constantine had set up a new government at Naousa, a city 200 miles north of Athens just south of the border between Greece and Yugoslavia.

These unsubstantiated reports said the new government was headed by Petros Garoufolias, the man who served as defence

France Ignored For Urgent Market Talks

BRUSSELS (UPI) — France's common market partners called an urgent meeting for Thursday — without France — to discuss Britain's bid for membership, informed sources said today.

Although foreign minister Maurice Couve de Murville of France is in Brussels he will not attend the foreign ministers' meeting called originally by Belgium to try to stave off a serious crisis.

The meeting is to be held at Val Duchesse Chateau 10 miles outside Brussels. Val Duchesse is the Belgian government's guest house for important visitors.

The decision to held the meeting came after Couve De Murville was warned in a series of talks with partner ministers, that France's continued refusal to debate Britain's entry could plunge the community into a serious crisis.

The meetings were held on the fringe of a North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) ministerial session which all market foreign ministers are attending.

The five partners, and particularly Holland, Belgium and Luxembourg, are determined France must decide on Britain one way or the other in the coming week. The other members are West Germany and Italy.

Gamble for Peace, Martin Tells Rusk

By HAROLD MORRISON

BRUSSELS (CP) — Canada today called on the United States to "gamble" for peace in Vietnam.

External Affairs Minister Paul Martin told the 15-country NATO council: "The time has come to risk as much as a gamble for peace—and I recognize that it would be a gamble—as has already been risked in ever-widening attempts at a military solution."

While Martin did not spell out what he meant, Canada has been pleading with the U.S. to halt the bombing in North Vietnam in the hope that this might lead to negotiations and a settlement.

U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk was reported to have told the council the bombing would stop only if the U.S. could be sure this would lead to useful discussions and if assurance could be given that the Viet Cong would not take advantage of the situation. Informants said Rusk also stated that in his view the Vietnamese war is going in the right direction for the side of freedom and democracy.

Martin also proposed that NATO continue to study ways of promoting a mutual East-West reduction of arms even though the West cannot expect explicit agreements from the Russians at this time. Even prospects for tacit agreements "do not seem very bright," he said.

BEST PROSPECTS

He supported basic conclusions of the so-called Harmel Exercise to increase NATO's political cohesiveness in negotiating a detente with the East, but suggested bilateral contacts offer the best prospects for making progress at this stage.

The study under the direction of Belgian Foreign Minister Pierre Harmel has turned into a controversial issue with France

He's Our Postmaster Say Angry Residents

LIBAU, Man. (CP)—The protesting people of Libau hired Ray Gilson as their personal postmaster today.

"I am now carrying out the duties of a postmaster but under the pay of the people," said Mr. Gilson. "And it looks like I'm going to be busier than I ever was before."

Tuesday night Mr. Gilson formally signed over the post office duties to a new appointee after an appeal to Ottawa to keep him as postmaster failed.

Officially, the post office has been transferred from Mr. Gilson's general store to a store across the street in this community 35 miles northeast of Winnipeg.

But as "postmaster under authorization of the people," he set out on his first 15-mile trip to East Selkirk with mail brought into his store by those who refuse to use the new postal establishment.

The postal subscribers are paying Mr. Gilson $200 a month to carry the mail—the same amount he was getting as a government postmaster, he said.

He said he has been given no choice in accepting the new appointment. "It's been forced on me. They threatened to stop shopping in my store and in the one across the street if I didn't accept."

Libau's postal rebellion began Monday when Mr. Gilson was prevented from signing transfer papers by a mob of 50 townspeople who carted him off to a farm in a vigilante action aimed at keeping him out of reach of postal authorities.

'Resurrection' Trick Fails

ACCRA, Ghana (UPI) — A Ghanaian magician turned himself in to police in the audience Tuesday because his stage trick went wrong and he failed to "resurrect" a man from the dead.

The 30-year-old man was "shot" by an assistant with what were believed to be blank cartridges as part of the act of the magician named Professor Hindu at Takoradi.

He was put in the trench near the stage and covered with boards and earth. The magician promised the man would come to life again after half an hour.

After a period, the magician went near the trench, then suddenly returned to the stage, gathered up his magical regalia and set it on fire.

He announced the man was dead and he was unable to "ressurect" him. He surrendered to the police, who took him and the assistant, Koho Ansah, into custody.

A police spokesman said later the cause of death was unknown because the body bore no wounds or bloodstains, but suffocation was suspected.

Three Wonders From Barley

By KATHRINE THOMAS

Barley is a wonderful currency in Korea.

Canadian money used to purchase barley can accomplish three wonders.

The Unitarian Service Committee first gives 10 pounds per person to the people who are in dire need. They may be children, elderly persons too old to work or too handicapped or just a family facing a sudden emergency.

This barley literally keeps them alive—without the USC distribution, they would face starvation.

But the USC is also using barley as payment in kind to men and women who are only too anxious to work in reconstruction and reclamation programs.

For the assurance of enough food to keep their families alive, they will work long hours taking down mountains by hand and dumping them into the sea to reclaim marsh land.

The Koreans are a strong, energetic people, eager for the advancement of their country and the resurrection of an economy laid waste 14 years ago.

Some day this reclaimed land will be covered with factories, creating employment and exports.

But barley distribution can also be used in a third way—as an incentive for family planning.

The women who come to the USC family clinic receive 10 pounds of barley.

The program has been so successful the USC received a special commendation from the Korean government.

But the USC is concerned first with basic needs—the need of barley to conquer malnutriton.

It is difficult for Canadians who throw food and clothing away to realize how much even the smallest contribution can mean the difference between life and death in Asia.

NATION'S IDEALS BETRAYED IN VIETNAM

U.S. Colleges 'Corrupted' by War Machine

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. J. William Fulbright, D—Ark., said today that the Vietnam war is supporting a military-industrial complex which is a "major political force" and a corrupting influence on U.S. colleges and universities.

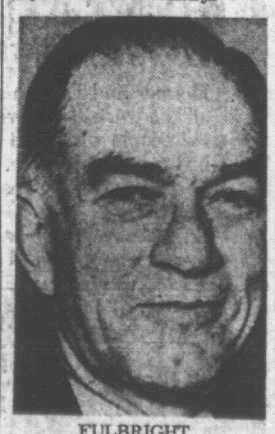
The chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee, in the second of two scathing speeches on Vietnam, said that defence industries and their employees "form a giant concentration of socialism in our otherwise free enterprise economy."

Fulbright charged last week the Vietnam conflict was an "immoral and unnecessary war" turning the Southeast Asian country into a "charnel house."

In a speech prepared for senate delivery today, he said the hope of America's poor had been "sacrificed to the supervening requirements of the war on Asian communism, or more exactly, to the executive preoccupation and congressional parsimony induced by that war."

Fulbright said the United States had begun to lose its understanding of "the power of the American example" and the loss was manifest in Vietnam.

"There at last we have embraced the ideas that are so alien to our experience, the idea that our wisdom is as great as our power, and the idea that our lasting impact on the world can be determined by the way we fight a war rather than by the way we run our country.



FULBRIGHT
. . . speaks out again

"These are the principal and most ominous effects of the war—the betrayal of ideas which have served America well, and the great moral crisis which that betrayed has set loose among our people and their leaders."

Fulbright called for a re-evaluation of U.S. "national priorities." He said that "defining our priorities is more a matter of moral accounting than of cost accounting."

The senator, a former president of the University of Arkansas, said that many leading universities have joined the "monolith" of the military-industrial complex.

A university that makes itself a government appendage, Fulbright said, is not only failing to meet its responsibilities to its students, "it is betraying a public trust."

Fulbright said the basic cause of the "angry rebellions" on many campuses probably is the students' discovery of corruption in colleges, the one place—besides perhaps the church—which might have been supposed to be immune from the "corruptions of age."

GM Offers Wage Parity

TORONTO (CP) — General Motors of Canada today offered its auto workers wage parity with its employees in the United States provided the United Auto Workers Union agrees to work practices in force in the company's U.S. plants.

The offer proposes achievement of wage parity in five steps over a 2½-year period, ending in June, 1970. It would apply to those employees involved in producing auto products covered by the Canada-U.S. auto trade agreement.

The company's proposals also include wage increases over a three-year period and an improved benefit plan.

GRAIN

WINNIPEG (CP) — Canada's wheat sale to China Tuesday stimulated trade on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today with most commodities selling at firm to higher prices.

Oilseeds dominated the trade although early advances in flax were reduced as trading progressed. Hedging sales were light in both flax and rapeseed.

Oats and barley prices were firm with shippers showing interest in the two commodities. The rye market was firm to higher in light trade.

Bankruptcy Law Enforcement To Get Tougher

OTTAWA (CP)—Enforcement of bankruptcy law is expected to reach "A level never attained before," as a result of closer federal-provincial liaison being pioneered in Quebec, Registrar-General Turner says.

An agreement which will be suoght with other provinces puts the prosecution of all administrative of criminal offences under the Bankruptcy Act in federal hands.

"Nobody knew who was responsible for which offence," Mr. Turner said in an interview.

Mr. Turner added that "nobody was prosecuting criminal bankruptcies," even where there was evidence under the jurisdictional muddle that has existed.

The federal superintendent of bankruptcy had opened a Montreal regional office made up of a team of accountants and RCMP investigators operating through the whole province.

Arthur Mayse

My own memory for dates is none too reliable, but Win unfailingly remembers.

"Twenty-one years ago today," she said, as we dumped armloads of gale-smashed evergreen boughs on a smoky bonfire.

So it was; and although we've never made any special fuss about the anniversary that came round again last Sunday, it marks one of the pivotal days in our joined lives.

Since the day also belongs to our son, a busy young teacher now, I am able to tell you about it only because he gave me his unhesitating permission.

"Go ahead," he said. "In fact, I wish you would. You know how I feel about being adopted."

He knows how we feel too, and here is a truth that those who have never shared one of life's richest experiences sometimes fail to understand.

How can a couple entertain for a child not born to them the same love they would give to the child acquired by birth?

I can only assure you that they do, and there are in this city any number of parents who can back my claim.

Adoption, as they and we have learned, is a weld that endures through fair weather and foul. The adopted child—and I tell you this in all honesty—becomes a son or daughter, in love as well as in law.

The boy we hoped to take for our son was no baby, but a little blond kid of two years and a few months. He went around singing to himself, and we yearned to have him with us in time for his third Christmas.

Together and separately, we worked on the Children's Aid, which had investigated our backgrounds with daunting care.

All we got was an unvarying, amiable, "No, I'm sorry, that's out of the question."

Then, one afternoon in mid-December, Win phoned me at work. She sounded jubilant, also scared.

"He's coming tomorrow, and we still have to furnish his room!"

We were shopping in less than an hour. We bought a chest of drawers, a picture with robins in it, rug, lamp and a plump yellow teddybear. We added child-sized bedding, and ordered a crib.

"We can't deliver before next week," said the salesman. This, was the year after the last war, when transport was scarce and Canada not yet fully returned to peacetime gear.

"But we need that stuff," I protested. Win said, "There's this little boy we're adopting, and he needs . . ."

"Say no more." The salesman gave us a big grin. "It'll be out. You know, I've got an adopted son myself."

There is great joy in adopting a child, but there is also something very much like terror. What are you undertaking? Can you carry it? How will it work out? I left the magazine office next day, nervous as a cat—bought a little car at a toy store, then, worried that Ron mightn't like it, went back for another.

At the home doorstep, I turned away and walked twice around the block. This that we'd done would change the whole shape of our lives. And come to think of it, what did we know about raising children?

The lights were out downstairs. I went up, entertaining butterflies the size of bats.

Win sat beside him. She said, "Ron's just wakened from his nap." She didn't seem scared at all, only happy. "Come on in and say hello to him."

I crossed to them, still struck stupid, but happiness beginning, and reached down to the little boy who is a man now. Ron put a hand in mine, and the fears and ridiculous doubts departed.

To him, that night is only part of a story from a past longer than his memory. He doesn't remember our first Christmas, either. But we do, and until we added a daughter to our family—though not by adoption—it was our best.

Tomorrow, I'd like to tell you more about adoption, as we've lived it through the ups and downs of 21 years.

FOOTSLOGGERS of Gordon Head Junior High School deposited $5,214 today—and hope to soon make it $6,000 — in the Project 100 bank account. The school raised the money to aid foreign students when 403 youngsters entered the recent March For Millions and 298 completed 25.8 mile course. Ten teachers marched with the youngsters. Eighty pledges are still to be collected. From left are depositers Craig Darling and Ian Horne and Bank of Montreal Uvic branch staffers Mrs. P. Kimmerly and Mrs. M. Dagg. At Lansdowne Junior High, 267 students took part in raising another $4,000. They expect to have 90 per cent collected by the weekend from persons who sponsored marchers at so much per mile. Uvic organizers still have their eye on $100,000 goal. More than 10,000 people marched, 7,000 finished. (Times photo by Bill Halkett)

Civil Servants Talk Strike After Bennett Wage Freeze

This was the swift and angry reaction to Premier Bennett's clear indication that no general wage increase for the province's 23,000 government employees will be provided in the 1968 budget.

E. P. O'Connor, of Vancouver, general secretary of the 10,000-strong B.C. Government Employees Association, said Monday night that civil servants will "take what action they think necessary," including a strike to see that pay raises are granted.

Premier Bennett, at an annual luncheon which he has used for the past five years to announce wage increases, Monday told civil servants that this year he was not making "the usual announcement" because B.C. is in a war against inflation.

As in the past, his speech was timed in advance of the annual meetings between the B.C. civil service commission and BCGEA to discuss the next year's wages.

The BCGEA has claimed that the commission always toes the line drawn by the premier, which has resulted in wage increases approximating 5 per cent on average in each of the past five years.

PROVE NEED

"We will prove beyond all reasonable doubt the need for a new wage structure," Mr. O'Connor said, referring to next Monday's meeting with the commission.

He said that civil servants' salaries are 10 per cent below those for comparable jobs in private business.

If Mr. Bennett's statement results in flat rejection of the BCGEA request for raises, "there are certain sections (of the civil service) who will be militant," Mr. O'Connor said in his strike warning.

He complained that government employees are expected to accept the cost and responsibility of other people's mistakes.

"If the government finds itself in a tight money situation, it always takes it out of the government employees' wages," Mr. O'Connor said.

Trustees Ask Full Report On Measles

Greater Victoria School Board has asked for a prompt and full report on a threatened measles epidemic here next year.

The request was made this morning to Metropolitan Health Board medical officer Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread.

He told a health board meeting Tuesday that unless an $8,000 immunization program is launched in the schools "we will have an epidemic," He said they occur every two years and it is wrong to minimize the disease.

School Board chairman Peter Bunn expressed shock that Dr. Whitbread was reduced to asking service clubs to raise money for the immunization program because federal and provincial governments had earlier refused to contribute.

EXPLANATION

"We've asked Dr. Whitbread to explain in writing what the situation is all about," said Mr. Bunn. He thought the cost of immunization might be included in the school board budget.

Dr. Whitbread told his board of directors that it is time people took measles seriously. One child in 10,000 dies with the disease, one in 1,000 is threatened with deafness. In a few cases the desease can mentally retard a child, he stated.

He said he had tried for years to get money from senior governments for measles vaccine, but without success. He was meeting with Lions Club presidents Friday to ask them to raise at least $4,000.

Dr. Whitbread said the immunization program must be complete by the end of February if it is to be effective.

The board decided that if the money is not available elsewhere a request will be made to Greater Victoria municipalities to contribute.

Hydro Studies At Jordan River For Research

B.C. Hydro co-chairman Dr. Gordon Shrum today said engineering studies are underway at Jordan River but only as part of a continuing research program.

B.C. Hydro now has two small dams on the river, northwest of Sooke, feeding a power station.

"We have no immediate plans for Jordan River but we're always gathering engineering data for our installations," he said.

Dr. Shrum recently revealed that a "brown out" for some Vancouver Island industrial plants may be necessary next year due to delays in completing a program for increasing power supply through submarine cables across the Strait of Georgia.

FERRY MEN MAY GO 'RIGHT UP'

Ferry workers are "definitely" opposed to a possible wage freeze next year, a union spokesman said today.

"This would be a big issue," said Norman Thornber, business agent for the B.C. Government Employees Association marine branch (unlicensed).

He said employees of B.C. Ferry Authority "fought for a long time" for parity with outside maritime rates and this had been agreed to on a continuing basis.

"If this does not apply, our people will be right up in the air," he said.

Lay-Off Rumor Discounted By Ferry Chief

Rumors sweeping B.C. Ferry Authority crews that up to 140 will be laid off with shutdown of two ferries on the Nanaimo-Horseshoe Bay run are nothing more than rumors, BCFA manager Monty Aldous said Monday.

"We've picked them up too," he said when asked about the rumors. "We're not sure how they started."

In any event, he said they were nothing more than rumors.

"We haven't made any such recommendation," he said.

Mr. Aldous speculated that the rumors may have sprung from a misunderstanding about the work schedule for the Sechelt Coast service — where the former Pere Nouvel will replace the Sechelt Queen under the new name Sunshine Coast Queen after renovations this winter.

Ex-Prosecutor, Judge Testify In City Court

Perjury Hearing Gets Under Way

The preliminary hearing of Frank Hulbert, also known as Frank Pepler, charged with perjury in a 1943 murder trial, opened in central court today.

The crown charges that Hulbert, 41, of Port Alberni, a juvenile in 1943, committed perjury when he appeared as a crown witness in the murder trial of William Mitchell.

Mitchell was found not guilty and released, and the murderer has never been found.

TRANSCRIPT

In today's hearing, prosecutor J. W. Anderson filed a transcript of the 1943 preliminary hearing into the Mitchell charge.

Witness Claude Harrison, former mayor of Victoria and prosecutor at the 1943 hearing, testified he had a clear recollection of the case.

"Hulbert told the hearing Mitchell had told him he had killed the girl. He said Mitchell said he waited for her, asked her for sexual intercourse, and when she refused, he hit her on the head with a rock."

'SAME PERSON'

When asked if the present accused Hulbert was the same Hulbert who gave that testimony in 1943, Mr. Harrison replied "twenty years have passed, but I should say he is the same person as the young man who gave evidence."

Mr. Justice Cody, a retired justice of the Appeal Court, also appeared as a witness today.

He said he presided over the Mitchell trial.

Prosecutor Anderson told the court no transcript of the trial was kept, so Magistrate Ostler allowed Mr. Justice Cody to read from his bench book as it is the "best evidence available."

Mr. Justice Cody read to the court notes on evidence Hulbert gave similar to the evidence in the transcript of the preliminary hearing, but he said he could not identify Hulbert now.

Wife Lies on Road After Squabble

Hazel Hill, of 944 Page Road, pleaded guilty to a charge of creating a disturbance.

Colwood RCMP reported police and an ambulance rushed to Station Road near Colwood after a report of a woman on the road at 12:45 p.m. Nov. 4.

They said Mrs. Hill was lying across one lane of traffic and her husband's car was blocking the other.

HE CRASHED OUT, CRASHED IN BUT PARTYBOY'S PLOY SPIKED

Visitors to Government House usually sign the visitors' book and as a result they're on the garden party invitation list the following year.

However, this won't apply in the case of one recent visitor to the grounds.

He signed the book in the outer portico and in the column for honors and decorations, he added "AWOL, Brannen Lake."

Sure enough, a couple of days later city police picked up an escaper from the boys' industrial school at the lake, and the name matched.

Government house officials are unlikely to send an invitation to another recent signatory—Ringo Starr. There is some doubt in official circles that he was ever in town.

DISTILLERS' HIKE

More Price Boosts Face Liquor Buyers

More heavy increases in hard liquor prices appeared on the way today and Attorney-General Robert Bonner suggested that customers upset about escalating costs should stop buying.

He reserved direct comment on a Toronto report that two major distillers will raise their prices by 5 and 6 per cent across Canada.

The move could add as much as 75 cents to retail prices after government middlemen superimpose their cut.

H. Clifford Hatch, president of Hiram Walker-Gooderham and Worts Ltd., announced in Toronto a 5 per cent increase on all the company's products across the country.

A high-place source at Distillers Corp.-Seagram's Ltd. said his firm would follow suit with price increases of about 6 per cent.

MAGNIFIED

The manufacturer's increases would be magnified greatly by successive application of the federal excise tax, federal sales tax, B.C. liquor control board profit mark up and provincial sales tax.

As an example, it has been estimated a distiller's increase of a nickel a bottle could grow to 40 cents by the time the customer pays the cashier.

A 5 per cent increase at the manufacturer's level likely would total nearly a dime on most 25-ounce bottles of spirits, boosting the total increase to about 75 cents as a result of the progressive government imposts.

The cost of all 25-ounce bottles of spirits went up 37 cents a bottle only last week as a result of the LCB decision to increase its markup while passing on the 10 per cent federal liquor surcharge.

Mr. Bonner said the LCB has had "no firm advice" of the distillers' increases yet and he reserved comment on what impact they would have on retail prices here.

UP TO CONSUMER

Asked if it was conceivable that the LCB, as a monopoly business, would drop liquor lines that went up in manufacturers' price, Mr. Bonner replied that "would depend on whether alternate lines were available," for re-sale to the public.

"I feel the most effective dropping of lines is done by the customer at the counter," he added.

Chase Finishes With $350 Fine

A man who drove a car past a police car at a high speed early today and then was chased at speeds up to 85 miles per hour was fined $350 in central court.

Police reported while being chased he crossed the centre line several times and almost hit a truck.

Total of 290 Boilermakers Out of Work

A shipyard union official said today Yarrows has laid off 100 of its members in the last three days.

Neil Hindle, business agent for Local 191 of the International Brotherhood of Boilermakers, said this brings unemployment in his union to 290—about one-third of the total membership.

As announced earlier, Victoria Machinery Depot shipyard will shut down at the end of this month.

"This gives life to the words of (Yarrows manager) John Wallace that shipbuilding is on its death bed," said Mr. Hindle.

"We are very fast approaching the critical stage. Those laid off include welders, shipsfitters, platers, drillers and caulkers.

"Our men will have to give serious consideration to other work and that means an end to this industry.

CAN'T STAY

"They just can't stay on $36 a week unemployment insurance for a married man and $27 a week for single men."

He said all the jobs at Yarrows are finishing at once, including two barges and a tuna boat.

"We are meeting management tomorrow, on a regular basis, of all business agents, and we will discuss the employment situation once more," he said.

For Many It's Sunday On Tuesday

Boxing Day falls on a Tuesday this year and it will be like a Sunday — everything closed.

Only major exception to a day off work is the federal civil service. The government has ruled Boxing Day is a work day.

Provincial civil servants will have Boxing Day off work as will municipal employees.

All retail stores will be closed, said a spokesman for the Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce.

He added that the Municipal Act makes it clear there is "no question" of opening on Boxing Day.

"It's like trying to open on Sunday," he said.

Chartered banks will also be closed, but they will be open 9 a.m. to noon the previous Saturday — normally a closed day.

A spokesman for the carpenters union said both days are holidays which means the men must be paid triple time if the contractor wants any work done.

Wood products manufacturing plants will be shut both days, said spokesmen for the International Woodwrokers of America and B.C. Forest Products.

The recent provincial statutory holiday regulation, however, does not provide that Boxing Day is a statutory holiday.

This menas that non-union employees at places which open Boxing Day are not legally entitled to extra pay.

NECESSITY MOTHERS ANOTHER INVENTION

Toy for Boy Sparks New Industry

By PAUL WILLIAMSON

Fred Francis wanted a new toy for his eight-year-old son Ken. He couldn't find what he wanted, so he designed one.

And as a result, Victoria has another industry, the manufacturing of "Carpento" sets.

Mr. Francis, 3930 Hobbs St., is a mathematics teacher at Victoria High. Looking for a toy both educational and entertaining, he decided to construct a miniature carpenter set for his son.

After experimentation, he found certain sizes and shapes of wood—½, one and two-inch widths of ¼-inch in varying lengths up to eight inches—could be fitted together in dozens of different ways to construct boats, planes, elastic guns, houses and so on.

"That's where my mathematical mind came in," he said.

Somewhere along the line, he realized the set would be marketable if he perfected it, so he set out to improve upon the idea.

With his son as chief tester, he tried various weights of hammers until he settled on an 8-oz. tool. Different woods were tested, and soft pine, which never splits, was chosen.

A local paint company cooperated in developing a quick drying paint that is water soluble and shiny. Even the nails were selected after much trial and error.

After carefully choosing his lumber and finding a company to cut it into ¼-inch strips, Francis set up a miniature assembly line in his basement.

The 78 pieces of wood, the paint, nails, hammer, pliers, screwdriver, paint brush, eight maple wheels and instructions are neatly packed in a small carpenter's tool box.

The set, sealed in a special clear plastic wrap, is then shipped to a retail outlet.

EDUCATIONAL

"It helps children attain skill in hammering, constructing and painting and develops imagination and creativity.

"My son could hardly drive a nail when we started experimenting. Now he's developed considerable skill."

Mr. Francis, who said he's invested "several thousand dollars" in the project, has manufactured 900 of the sets, most of which are on sale now in local stores.

"If we sell five or six hundred, I'll call it a success."

And then what? Mr. Francis is already working on several ideas for accessories and expansions to his Carpento sets.

Greek King Leading Revolt Against Junta

Armed Forces Rally to Aid

LONDON (Reuters)—An armed forces radio broadcasting from Larissa, northern Greece, announced tonight that 90 per cent of the army and all air and naval units have rallied to King Constantine, who earlier in the day called for the ouster of the military regime in Athens and restoration of democracy.

(Times News Services)

King Constantine led a military revolt today against the ruling junta that seized power in Greece eight months ago and appealed to all Greeks to help him "restore democracy and freedom."

The junta mobilized the army and said it was determined to crush the rebellion.

Greece balanced on the brink of civil war.

Unconfirmed reports said troops under the 27-year-old king's command were moving on Athens from north central Greece. Air force planes believed manned by pilots loyal to the king flew low over the capital, which is filled with junta troops and tanks.

In Belgrade, the Yugoslav news agency Tanjug reported that Greece closed its borders with Yugoslavia this afternoon. It said radio broadcasts from northern Greece said the junta had taken control of the area and called on all soldiers and army units to report to their garrisons and remain loyal to the military regime.

Constantine, in a broadcast this morning from Larissa in central Greece about 160 miles northwest of Athens said he was trying to bring democracy back to the nation where it was born.

Larissa is the site of the biggest air force base in Greece and the headquarters of the 1st Greek Army under the command of Lt.-Gen. Constantine Kolias.

His troops were reported moving south towards Athens with the king, but this report could not be confirmed.

'Misled by Criminal Opportunists'

The junta, in a broadcast early this afternoon, said Constantine was "misled by criminal opportunists" and charged he was trying to overthrow the regime which ousted the civilian government on April 21 in what was described as a coup to save Greece from communism.

The ruling military leaders poured troops, tanks and armored cars into Athens from army camps around the city and surrounded the royal palace, government offices, the radio station and posted machine gunners on the roof of the foreign ministry.

Athens Radio announced that King Constantine "was misled by criminal opportunists and turned against the nation-saving revolution."

Interspersing the announcement with martial music, the Athens broadcast said:

"The Greek armed forces are determined to defend the unity of the nation or to crush through armed might those who divide the country. The national government calls on the Greek people to maintain their sang-froid and their confidence in the government.

"Greek people, the revolution of April 21 is at your side. The April revolution will protect the nation from any division. Do not worry. Everything is under control."

Monitors in Istanbul, Turkey reported Athens radio interrupted a music program later to report that the king is escaping from village to village. The junta is in complete control of the country, the station said.

Communications Cut in Afternoon

An assessment of late developments after the broadcasts by the junta and Constantine was complicated when telephone and telex communications from Greece were cut in mid-afternoon.

Rome reports said Athens was rejecting incoming calls because of "a breakdown in an amplifier." Calls from other European capitals to Athens could not be completed.

London reports said international airline flights to and from Athens were cancelled or delayed.

King Constantine and his Queen, Anne-Marie, 22, were reported to have travelled from Athens to Larissa earlier this week in connection with military manoeuvres. The queen is a member of Denmark's royal family.

In Copenhagen, Danish government sources said King Frederick and Queen Ingrid, the parents of Queen Anne-Marie, were unable to get in touch with her today. The Danish sources said Constantine and Anne-Marie apparently were still in Larissa.

Unconfirmed reports reaching Athens said Constantine had set up a new government at Naousa, a city 200 miles north of Athens just south of the border between Greece and Yugoslavia.

These unsubstantiated reports said the new government was headed by Petros Garoufolias, the man who served as defence

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. B-52 bombers have edged closer than ever before to Cambodia and bombed a suspected Communist stronghold in South Vietnam less than 2½ miles from the frontier, the U.S. command said today.

Mickey Vernon Cleared in Lawsuit

SEATTLE (AP)—Mickey Vernon, manager of the Vancouver Mounties of the Pacific Coast Baseball League, was dismissed today as a defendant in a $75,000 damage suit brought by catcher Merritt Ranew of the Seattle Angels.

The superior court suit here was filed by Ranew as the result of a fight during a game in Vancouver May 11, 1966. Ranew suffered a head injury and did not play for the remainder of the season.

Three Wonders From Barley

By KATHRINE THOMAS

Barley is a wonderful currency in Korea.

Canadian money used to purchase barley can accomplish three wonders.

The Unitarian Service Committee first gives 10 pounds per person to the people who are in dire need. They may be children, elderly persons too old to work or too handicapped or just a family facing a sudden emergency.

This barley literally keeps them alive—without the USC distribution, they would face starvation.

But the USC is also using barley as payment in kind to men and women who are only too anxious to work in reconstruction and reclamation programs.

For the assurance of enough food to keep their families alive, they will work long hours taking down mountains by hand and dumping them into the sea to reclaim marsh land.

The Koreans are a strong, energetic people, eager for the advancement of their country and the resurrection of an economy laid waste 14 years ago.

Some day this reclaimed land will be covered with factories, creating employment and exports.

But barley distribution can also be used in a third way—as an incentive for family planning.

The women who come to the USC family clinic receive 10 pounds of barley.

The program has been so successful the USC received a special commendation from the Korean government.

But the USC is concerned first with basic needs—the need of barley to conquer malnutriton.

It is difficult for Canadians who throw food and clothing away to realize how much even the smallest contribution can mean the difference between life and death in Asia.

GM Offers Wage Parity

TORONTO (CP) — General Motors of Canada today offered its auto workers wage parity with its employees in the United States provided the United Auto Workers Union agrees to work practices in force in the company's U.S. plants.

The offer proposes achievement of wage parity in five steps over a 2½-year period, ending in June, 1970. It would apply to those employees involved in producing auto products covered by the Canada-U.S. auto trade agreement.

The company's proposals also include wage increases over a three-year period and an improved benefit plan.

'Storm' Spotter In Space

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Beaming back strong signals to earth, a robot "interplanetary weatherman" named Pioneer VIII rocketed into orbit around the sun today to help weave a network that could warn astronauts of deadly solar radiation storms in space.

En route to the sun-circling path between that of earth and Mars, Pioneer VIII's fiery Delta booster rocket successfully kicked a radio-relay communications satellite into orbit around earth to be used for testing America's man-to-moon tracking network.

"We now have the Pioneer VIII spacecraft in a solar orbit," a National Aeronautics and Space Administration spokesman said 35 minutes after the double payload blasted off at 9:08 a.m. EST. The tricky two-in-one shot closed out the 1967 launch scheduled at Cape Kennedy.

SENSORS PROBE

Scientists refer to the Pioneer family of spacecraft as "interplanetary weathermen" and said sensors aboard Pioneer VIII could provide the best information yet on how great a danger radiation storms emitted from the sun pose to astronauts.

Working with other craft previously launched, drum-shaped Pioneer VIII, could possibly lead to a foolproof means of predicting when dangerous flares will erupt on the sun—just as earth-orbiting weather satellites help forecasters predict climate on this planet—so manned space flights can be scheduled around them, officials said.

Gamble for Peace, Martin Tells Rusk

By HAROLD MORRISON

BRUSSELS (CP) — Canada today called on the United States to "gamble" for peace in Vietnam.

External Affairs Minister Paul Martin told the 15-country NATO council: "The time has come to risk as much as a gamble for peace—and I recognize that it would be a gamble—as has already been risked in ever-widening attempts at a military solution."

While Martin did not spell out what he meant, Canada has been pleading with the U.S. to halt the bombing in North Vietnam in the hope that this might lead to negotiations and a settlement.

U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk was reported to have told the council the bombing would stop only if the U.S. could be sure this would lead to useful discussions and if assurance could be given that the Viet Cong would not take advantage of the situation. Informants said Rusk also stated that in his view the Vietnamese war is going in the right direction for the side of freedom and democracy.

Martin also proposed that NATO continue to study ways of promoting a mutual East-West reduction of arms even though the West cannot expect explicit agreements from the Russians at this time. Even prospects for tacit agreements "do not seem very bright," he said.

BEST PROSPECTS

He supported basic conclusions of the so-called Harmel Exercise to increase NATO's political cohesiveness in negotiating a detente with the East, but suggested bilateral contacts offer the best prospects for making progress at this stage.

The study under the direction of Belgian Foreign Minister Pierre Harmel has turned into a controversial issue with France

'Resurrection' Trick Fails

ACCRA, Ghana (UPI) — A Ghanaian magician turned himself in to police in the audience Tuesday because his stage trick went wrong and he failed to "resurrect" a man from the dead.

The 30-year-old man was "shot" by an assistant with what were believed to be blank cartridges as part of the act of the magician named Professor Hindu at Takoradi.

He was put in the trench near the stage and covered with boards and earth. The magician promised the man would come to life again after half an hour.

After a period, the magician went near the trench, then suddenly returned to the stage, gathered up his magical regalia and set it on fire.

He announced the man was dead and he was unable to "ressurect" him. He surrendered to the police, who took him and the assistant, Koho Ansah, into custody.

A police spokesman said later the cause of death was unknown because the body bore no wounds or bloodstains, but suffocation was suspected.

Ship Loses Rudder

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP)—The United States Coast Guard cutter Storis was expected to reach the 492-foot U.S. freighter Steel Flyer, 380 miles southwest of Kodiak, today. The Steel Flyer reported Tuesday she lost her rudder and rudder post in the North Pacific. She radioed she was in no immediate danger.

He's Our Postmaster Say Angry Residents

"I am now carrying out the duties of a postmaster but under the pay of the people," said Mr. Gilson. "And it looks like I'm going to be busier than I ever was before."

Tuesday night Mr. Gilson formally signed over the post office duties to a new appointee after an appeal to Ottawa to keep him as postmaster failed.

Officially, the post office has been transferred from Mr. Gilson's general store to a store across the street in this community 35 miles northeast of Winnipeg.

But as "postmaster under authorization of the people," he set out on his first 15-mile trip to East Selkirk with mail brought into his store by those who refuse to use the new postal establishment.

The postal subscribers are paying Mr. Gilson $200 a month to carry the mail—the same amount he was getting as a government postmaster, he said.

He said he has been given no choice in accepting the new appointment. "It's been forced on me. They threatened to stop shopping in my store and in the one across the street if I didn't accept."

Libau's postal rebellion began Monday when Mr. Gilson was prevented from signing transfer papers by a mob of 50 townspeople who carted him off to a farm in a vigilante action aimed at keeping him out of reach of postal authorities.

NATION'S IDEALS BETRAYED IN VIETNAM

U.S. Colleges 'Corrupted' by War Machine

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. J. William Fulbright, D—Ark., said today that the Vietnam war is supporting a military-industrial complex which is a "major political force" and a corrupting influence on U.S. colleges and universities.

The chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee, in the second of two scathing speeches on Vietnam, said that defence industries and their employees "form a giant concentration of socialism in our otherwise free enterprise economy."

Fulbright charged last week the Vietnam conflict was an "immoral and unnecessary war" turning the Southeast Asian country into a "charnel house."

In a speech prepared for senate delivery today, he said the hope of America's poor had been "sacrificed to the supervening requirements of the war on Asian communism, or more exactly, to the executive preoccupation and congressional parsimony induced by that war."

Fulbright said the United States had begun to lose its understanding of "the power of the American example" and the loss was manifest in Vietnam.

"There at last we have embraced the ideas that are so alien to our experience, the idea that our wisdom is as great as our power, and the idea that our lasting impact on the world can be determined by the way we fight a war rather than by the way we run our country.

"These are the principal and most ominous effects of the war—the betrayal of ideas which have served America well, and the great moral crisis which that betrayed has set loose among our people and their leaders."

Fulbright called for a re-evaluation of U.S. "national priorities." He said that "defining our priorities is more a matter of moral accounting than of cost accounting."

The senator, a former president of the University of Arkansas, said that many leading universities have joined the "monolith" of the military-industrial complex.

A university that makes itself a government appendage, Fulbright said, is not only failing to meet its responsibilities to its students, "it is betraying a public trust."

Fulbright said the basic cause of the "angry rebellions" on many campuses probably is the students' discovery of corruption in colleges, the one place—besides perhaps the church—which might have been supposed to be immune from the "corruptions of age."

KITCHEN SINK WENT WITH IT

A neighbor, Charles Dyer, said he saw some unidentified men "jack up and haul away" the house, which was located near the Atlanta Airport.

'Hot Pursuit' In Cambodia, Laos Studied

WASHINGTON (WP)—The United States is conducting a serious restudy of its policy that now generally bars pursuit of Viet Cong guerrillas into Cambodia and Laos, informed sources confirmed Tuesday night.

"We are concerned and we are looking at the problem to see what the options are," said one administration source. It was emphasized that "the president has made no decisions" and the present activity is one of "collecting evidence."

Acknowledgement that the United States is seriously re-exammining both diplomatic and military approaches to the problem of Viet Cong "sanctuaries" in Cambodia and Laos, however, is itself a major departure.

DIPLOMATS CONCERNED

Until a few days ago, every report of a possible shift of U.S. policy toward border "sanctuaries" was roundly denied. While the subject was constantly pressed by U.S. military leaders in South Vietnam, American diplomats continually cautioned that any move in this direction would have grave international consequences.

The Soviet Union, which is a pledged guarantor of the neutrality of both Cambodia and Laos publicly warned the U.S. on Sunday against extending military action into these nations. It charged that "United States" aggressive circles" appear to be "preparing to spread the fire of war" in Southeast Asia.

SPIRITS SOAR DESPITE WAR

Johnson Getting Funny

By RALPH HARRIS

fleeting contentment and inner peace have broken through, dispelling his previous somber mood over the war, attacks by critics and a reported drop in voter popularity.

The "new" Lyndon Johnson has become the talk of the White House press corps, with which he has had his ups and downs since he took office in 1963.

Some observers believed his change of mood resulted from his family—happiness over the marriage of daughter Lynda Bird, hours spent playing with his five-months-old grandchild, son of younger daughter Luci, and a new resolve not to give into worry.

BELIEVES IN POLICY

He has replied to his war critics and low public opinion poll reatings by saying he believed he was following the correct course in Vietnam and he intended to carry on even if hispopularityslumped to one per cent.

This week was particularly successful for the president with political observers applauding his good humor and predicting he was curtain-raising the style of campaign he will conduct for re-election in November, 1968.

On the decision to hold Lynda's wedding in the White House East Room instead of a church —"This is the poors n wedding chapel . . . but you can have a wedding here and no one thinks it's cheap."

On the unexpected shift of De- from the Pentagon to the presdency of the World Bank—"There's no truth to the story that George Woods (current world bank chief) resigned because I asked him for a small wedding loan."

AVOIDS DISGRUNTLED

On State Secretary Dean Rusk, chief target of anti-war demonstrators—The secretary chose an eighth-floor office with sealed windows in the state department because "he wanted it to betoo far for him to jump andtoohigh for the pickets to climb."

Another crack about Rusk was that birds flocked to his windows and, being a kindly man, he got Mrs. Rusk to fill a bag with crumbs so he could feedthem every day.

"Well, the sparrowwwts and st lings like it," the president observed, "but as you know there's no filling the appetite of these peace doves and war hawks."

Talks about the ebullient presidential mood began Nov. 17 when Johnson unveiled a new, free-swinging style at a White House press conference.

He also dropped the caution he normally used in answering questions and enlivened the proceedings with historical comparisons, biblical quotations, jokes and biting sarcasm.

$80 MILLION COST

Surprise Marks Destroyer Bids

OTTAWA (UPI) — An air of surprise and excitement attended the formal opening of bids Tuesday for four DDH-280-class helicopter-carrying destroyers for the navy.

Future of the four ships had been in doubt since the announcement last week of severe cutbacks in federal spending.

Bids were submitted by two shipyards in Quebec, one in Halifax and one in Vancouver. The surprise element developed when the Vancouver bid proved to be more than twice the amount of the low bid, from a Quebec shipbuilder.

Officials of both the navy and the defence production department said that the best bids were "considerably less" than they had estimated that the ships would cost.

Production of the ships is divided into two phases, called lead yard and follow yard. The lead yard is to develop working drawings for the ships, and will also build ships one and two. The follow yard will build ships three and four.

Lowest bid for lead yard was Marine Industries Ltd. of Sorel, Que. at $20,436,200. Sorel also had low bid for follow yard at $18,459,950. High bid for lead yard was Davie Shipbuilding Ltd. of Levis, Que., at $24,436,767. High for follow yard was $49,287,230 by Burrard Drydock Ltd. of Vancouver.

A defence production official said the disparity in bidding was probably due to the fact that the shipbuilders were bidding on different phases of construction, "from a bare ship on the one hand to a completely equipped vessel on the other, but we won't know the complete story until we have examined the proposals."

He added that early estimates on the probably cost of the four destroyers had run as high as $80,000,000.

Something Out There Keeping Navy Busy

Canadian Navy ships are out on secret missions and Russian fishing vessels are reported to be in B.C. coastal waters.

But authorities at CFB Esquimalt won't connect the two. In fact, no mention of Russian ships has come out of Esquimalt.

On Friday, HMCS Qu'Appelle returned home after an exercise in U.S. waters and within 24 hours was at sea again on "surveillance duty." No details were given.

Today, the Saskatchewan will go out to "take advantage of a set of circumstances which now prevail off coast," says the navy. No return times or dates for the two destroyer-escorts have been given.

Last time Canadian ships went out on secret missions was in late July this year when the Mackenzie and St. Croix left suddenly on a patrol of which no details were disclosed.

Tuesday a report from Seattle indicated that Russian trawlers had been operating off the coast for some months near the Canadian 12-mile limit.

Today a report from Astoria said that an aerial survey of the Washington and Oregon coast showed only one Russian fishing vessel off Tillamook, but a heavy layer of cloud hampered the survey. A U.S. Bureau of Commerical Fisheries said that there have been about 60 Soviet vessels around in the past year.

A CFB Esquimalt spokesman would only comment "the navy is just doing its main job, which is looking after the interests of Canada."

French-Canadians Watch B.C. Project

COQUITLAM, B.C. (CP) — A district school board official in this Vancouver suburb says French-Canadians across the nation are watching with interest efforts to have French made the language of instruction in classrooms at nearby Maillardville, an predominantly French-speaking community.

Maillardville, with a population of 8,000 is the largest French-speaking community west of the Rockies. Its schools come under the jurisdiction of the Coquitlam district school board.

E. P. Murphy, school board chairman, made the comment Tuesday night after hearing submissions urging the move presented by the French-Canadian Association of British Columbia.

The brief urged the school board to ask for an exchange of teachers between Quebec and B.C. and for the board to consider French as the language of instruction in Maillardville schools.

Romeo Paquette, who presented the association's brief, said the exchange of teachers would combat the difficulties of recruiting teachers for the community.

Mr. Murphy said later: "We were very interested to hear Mr. Paquette and we are going to discuss his brief and then take it to Victoria."

"I feel that this is a stage with the eyes of all French Canadians watching."

Directors Told Museum May Close 3 Months

The B.C. Maritime Museum in Bastion Square may close from Jan. 1 to April 10.

At an extra-ordinary meeting Tuesday members were told that closure might be necessary to stop the museum from running into further debt.

The balance sheet showed a debt to the city of $4,700 in taxes, and a bank loan of $9,000, Cmdr. F. E. Grubb, secretary-treasurer, said.

He noted that the museum had applied to the intermunicipal committee for a grant in aid of $12,000, but had been awarded only $7,000.

He anticipated the deficit for the current year would be $13,500.

The reason for the museum going in the red was the falling-off in anticipated paid attendance.

The museum had banked on a paid attendance of 50,000 people this year.

But only 29,000 people paid to see the museum, Mr. Grubb said.

Closure of the building would result in a saving of $1,674. The director, secretary and model-making staff would be retained.

ILLEGAL ABORTIONS

Payoffs to Police Claimed by Women

OTTAWA (CP)—Linda Seese of the Women's Liberation Group of Toronto Tuesday told a meeting of the Commons health committee the bulk of $400 and $500 fees for illegal abortions goes for police protection.

Miss Seese, 25, said she could not support her allegations with proof. The group presented a brief to the committee which is studying all aspects of the abortion question.

Peggy Morton, 22, also of Toronto, said she knew of cases where a doctor who had performed illegal abortions had "closed up" for a while. The doctor had told "someone" the police were on to him.

He had continued later to give illegal abortions, charging substantially higher fees, she said.

"People have told me they think he is paying off police."

HAD NO PROOF

"None of us has ever seen money handed from the abortionist to the police," Miss Seese said.

Four Liberation Group members, all unmarried women between the ages of 20 and 31, told the committee their organization had been formed after they met through various anti-war groups.

Three from Toronto said they are unemployed and had been members of the Student Union for Peace Action. Judy Bradford, 20, of Montreal, formerly a member of the Company of Young Candians, is secretary for the peace magazine Our Generation.

Both the Women's Liberation Group and The Canadian Abortion Reform Association in their briefs, advocated abortion on request if a doctor considered the measure would not damage the mother's health.

Veteran Skipper Dies

VANCOUVER (CP) — Capt. John Duncan Vosper, 76, has died in Lions Gate Hospital. The veteran skipper, one of B.C.'s last links with the age of the windjammer, was one of the few who held a ticket for both sail and steam. Funeral service is set for Saturday.

Fined $200 For Assault

Douglas Hoffman, 23, of 920 Empress, was found guilty of assault causing bodily harm to Mrs. Carol Hoffman, 1923 Quamichan, Nov. 4.

Mrs. Hoffman attempted to withdraw the charge "to keep peace in the family," but Magistrate Ostler refused permission.

She told the court Mr. Hoffman struck her in the mouth after a dispute about his actions in her apartment on Nov. 4.

Customs Man Remembered Bag, Nabs Heroin

MONTREAL (CP) — An alert customs official who recently stopped a French couple trying to smuggle heroin into Canada was credited Tuesday with the seizure of heroin believed to be worth $5,000,000 on the illicit market, police reported Tuesday night.

The unidentified customs officer was handling passengers on an Air-Canada flight from Paris when he noticed a man carrying a similar bag to that used by the couple from Marseilles, in their attempt to bring heroin into the country three months ago.

Cracks in Dam Wall
